A Chicago man who made a big fortune in the latest pork deal went to England to polish up a bit on the "hang the expense" method. He saw a hat and a pair of boots in a window he admired very much. The hat had a cockade on the side that pleased him exceedingly. It had not been introduced in Chicago, and he was bound to have the newest thing out. After paying for the hat he said he would take the boots too, if they would fit. "Oh, you can't wear these boots with that hat you know," said the salesman. "Why can't I?" demanded the millionaire. "I guess I can pay for them." "Oh, certianly," returned the man smoothly, "but you see that's a footman's hat and these are a coachman's boots." [Detroit Free Press.

show no signs of having been stretched. The only case that at all resembles this one was reported 300 years ago by a Dr. Thulberg of Vienna.

Herr Haag is about thirty-two years old and has several children, none of whom inherit the father's peculiar cuticule. He is of medium height, lightly built, and has light complexion, slightly freckled. As he stood upon a table in the centre of a group of doctors his skin had a perfectly natural appearance, but looked in places as if its posessor had been very fleshy, but had become thin again. Herr Haag first took the skin of his chest in both hands, pulled it upward easily and put it in his mouth. Then he pulled his forehead down and covered his face completely. When released this extended skin took its natural place at once. He next pulled his nose and chin down and outward, and then had the skin of his arms and legs stretched until he looked like a bat or a flying squirrel. The doctors examined him thoroughly and with much interest, pronounced it a case of "dermatolysis." and said that Herr Haag's cuticule was nowhere joined to his musculu tissues. The skin upon his ears, his hands, his feet and his head showed the same elastic quality, In fact Herr Haag can wrap himself in the mantle of his elasticity, can pull the cuticle out above his knee-pans and wring it like a cloth, and can slide around inside himself to a really alarming extent.

Mr. Haag showed a large scar on his right arm, where Prof. Leube of Erlangen cut out a piece of skin to get at the bottom facts about it. The scar has not grown fast to the flesh underneath, but pulls six inches away, as it was merely a patch or darned spot in a loose garment. Prof. Leube found that there was no sub-cutaneous fat, that there was a strange lack of tissue between the skin and the flesh, and that the porous processes fixing the skin to the deep fascia are loose and long.

Mr. Haag is to be made the subject of a lecture to the students in the University Medical College on Tuesday, when a calcium or electric light will be employed to show the circulation of the blood in his skin.
The doctors agree that he is a surprising case of dermatolysis, or "slippery skin."

AN INTERESTING FACT.

In France, all patent medicines must be endorsed by an official board of physicians before they can be sold. In lieu of such a law in America, the people have resolved themselves into a National committee which has endorsed Swayne's Ointment for allaying the itching accompanying the Piles, as the only reliable remedy in the market. Its a poor rule that won't work both ways. 46w4

Worth $20,000.

James Halfstop, in order to appear as a bondsman, swore before a Little Rock justice of the peace that he was worth $20,000. Shortly afterward the justice, learning that Halfstop was not worth twenty cents and that he lived on a rented swamp farm, sent out a warrant for his arrest. The man appeared in court, bringing with him his wife and two boys.

"Mr. Halfstop," said the justice, "what have you to say why you should not be committed for perjury?"

"How have I committed Perjury?"

"You swore that you were worth twenty thousand dollars, but the fact has been established that you are not worth anything. This is a clear case of perjury—so clear, sir, that the penitentiary gate is opening to receive you."

"I said" exclimed Mr. Halfstop that I am worth twenty thousand dollars, and I stick to it. Jim," he added, addressing one of his sons, "stand up here before the judge. Now sir, this boy is worth five thousand dollars. Hanged if I'd take take that price for him. Ned my son, you stand up. Judge, this boy is also worth five thousand dollars. Sue" he continued, addressing his wife, "stand up. Now smile for the judge. Now laugh a little. See that judge? That woman's worth ten thousand dollars if she's worth a cent. That makes twenty thousand dollars. Now I am worth five thousand dollars—wouldn't take that amount for myself. But I didn't claim to represent more than twenty thousand dollars; don't you see?"

The judge reflected for a moment and said: "I guess you are right sir. The statutes are not quite plain on that subject, but I'll discharge you."
[Little Rock Gazette.

The editor of a certain weekly paper within a hundred miles of Pittsburg makes a practice of "stopping the press to announce" if it be nothing more than a dog fight. One evening everything was as dull as a patent office report, but the ruling passion cropped out as follows: "We stop the press to announce that nothing has occurred since we went to press of sufficient interest to induce us to stop the press to announce it."

The Law's Delay.

Lawyer: "Hurrah, let me congratulate you. You are the luckiest of mortals. Embrace me."

They embrace, and the client ventures to ask the cause of so much emotion.

"Thanks to my skill," replied the lawyer, I have obtained a judgment in your favor in the supreme court."

"After nine long years."

"But my dear fellow, better late than never."

"How much do I get?" asked the client, anxiously.

"The court decrees that you shall receive $2,000. The costs and my fee will only amount to $3,500, so all you will have to pay me is $1,500.

"Merciful heavens, and I must lose my money besides!"

"Of course you lose your money, but console yourself. You have gained your case. You can't expect to gain everything."

Mistaken Kindness.

Mormon wagons took sunflowers along with them on the way to Utah, and Iowa farmers have had a hard time fighting the pest. A single Scotch thistle planted in Victoria—the Scotchmen there had a congratulatory dinner over it twenty years ago—has covered tens of thousands of acres and been the destruction of farms. The scattered grain emptied from the bags of German troop-ships in the Revolution knocked millions off the value of our grain crop for all time to come by bringing the Hessian fly. A careless man set out a French grape cutting a few years ago with phylloxera on it, and the pest is now sprinkled along the Pacific coast, creeping inland. Its ravages in France have cost $400,000,000. A man with a taste for peppery greens planted water cress in New Zealand, and the little plant has spread so that the local legislature has to appropriate a round sum yearly to improve the water cress out of existence and the water courses. A kindly, misguided man brought over to New York a basketful of Sparrows, not twenty years ago, and the little wretches have already driven half our song birds into the woods. In South America the same thing was done, and the birds are cleaning out the fruit crop. They will be here some day. SAMARITAN
NERVINE!

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Epileptic Fits, Spasms, Convulsions, St Vitus Dance, Viritigo, Insanity, Apoplexy, Paralysis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all Nervous Diseases. This infallable remedy will positively eradicate every species of Nervous Derangement, and drive them away from whence they came, never to return again. It utterly destroys the germs of disease by neutralizing the hereditary taint or poison in the system, and thoroughly eradicate the disease, and utterly destroys the cause.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Female Weakness, General Debility, Leucorrhoea or Whites, Painful Menstration, Ulceration of the Uterus, Internal Heat, Gravel, Inflamation of the Bladder, Irritability of the Bladder. For Wakefulness at Night, there is no better remedy. During the change of life no Female should be without it. It quiets the Nervous System and gives rest comfort and nature's sweet sleep.

SVMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Alcholism, Drunkenness and the habit of Opium Eating. These degrading habits are by far the worst evils that have ever befallen suffering humanity. Thousands die annually from these noxious drugs. The drunkard drinks liquor not because he likes it but for the pleasure of drinking and treating his friends, little thinking that he is on his road to ruin. Like the Opium Eater, he first uses the drug in small quantities as a harmless antidote. The soothing influence of the drug takes strong hold upon its victim, leading him on to his own destruction. The habits of Opium Eating and Liquor Drinking are precisely what eating is to alimentiveness, as over-eating first inflames the stomach, which redoubles its cravings until it paralyzes both the stomach and appetite. So every drink of liquor or dose of opium, instead of satisfying, only adds to its fierce fires, until it consumes the vital force and then itself. Like the gluttonous tape-worm, it cries "Give, give, give!" but never enough until its own rapacity devours itself. Samaritan Nervine gives instant relief in all such cases. It produces sleep, quiets the nerves, builds up the nervous system, and restores body and mind to a healthy condition.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Nervous Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Asthma, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Syphilis, diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases of the urinary organs. Nervous debility, caused by the indiscretions of youth, permanently cured by the use of this valuable remedy. The Farmer's Wife.

BY ELLA WHEELER.

Up with the birds in the early morning—
The dew drop glows like a precious gem;
[illegible] tints in the skies are dawning,
But she's never a moment to look at them.
The men are wanting their breakfast early,
She must not linger, she must not wait;
For words that are sharp and looks that are surly
Are what men give when meals are late.

O glorious colors the clouds are turning,
If she would but look o'er hills and trees;
But here are the dishes, and here is the churning,
Those things always must yield to these.
The world is filled with the wine of beauty;
If she could but pause and drink it in,
But pleasure, she says, must wait for duty—
Neglected work is committed sin.

The day grows hot and her hands grow weary,
Oh, for an hour to cool her head!
Out with the birds and winds so cheery!
But she must get dinner and bake her bread.
The busy men in the hay-field working,
If they saw her sitting with idle hand,
Would think her lazy and call it shirking,
And she never could make them understand.

They do not know the heart within her
Hungers for beauty and things sublime;
They only know that they want their dinner—
Plenty of it, and just "on time."
And after the sweeping and churning and baking,
And dinner dishes are all put by,
She sits and sews though her head is aching,
Till time for supper and "chores" draws nigh.

Her boys at school must look like others,
She says as she patches their frocks and hose,
For the world is quick to censure mothers
For the least neglect to children's clothes.
Her husband comes from the field of labor,
He gives no praise to his weary wife;
She's done no more than has her neighbor;
'Tis the lot of all in country life.

But after the strife and weary tussle
When life is done, and she lies at rest;
The [illegible] brain and heart and muscle—
Her sons and daughters—shall call her blest,
And I think the sweetest joy of heaven,
The rarest bliss of eternal life,
And the fairest crown of all will be given
Unto the way-worn farmer's wife.

[Harper's Bazar.

HELEN CHURCHILL'S LOVER.

The silver gray of a summer dawn was spreading itself over the landscape, rendering soft and indistinct all familiar objects; yet, even seen by its dim, uncertain light, he looked more like one prematurely old by reason of hard work or withering care than if he had merely passed from youth to age by ordinary gentle gradations.

His brow was lined, his hair was silvered, and there was a stoop in his shoulders which told of hard and continuous toil; yet, notwithstanding these drawbacks, there was the remains of youthful beauty in the well shaped head and clear gray eyes.

He had arrived in the neighboring town too late the evening before to catch the last train to this little out of the way hamlet, too late to do aught but seek a bed there; but after three or four hours the restless craving to complete the journey so overpowered him that he rose and pursued his way on foot. And now with the delicate light of the early morn silvering the birches and dimpling the waters of the stream, he stood at length where his feet had not rested for fifteen years. But these years, awful as they had been at the time seemed but a dream now, on waking, as he stood thus looking at each well remembered spot.

There was the quaint, old fashioned church, where he could remember kneeling, a tiny boy, by his mother's side and listening half consciously, as he stared about him, to the soft voice repeating the responses. He could see himself older still, gazing bashfully from the high curtained pew to where, beneath marble slabs that spoke of the virtues of those who slept beneath, a golden haired maiden knelt; inside the church only the narrow aisle between them; outside, all the wide dividing space between the village doctor's son and the eldest daughter of Squire Churchill.

With a sigh the wayfarer brought back his straying thoughts from past to present and became aware that the sun [illegible] the birds were chirping forth [illegible] the dew drops were [illegible] all around—on the rose [illegible] hedge by which he stood, on the sprays of eglantine and on the far [illegible] meadows that lay between the village of Bythorp and Bythorp [illegible] half way up the wooded slopes [illegible]

"[illegible] I am home again," then [illegible] "at length" and throw- [illegible]

The farmer looked at the speaker [illegible] he added [illegible] I know [illegible] for many [illegible] England. You belong to Bythorp [illegible] as if anxious to divert [illegible] from any personal [illegible]

"[illegible] and boy, I have lived here these fifty years. That is my farm," pointing with a proud, possessive air in the direction whence he had come, "Manor farm."

"Then you are—," half escaped the lips of the other; but the words passed unnoticed by his companion.

"Dick Stisted of the Manor farm," he repeated. "Mine, now, as it was my father's before, and will, please God, be my son's by and by."

"A perfect life, Mr. Stisted. A home, a wife and little ones. What could a man require more?"

"You do not possess them?" questioned the farmer, looking up, surprised at the energy of the stranger's voice.

"I am not married," he replied briefly "But," he hastened to add, fearing his reply might be abrupt, "you know the place, you say; then perhaps you can tell me to whom yonder house belongs," pointing toward the distant tower of Bythorp Manor. But it may be I am detaining you?"

"No, no" replied Mr. Stisted courteously. "I am not pressed for time. Yonder house belongs to Squire Churchill. The young Squire we calls him mostly about here, seeing that his father is dead not long since."

"He is dead?"

"Ay, surely; and young Mr. Edward has come into the place and married a bonny wife, he has."

"The old Squire had a daughter, had he not?"

"Two. You knew them?"

"I knew of them," the stranger replied evasively. And then, pointing to a small white house that was visible through the trees, "and to whom does that belong?"

"That? Why, to Mrs. Sutton, poor body!"

"And why do you pity her?"

"You must be a stranger, indeed, sir, to ask why."

"Then enlighten me. Tell me the story."

They had reached the stile now, through which the farmer had first made his appearance upon the scene and he paused at the stranger's words and rested his arms upon it.

"Story! It is a queer story. Almost too sad to be called by such a name! She was the doctor's wife, a sweet pretty woman as I ever saw, fifteen years ago, with a fair, handsome boy that she was that proud on that it would have done you good to see them both together. He, the doctor himself, was a bit cross grained—leastwise, so I've heard to say—and all the more reason why the mother and son should think so much of one another.

"The father did not overlike it; still he was open handed with the young man, and educated him finely, sending him to school and college until it was easy to see that the boy who was fine looking enough was beginning to think no small things of himself. 'Tis said he even lifted his eyes to one of Squire Churchill's daughters—leastways at the last. But I am not telling you straight on. You should come and see my wife if you wish to hear the story well told

"But was there such a presumption?" inquired the listener. "You say that this young man was well educated and good looking, and, perhaps," after a second's hesitation—"she liked him."

"He should have known his place better," said Mr. Stisted, sturdily; "leastwise he should have learnt it. What is a young lady's fancy worth. She was but sixteen. Squire Churchill's daughters were not for such as he. However, the lovemaking, or whatever they choose to call it, was only discovered afterward, when everything was brought to light. And in the meantime the tragedy came."

"Well?" asked the stranger, leaning forward with interest in his face.

"A murder was committed here. Yes, you may well start. In this quiet village where nothing was heard from one year's end to another; in this village—in that lane where it joins Squire Churchill's grounds—Squire Churchill's second son was found dead."

"And—"

"And then, as I said before, it all came out about this poor Mr. Sutton keeping company with Miss Churchill; for it seems the foolish young thing, not being able to see him elsewhere, had agreed to meet him in that very lane on that very night; for one of the farm laborers saw them part and saw her run up through the meadows home only a few minutes before he heard a cry and ran forward to find poor Master Harry lying there dead.

"Of course Mr. Sutton was taken up?"

"Of course, sir. But now comes the queer part of the story. For, though he was tried, and it was proved most beautifully that he had killed Master Harry for telling him what he thought [illegible]

[illegible] "I have [illegible] said in a [illegible] look. I know this [illegible] I have seen him."

"Is that so, sir?" said the [illegible] with fresh interest. "Ay, I remember you [illegible] had [illegible] been long in England. Well, I shall be glad to see him back, and shake him by the hand and bid him forget the past. [illegible] there is little else [illegible] to come back to. What was he doing when you saw him, sir?"

He had heard that he was free."

"And what was he like? And was he minded to forget the past and return to England?"

"He was a saddened sober man when I knew him, with only one hope left but of the many life had once offered; and he was going home."

"And what was the hope, if I may be so bold as to ask? Perhaps his mother had never believed the evil, and was waiting for him?"

"Maybe; but he did not speak of her. He told me that the last night before he left England—you know—?"—that he had an interview with—"

"Yes, yes," interrupted Mr. Stisted sagely; "we heard all about it, though it was kept so dark. It was Miss Helon, bless you, the yellow haired Miss Churchill. Sixteen years ago nearly, so no harm in speaking of it now—and all so changed since? Well, she saw him to say 'good-by.'"

"Yes, so this man told me; and they parted, she saying that, let the people do or say what they might, she would wait his return in perfect trust and patience."

"A pity he did not give his love to the other sister," remarked Mr. Stisted, "if all stories are to be believed."

"Why?"

"Because she was in love with him always, and plain though she was, Miss Jane was a good, true woman, and has never lifted up her head or looked at another man since those sad days."

"Is that really true?"

"No call to misdoubt it, sir; any one in the village will tell you the same story; and as I said before, 'twas a pity seeing as everything has worked round right, that it was not on Jane that he set his affections; for being so plain, as you might say, mayhap there would not have been such a great objection to his having her."

The stranger made no reply, apparently being lost in thought over Farmer Stisted's last words, and he continued:

"He would not have been such a bad match in those days, for her, at least; for he was a fine, gallant looking chap with a pleasant word for every one."

"You remember him?"

"Yes, well. I never thought very ill of him myself. A hasty word, a blow, these come over quickly when the blood is young."

"Do you think I am like him?" The speaker drew himself up and stood looking with something almost like anxiety into Farmer Stisted's red, comely face. "When I knew him," he added, "we used to be often thought to resemble one another."

"I cannot see it myself, sir," said Mr. Stisted, slowly; "but then, sir, begging your pardon, it is not so easy to draw comparisons between the young and the old."

The man addressed unfolded his arms and leaned once more against the stile, heaving a quick, impatient sigh as he did so.

"It is fortunate, is it not, Mr. Stisted, that hearts do not alter as quickly as faces do?"

"Nay, sir, I cannot see as your right there. Hearts grow older along with the faces they belong to, else husbands and wives would not get along as well as they do. As we grow older ourselves we do not miss the youth in the face opposite; leastways, I don't in Maggie's," said the farmer simply.

"Perhaps that is because you see the youth still there; you remember it, you see. But if you had grown old far apart it would perhaps have been different."

"Maybe," replied Mr. Stiste, doubtfully, apparently a little out of his depths. "But come, it is time I was back at the farm. Perhaps you would like a bit of breakfast with us, sir? There will be but little doing in the village yet a while, and my wife will be glad to see you."

The stranger accepted the proffered hospitality and he and the farmer turned away together.

Maggie proved quite as hospitable as her husband had predicted, and when breakfast had been partaken of and Mr. Stisted had gone out to his work, the stranger found himself lingering on still, talking to sweet, placid faced Margaret Stisted. He had half a mind to ask her about this village tragedy that was occupying his mind this morning; but "better not" he decided, "better wait now." He had waited so long that a little longer could not make much difference.

So he just dawdled on about the farm and the pleasant farm garden long enough for the day's work to be well in hand, and then he wished his hostess "good by" and with quick impatient steps took his way to the village.

Once there he walked straight to the hospital across the meadows that lead up from Bythorp village to Bythorp [illegible]

[illegible] Only to a [illegible] roadside [illegible] of a sudden to be darkened in the heaven, the earth to have lost the beauty of a [illegible]

"Helen!" he cried in tones of anguish wrung from a [illegible] heart, but did not hear.

She saw him, of course, for she was looking at him wonderingly [illegible] who [illegible] Bythrop. But that was all. The dust from [illegible] the [illegible] air for a moment, and when it cleared [illegible]

"Who is it?" he questioned when he could command his voice, turning to a villager standing by his side.

"You lady? Lady Edmestle. She's going to Lundum. She was a daughter of the old Squire's," he added, "and married Sir Wilfred [illegible]"

"Has she been long-married?"

"Let us see now. 'Twill be fourteen years the coming August, for it was the same day, I mind well, as my youngest was born. Eh, but she has bonnie children," he murmured as he turned away.

And Robert Sutton found himself alone in the bright early sun. Scarcely four hours since he saw it rise for what was to have been the happiest day of his life, and already the end had come. He waited thus, reviewing this ending to his romance, for a few seconds, thinking of the sunny-haired, broken-hearted girl who had clung to him those long, long years ago, the tears streaming down her cheeks.

"I believe in you, Robert. Whatever the world may say I believe in you. Only swear to me that you will credit nothing against me that you may hear, for I will be true to you. And oh, Robert, directly you are free, come straight to me. I will wait, though it be for years.

And he had kissed her, and sworn it. Now the oath was fulfilled—his part of it at least; he had come back.

Then, those few brief seconds over, he crossed the little dusty road, passed the village school, whence issued the sound of many children's voices singing the morning hymn and entered the low cottage opposite and knelt with a great tearless sob at the feet of an old blind woman, who putting out a withered hand and stroking softly the curls so thickly strewn with gray, murmured—

"My son, my son! Have you come home then, at last? Ah! it has been weary waiting? but I have lived on, for I knew the truth must be known some day, and then you would come home."

Dr Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" perfectly and perminently cures those diseases peculiar to females. It is tonic and nervine, effectually allaying and curing those sickening sensations that effect the stomach and heart through reflex action. The back-ache and the "dragging down" sensations all disappear under the streangthing effects of this great restorative. By druggists.

The Hanging of Guiteau.

Some of the newspapers of the country, in speaking of the hanging of Guiteau, in case the sentence of the law is carried out, make a mistake in stating that Captain C. E. Henry, the marshal of the district will boss the job. Under the present law the warden of the jail is not as formerly, under the direction of the marshal, but is an officer of the court, and chargeable with carrying out the law. When the case is finally determined by the court, in the general term, if the judgment below should not be reversed, the clerk will issue the death warrant, and at that time what is known as the death-watch will be set. The prisoner will be continually under the eyes of the officers. It should not be inferred that he is not watched now, for, from the time of his conviction (and in cases where there is the least suspicion that the prisoner will harm himself from the time of commitment) every prisoner convicted of a capital offence is under continual serveillance. In case of Guiteau, his cell is located so close to the gate of the south wing that the least noise made by him can be heard and he is seen very often by some of the guards. Although the scaffold is in place, and the ropes, the cords for pinioning the arms and legs, and the black cap, are at hand in the deputy warden's office, there will be no preparations made for the execution until the warden is officially notified by the death warrant. Only a few minutes notice is required by the warden but of course, some days if not a few weeks, will given the prisoner to make his preparations. Since the conviction (and even before it,) offers have flown on Gen. Crocker, the warden, tendering ropes of various styles. One person purposes to furnish a rope made of red, white and blue strings, and another has proposed to furnish a new device in the style of a garroting chain. It has been suggested, too, that neither rope nor chain should be used for the purpose, and that for once the favorite line used for horse thieves, a grape-vine, should be tried. Neither a fine rope made for the purpose or a vine it is safe to say, will be used, but one will be [illegible]

[illegible] and photograph business is good, and I am well and happy."

AN INTERESTING FACT.

In France, all patent medicines must be endorsed by an official board of physicians before they can be sold. In lieu of such a law in America, the people have resolved themselves into a National committee which has endorsed Swayne's Ointment for allaying the itching accompanying the Piles, as the only reliable remedy in the market. Its a poor rule that won't work both ways. 46w4

Plain Talk.

Mrs. Lucy Stone Blackwell talks plainly to the ladies. She says "the waste of time, the waste of strength and the waste of health which women accept on account of fashion is appalling. The shoes of women have pegs for heels, half way under the foot, on which they walk with a tottering, hobbling gait, like Chinese women. Frills, fringes, cords, straps, buttons, pullbacks and flounces, supposed to be ornamental, but which have no other use, burden and deform even our young girls. If the rising generation is to [illegible] there must be a return to the simpler as well as more becoming styles."

There is More Strength restoring power in a bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic than in a bushel of malt or a gallon of milk. This explains why invalids find it such a wonderful invigorant for mind and body. See other column. 41m1

THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1882.

THE SUN for 1882 will make its fifteenth annual revolution under the present management, shining, as always, for all, big and little, mean and gracious, contented and unhappy, Republican and Democratic, depraved and virtuous, intelligent and obtuse. The Sun's light is for mankind and womankind of every sort; but its genial warmth is for the good, while it pours hot discomfort on the blistering backs of the persistently wicked.

The Sun of 1868 was a newspaper of a new kind. It discarded many of the forms, and a multitude of the superfluous words and phrases of ancient journalism. It undertook to report in a fresh, succinct, unconventional way all the news of the world, omitting no event of human interest, and commenting upon affairs with the fearlessness of absolute independence. The success of this experiment was the success of The Sun. It effected a permanent change in the style of American newspapers. Every important journal established in this country in the dozen years past has been modelled after The Sun. Every important journal already existing has been modified and bettered by the force of the Sun's example.

The Sun of 1882 will be the same outspoken, truthtelling, and interesting newspaper.

By a liberal use of the means which an abundant prosperity affords, we shall make it better than ever before.

We shall print all the news, putting it in readable shape, and measuring its importance, not by the traditional yardstick, but by its real interest to the people. Distance from Printing House Square is not the first consideration with The Sun. Whenever anything happens worth reporting we get the particulars whether it happens in Brooklyn or in Bokhara.

In politics we have decided opinions; and are accustomed to express them in language that can be understood. We say what we think about men and events. That habit is the only secret of success of The Sun's political course.

The Weekly Sun gathers into eight pages the best matter of the seven daily issues. An Agricultural Department of unequalled merit, full market reports and a liberal proportion of literary scientific and domestic intelligence complete The Weekly Sun, and make it the best newspaper for the farmer's household that was ever printed.

Who does not know and read and like The Sunday Sun, each number of which is a Golconda of interesting literature, with the best poetry of the day, prose every line worth reading, news, humor—matter enough to fill a good sized book, and infinitely more varied and entertaining than any book, big or little?

If our idea of what a newspaper should be pleases you, send for The Sun.

Our terms are as follows:

For the daily Sun, a four page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, post paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents per month, or $7 70 a year, postage paid.

The Sunday edition of The Sun is also furnished separately at $1.50 a year, postage paid.

The price of the Weekly Sun, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free,

THE superior court of New York has recently decided that, under the law as it now is, boards of excise in this state have absolute control over licenses, and that they may revoke a license before the licensee is convicted by a court of violating the excise law. THE 24th day of April is set down as the time for hearing the bill of exceptions in the Guiteau case. The bill makes a printed pamphlet of thirty-nine pages. There are thirty-two exceptions as to matters occurring up to the time the case was given to the jury, and exceptions also to the rulings of the court denying a new trial, and overruling the motion in arrest for judgment. In the charge of Judge Cox thirty-six clauses are made subjects of exception.

THE right to peacefully assemble and talk over grievances is a boon the constitution of the United States grants its citizens. The agitation attracted the attention of England and our government has been notified that all American citizens who have been arrested in Ireland as "suspects" have been released but three.

THE question of free canals is now before the people for their consideration. The steps necessary to make an amendment to the state constitution having been acquiesced in by the legislature it will be voted upon by the people at the state election in November. People living along the line of the canal generally favor free canals, while people remote from it look upon the amendment as one tended to enrich and increase business only in that part through which canals pass. It is thought the amendment will be adopted, but not without some opposition. Senator Winslow of this district voted against the resolution.

MUSEUM OF ANTIQUITY.

Mr. F. O. Lloyd, a recent graduate of Madison University, Hamilton, N. Y., is in Fulton canvassing for a very popular and well known work entitled "Museum of Antiquity."

C. H. Sims, D. D., L. L. D., chancellor of Syracuse University says:

I have examined somewhat carefully the "Museum of Antiquity," and find it indeed a Museum into which is gathered a vast fund of information concerning the life, manners and customs of ancient nations. It is the book that must be at once instructive and delightfully interesting to all intelligent readers; a good book to have in any home, picturing as it does the every day life of those great peoples who built the early civilizations of our world. Indirectly it teaches the truth and value of God's inspired book.

E. Dodge, D.D., L. L. D., president of Madison University, says:

I have no hesitation in commending the 'Museum of Antiquity' as one of the finest works with which I am acquainted.

Edward North, professor of Greek, Hamilton college, Clinton, says:

Beyond any question the Museum of Antiquity is a very valuable book, as valuable as it is beautiful and attractive.

President W. H. H. Adams, D. D., of Illinois Wesleyan University, says:

The engravings in this work are well worth the entire cost of the book. Every one interested in the study of ancient life and art cannot afford to be without this book. 46t1

A Startling Disclosure.

A startling disclosure was developed at Gilberts Mills one day last week by Mr. Ross. He was tearing out the inside of a house just north of the store where he found, between the chamber floor and ceiling, the remains of an infant child which evidently had lain there for years. It retained its form perfectly, but was so dry and crisp as to break with handling. There are various opinions as to when and by whom it was placed there. [Phœnix Register.

Disclosed.

GILBERTS MILLS, April 6, 1882.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE FULTON TIMES:

An article in the Oswego Times of April 5, taken from the Phœnix Register states that the remains of an infant child were discovered by Mr. Ross while tearing out the inside of a house belonging to Mrs. Evans, of Gilberts Mills. The story has had a wide circulation and has gained considerable credence. The fact also that three medical gentlemen of some note have examined the (critter) and all agreed in pronouncing it the remains of an embryo child, has given color to the report and helped to establish and confirm it. But a close inspection of the object reveals the fact that it is covered with hair from top to toe. This we think explodes the idea of its being the remains of anything human, and strengthens the probability that it is nothing more than the mummylike remains of some little Tabby, doubtless owned by one of the illustrious families of Hoose and Brown, who years ago occupied the house. WHAT A GERMAN NEWSPAPER SAYS.

We Germans are in general not inclined to believe at once in great announcements and puffs; we are rather suspicious, and often with perfect right, of exaggerations and humbugs. Our motto is "what the eye sees the heart believes" and we therefore desire to see and examine ourselves before we speak about things and praise them. This was our idea when we heard and read so much about Dr. S. A. Richmond's justly celebrated World's Epileptic Institute, and we therefore sent a reporter to the building. We are now able to give the best information on the subject, based on a personal review and examination of the premises.

Our reporter found Dr Richmond in his office. The doctor kindly received him, and not only answered all his questions, but showed and explained everything about the place to him. His office is on the first floor of the building and its walls are covered with thousands of photographs of gentlemen and ladies restored to health by the use of Samaritan Nervine, among whom our reporter recognized many of his own countrymen, and its glass cases contain innumerable certificates of cures and letters in praise of this world famous remedy. About ten years ago Dr. Richmond came to St. Joseph. He was then a poor young man, with but little money, and no friends to assist him. He rented a small office on Francis street, and commenced the struggle for success single handed and alone. He has achieved a great triumph, in the face of stubborn opposition on every hand, and is to-day one of the wealthiest men in our midst. This fact alone is amply sufficient to show the merits of the valuable preparation, even though there were no other sources from which to procure valid and reliable testimony. But besides the money which this great remedy has been the means of bringing to the inventor, the doctor receives daily the blessings of thousands of patients [illegible]

The temperance prayer meeting will be conducted next Sunday afternoon at 3:30 by Rev. G. W. Hughes. Rooms over Woodin's hardware store, First street. The public are invited.

Wm. E. Taylor has returned to Fulton from an extended trip throughout the west in the interest of Taylor Bros. & Co., with orders for a large quantity of their wares. Their knives are known and recognized as the standard of excellence in the United States and Canadas. Mr. Taylor also received several orders for his newly patented machine for the manufacture of paper.

The factory team became frightened Thursday while standing in front of the St. Louis mills and dashed up the street and across the canal bridge. As they passed Hubbard's Bazar, a clerk named Back rushed out and mounting the rear of the truck, ran forward and secured the lines, bringing them to a standstill in front of the Clark house. It was a clever piece of work and the driver, Mr. Thomas Lambert, rewarded the brave boy.

The Oswego Express says in a few weeks the day will come round again when we scatter flowers upon the graves of those who lost their lives in the defense of their country. The practice always has been to put a bunch of flowers upon each grave. In a few days they wither, decay and disfigure, rather than ornament the grave. We have seen a good suggestion in the Auburn Advertiser and call attention to the subject here. It is to plant a living flower upon each grave either in the earth or [illegible]. It will live and be a beauty [illegible] the entire season. We think the [illegible] a good one. It would be [illegible] trophie and a real decoration [illegible] of those we love.

The steamer VanDoren has commenced making her regular daily trips between Fulton and Syracuse. She leaves Gilbert Bros., dock at 5:30 a. m.

The young people of Zion church met at the rectory last evening and perfected an organization for social intercourse and parish work. The meetings are to be continued.

Miss Emma Jennings will spend the summer with friends in New York city. Her time will be occupied in perfecting herself in music in which she is already highly accomplished.

The Universalists of Phœnix have organized a society and will be presided over by Rev A U Hutchins of this village. Mr Hutchins is building up this denomination in this section.

Zion church will be open next Monday evening at 7,30 to enable people to transact business in regard to renting or changing seats. A committee will be present to attend to all who may call.

N. H. Gilbert was last night confirmed by the village Board as chief of the Fulton fire department making his sixth consecutive term as chief. Mr. I. Darrow was chosen as 1st assistant and S. B. Whitaker as 2d assistant.

Chas VanBuren was attacked with paralysis last Tuesday while at work on his farm, rendering his right side useless. Dr. D. Pardee attends him. We are pleased to announce that his condition is not critical and a full and speedy recovery is predicted.

The will of the late Dr. Stephen Pardee has been admitted to probate. It bears date Feb. 21, 1879, and was executed on his 70th birthday. The property is generously divided among the surviving members of his family. Mr. Wm B. Howard and Giles Piper are the executors.

A party of friends were royally entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Wm Dyson at their pleasant home on Broadway, Monday evening, Singing, enlivening games and social intercourse occupied the time, supplimented by a palatable and richly spread collation. The worthy host and hostess were the recipients of happy congratulations from their guests for the superior entertainment.

A memorial was tendered Easter Sunday at Zion church by the members of the parish to the memory of the late Hiram Bradway in the shape of an altar cross, ante pendium for electurn, and frontal for altar. The Rector, Rev E. Moyses, paid a well merited tribute to his memory and recalled the fact that for five and forty years he was an honored member of Zion church.

McKiernan & Betts have rented the entire Cole building on First street and have fitted up and stocked it with a first class line of wagons, carriages, and all manner of agricultural implements and farmers' supplies. They are able to duplicate any part of the myriad of mowers, reapers, plows and rolling stock now in use. A walk through the building will satisfy one as to the magnitude their business has attained. Farmers are especially invited to examine their stock of plows, harrows, etc.

The site for the erection of the Stephens Opera House has been changed to the ground occupied by the Cornell and Rowlee livery stables, at the east end of the Townsend building. The change is in every particular an enhancing one. The upright portion of the Rowlee livery will be removed next to and adjoining Mrs. Jenning's millinery and fitted up for stores. The rear portion, or stable part, will be placed to the rear of these stores and separated from them by a carriage shed. An office will be built on Cayuga street belonging to the stables. Between office and opera house will be driveway to the stable. There will be a roadway to the stables from Second St., also. The whole plan is admirable and will add to the architectural beauty of the street.

Taylor Bros. & Co. are making preparations to enlarge the forging room of their knife factory. The foundation wall is to be raised three feet and the roof six feet. New trip hammers are being purchased and another grind stone will be placed in the polishing room. James Fanning has the contract for the enlargement of the building and work will be pushed as soon as possible. It is not surprising to see this live firm extending their works.

The comprehensive stock of Ready Made Clothing for Men, Boys and Children exhibited by the Famous Opera Clothing House, 2 & 3, Weiting Block, Syracuse, whose Ad. is found in another column, is worthy of the attention of every buyer of Ready Made Custom Clothing. Messrs. VanFrankenberg & Co., who occupy the handsomest double stores in the city of Syracuse, display an unequalled selection of unexampled styles of first-class garments, which for beauty, comfort and convenience excel, and attract multitudes of customers to their stores. The proprietors of The Famous, sell their clothing on a margin of small profits and receive fresh invoices almost every day and constantly change the character of their stock, as many of the novelties are sold the moment they are shown. In conclusion, let us say, that if you trade with The Famous, No. 2 & 3, Weiting Block, you deal with gentlemen with whom it is a pleasure to deal and who would under no consideration leave the path of integrity.

INDUSTRIAL INSURANCE.

AFTER PAYING PREMIUMS REGULARLY.

A case of importance relative to the new method of insurance known as the industrial plan, wherein the premiums are paid in small weekly installments, was tried yesterday before civil justice Steckler. Suit was brought by John Walsh, of 24 Monroe street, as the administrator of his daughter, Anne, aged 19, who died recently, against the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, to secure the payment of a policy of insurance upon her life. The evidence showed that the weekly installment of premiums were regularly paid, and that proof of death was duly furnished. The defense was substantially that she averred that she had never suffered with any scrofulous ailment, whereas the proof of death, including the physician's certificate tended to show that she had. OBITUARY.

Geo Rice, for many years a resident of this village, died in Volney Friday.

Edson, a fifteen year old son of Nelson and Sarah Frost died April 7, at his home three miles north of Fulton. Funeral was held Sunday at 11 a. m. The remains were interred at Granby Centre.

Mrs. Lucinda Hubbard, widow of Ransford Hubbard, died in this village Monday at 2 a. m., at the residence of her sister Mrs. S. C. Howland, of paralysis of the bowels. Her age was 68. She had been an invalid for years. Funeral services will be held to-day at the M. E. church, at South Scriba, preceded by a short service of prayer at her late residence in Fulton. She will be interred beside her husband at South Scriba.

Mary A. wife of John Hall died suddenly at her home in New York last Wednesday aged 40 years. Mr. and Mrs. Hall were for years residents of Fulton, Mrs. Hall being a daughter of Patrick Murphy of this village. The remains were brought to Fulton accompanied by the husband, Mr. J. C. Murphy and Eugene Sullivan. Funeral services were held from the church of the Immaculate Conception Friday, attended by a multitude of friends.

Trustees Proceedings.

Fulton, April 11, 1882

Board met pursuant to adjournment.

Present, a full board, except Trustee Johnson. Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

A communication was received from the fire department nominating N. H. Gilbert for chief engineer, Isaac Darrow 1st, ast. S. B. Whitaker 2d ast. The report was accepted and filed.

Mr. Hare appeared and asked that Harrison street be opened and continued. Referred to street committee.

That the cross walk on Oneida street be changed to run from the south corner of First street diagonally north to the corner near the post office.

The bond of the street commissioner was accepted and ordered filed.

On motion there was assessed the sum of two days labor upon the highways upon each male inhabitant of the age of 21 years, and the street commissioner was instructed to collect the same.

Committee on Parks reported that the walks through the park be extended to ten feet in width, and a walk constructed from the band stand to the cross walk from the Seminary; also that the band house be repaired; also that a number of trees be placed around the triangle. The report was accepted and the committee was instructed to make the necessary improvements.

The following bills were reported by the finance committee and orders drawn for the amounts:

D. Pardee, board of health	$102 00
Thos VanBuren, for streets	4 31
Board of Health	13 00

The committee reported that the petition of Mr. Stephens be accepted and that he be granted the use of the court room.

Adjourned to meet Tuesday April 18, 1882, at 7:30 p. m. L. H. Patterson, Clerk.

REMOVED.

Ingamells has removed his livery stable to Oswego Falls. He has a number of good roadsters that any one can drive and first-class carriages and hacks. Give him a call. 46w2

William Sylvester is a new clerk in C. P. Tucker & Son's grocery.

Mrs Maggie Cullen is in Syracuse today attending the spring opening at McCarthy's.

Master Charlie Tucker and Lyn Palmer have gone to test their fortunes in the "great west."

The Rochester Express says Mr N. H. Gilbert of Fulton was made a 32d degree mason in that city.

The contents of the Boston Clothing Store will be sold Friday morning, April 14 at 10 o'clock by Deputy Sheriff Hulett at the store.

The first boat passing through Fulton was the E. J. Dickinson of Oswego, Capt. Wm. Slattery, with 170,000 feet of lumber for Albany.

A party of serenaders from Oswego Falls have made numerous Fulton friends the recipients of some choice musical selections during the past week.

The subject for bate de at the lyceum meeting Friday evening is:

"Resolved, That the prosperity of our nation will be largely enhanced by granting the right of suffrage to women."

The Genesee Mills of this village are daily sending shorts and other feed to Oswego. This is rather strange considering the reputation Oswego has for milling and reminds one of that old saying, "Sending coals to New Castle."

A valuable carpet was stolen from a clothes line Monday evening from the premises of Mr John Campbell, in the Upper Landing. But part of it was taken If the thief or thieves will call around they may have the remaining breadth as it is of no use to the owner.

Deputy Sheriff Hulett had a warrant to remove a refractory tenant near Bundys Crossing Friday. The neighbors say it was in every particular equal to a circus, as the acrobatic evolutions of tenant and contents were never equalled by Dan Rice in his palmiest days.

Resolutions of Respect.

At a meeting of Hiram Lodge No. 144 held at the Masonic hall Monday evening April 3d, 1882, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, It has pleased the Grand Master of the universe to remove from our midst one of our oldest and most esteemed brothers and companions and transfer him to that Celestial Lodge above "where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest;"

Whereas, In the death of brother Pardee we recognize the Almighty's hand and bow with humble submission to his will, still we feel the heavy blow we have sustained and will ever strive to emulate the high Masonic standard of our deceased brother who has gone before us, therefore be it

Resolved, In the death of Brother Pardee we have lost one of our brilliant masonic lights, a brother wise in counsel, faithful in duty, a fearless advocate and supporter of the ancient and honorable principles of our order, a true brother upon whose arm we could always lean in trouble and whose ear was always open to the cry of the poor and afflicted.

Resolved, That while his kindly smile will greet us no more on earth, and his clear judgment and marked executive ability safely guide us through the path ever cross the threshold of life, we will ever try to emulate his virtues, and square our lives by the upright mould he has left us by his life and example.

Resolved, That in honor of his memory this Lodge be draped in mourning for the next 30 days and that these resolutions be printed in the village paper and a copy furnished the friends of the deceased.

FULTON SAVINGS BANK.

At a meeting of the trustees of the Fulton Savings Bank held March 30, 1882, the following resolution was unanimously adopted.

Resolved, That we have learned with the deepest sorrow of the death of another member of this board Dr. Stephen Pardee: that we sadly realize not only the great loss to this board; but also truly feel that our community has sustained a much greater calmity; while we shall be deprived of his wise counsels at our monthly meetings; the community will miss his experience and skillful practice as a physician and kindly offices as a citizen.

A. Howe, Sec'y.
W. D. Patterson, V. Pres.

At the last regular meeting of Steamer Company No. 1, held at their rooms April 4th, 1882, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, Death has removed from among us Aaron G. DeGraw one of the youngest, most enthusiastic and active members of this company, one who was ever prompt in the line of duty, and who by his many excellent qualifications had endeared himself to every member of the fire department, therefore,

Resolved, That in his death this company have sustained an irreparable loss.

Resolved, That we tender to the family of the deceased our heartfelt sympathy in their hour of sorrow.

Resolved, That the session room of the company be draped in mourning for the period of 30 days.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to the family of the deceased, and a copy furnished to each of the village papers for publication.

Oswego Falls Reading Union.

To the Editor of The Fulton Times:

The Oswego Falls Literary Union gave their closing entertainment last week Tuesday evening at the residence of Mr. R. P. Alger. A program of unusual interest had been prepared by the members of the society and the house was crowded with guests. Instead of meeting the familiar faces of his literary friends, your correspondent found a motley throng of strangers, home celebrites and distinguished foreigners, among whom were King Cetawayo and Oscar Wilde. A bewildering group of little folks gathered around a charming copy of Tom Thumb and wife, and a real "Pepita" of Dodge Club fame attracted universal attention. Mrs. Jarley was there with her wax-works. Martha Washington in her snow-white cap, the sweet face of Sister Agnes, so long exiled from the world, and gentle Aunt Ruth with her musical thees and thous were like the three graces and formed a striking contrast to the picture of savage life at their right; an Indian chief in all his paint and feathers, but, whether he was the late lamented Spotted Tail or one of the Zunis lately seen in Boston or one of our own "reserved" Onondagas, it was impossible to discover, unless the presence of his squaw and her familiar basket of bead-work revealed his neighboring home. Many others there were which we would like to mention, but refreshments were served and we found Semanthy by our side and forgot all else in listening to her doleful account of Josiah, and as we listened a white robed fairy pointed to the passing night and with a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Alger, this strange and motley crowd slipped out of sight. Let us kick at the man who is down.

With a coat out at elbows, a horrid old hat,
And trousers that bag at the knees,
With your back rather humped and your pocket-book flat,
And a collar that's not just the cheese,
It's strange how your clothing will weaken men's eyes,
And they look somewhere else with a frown;
Or after long study, they just recognize
The face of the man who is down.
Hurrah, all ye snobbish from country or town,
Let us cut the poor chap who is down.

Men will laugh at your joking and call you a wit
When you dress in the top of the style,
Feeling proud when you deign at their table to sit,
And will greet every word with a smile;
But a short-waisted coat spoils a long-waisted joke,
Long hair may obscure a bright crown;
None will break into laughter who find you are broke
But will freeze out the man who is down.
Hurrah, ye time-servers from country and town,
Let us freeze out the man who is down.

Once the butcher and baker and candlestick maker
Would urge you to come in and buy;
But now not even the sad undertaker
Looks you over with a business eye,
And nobody cares if you live or you die,
Run away or get married or drown:
But all have some dirt or some mud to let fly
And bury you when you are down.
Hurrah, all my comrades let's drive him to drown,
And bury him now he is down.

When we know this wolf-nature of all mankind
That will press to our lips sorrows cup,
Let us not sit here weeping until we are blind,
But with the possession keep up.
Resolve to die game, if the game is to die,
Boldly wink when dame fortune doth frown
Make the funeral lively for those standing by,
And expect but a kick when we're down.
Hurrah, my bold fellows let fate on us frown,
We deserve all our kicks if we're down.

A REMARKABLE COINCIDENCE.

It is a matter of journalistic record, that some years since, a schooner set sail from Baltimore, having on board a crew of thirteen men. By a most singular freak of nature, the entire force was attacked by a skin disease, which manifested itself in large ulcerated sores on the arms and hands, wholly incapacitating the men from duty. The result was that the vessel was towed back to the city where the men were placed in the hospital. Moral! Had Swayne's Ointment for skin diseases been used in the first place, the crew would have recovered in from 12 to 24 hours. 46w4

A Hungry Fraud.

As a gentleman was walking up Broadway his attention was attracted by a man ahead of him, about whom clung an air of shabby gentility. Suddenly the man sprang forward and seized a piece of bread that was lying on the walk. The morsels he thurst into his mouth and crushed between his teeth like a famished wolf. The gentleman like others familiar with life in New York, had learned to turn a deaf ear upon beggars, but this spectacle went into his heart. He could not bear to see a person actually suffering from hunger and taking a coin from his pocket accosted the man. The poor wight looked at him in a dazed sort of a way. "Here my man," said the gentleman, "take this and get something to eat." The man seized the coin and dashed away in the direction of a cheap eating-house. The gentleman continued on his way, with a feeling of satisfaction at the thought he had helped a man who was really needy. A few blocks above he stepped into a mercantile establishment to see about some business matters. He related the incident in the street, and one of the persons with whom he was talking, remarked "that man must make from $5 or $10 a day." Then it was explained that the man was a fraud. He stopped in front of the establishment one day to pick up a piece of bread, and the clerks presented quite a sum of money to him. A day or two afterward he was seen doing the same thing in the vicinity and his trick was exposed. He carried the bread in his pocket, and tossed it on the walk to pick up again. The gentleman came down Broadway meditating on the deceits of this world, and when he reached his office told how he had been imposed upon. A gentleman present said a lady friend saw the same man greedily devour an apple core that he had found in the gutter. She called him across the street and gave him fifty cents.

GENTS—I desire to express to you my thanks for your wonderful Hop Bitters. I was troubled with dyspepsia for five years previous to commencing the use of your Hop Bitters some six months ago. My cure has been wonderful. I am pastor of the First Methodist Church of this place, and my whole congregation can testify to the great virtue of your bitters. Very Respectfully

The President's Romance.

When a young lawyer unknown to fame, Chester A. Arthur happened to attend service at the old church of St. John's in this city. There he heard for the first time the rich soprano voice of Ella Herndon as the notes of "Venite" rang through the shabby old church. She was the daughter of a naval officer who won distinction by his services in the Mexican war, and commanded an expedition up the Amazon. But his crowning deed of valor was upon the ill-starred steamer, Central America, that foundered near Havana with several hundred persons and more than a million in gold. By his heroic efforts about half the passengers were saved, and faithful to his trust, the gallant captain went down with his ship which he refused to desert. The echo of the sweet voice still lingered [illegible] after her great sorrow he sought the acquaintance [illegible]

[illegible] whole of his thigh-bone, and the suffering man looked forward, not without apparent reason, to death as his only deliverer. His family physician refused to amputate the limb—asserting that the operation would kill the patient on the spot. Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., who was consulted, held a different opinion, and amputated the limb. The Doctor then administered freely his great Blood Specific FAVORITE REMEDY to afford tone and strength to the system, prevent the return of the disease and Mr. Ellsworth remains to this day in the bloom of health. This gentleman's disease was the offspring of foul blood, and Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY purified the blood and restored to him the power once more to enjoy his life. Are you suffering from any disease traceable to the same cause? Try Favorite Remedy. Your druggist has it. One Dollar a bottle. Bear in mind the proprietor's name and address: Dr David Kennedy, Rondout, New York.

Pass not by, buy and try;
Candies, toys, cigars and vases,
Pass not by, buy and try.
Fishing poles and tackle new,
Fine as ever spread to view,
And a five cent counter too,
Pass not by, buy and try.
Croquet sets and sets of dishes,
Pass not by, buy and try;
Potato bugs for luring fishes,
Pass not by, buy and try;
Deep Rock Water, cheap gold rings,
All the fruit each season brings,
And a thousand other things,
Pass not by, buy and try.

[illegible] will remain so for a comparatively short time only on a traveled road, as the accumulating dust and dirt soon prevent free drainage. Water should not be allowed to accumulate at any time, or for any length of time, on the road-bed or in the side ditches. The road-bed can not be kept dry with stagnant water in the side ditches. These ditches should never be so deep as to cause a wagon to tip over if the wheels on one side should accidentally run into it. If the grade is such as to require a deeper ditch it should be in the form of an underdrain. A three-inch tile laid through the centre of the road-bed in the direction of its length, at a depth of three feet below the surface, with an outlet every forty rods, no matter through what soil they run. In spring and fall, and in open winter, the benefit of a center underdrain is beyond question. The inclination should be one to 125 in the direction of its length to secure effectual drainage. A similar drain under each side ditch would be money well invested.

In most soils it is a detriment to roads to use the surface soil in their construction. It would be better to scrape it off to be used to fill up hollows, or if the country is level, it had better be used by the adjoining land-owners as a top-dressing on their lands. Almost any other use that can be made of it would be better than to have it on the road to form mud with every shower. In grading a road, and after it has received the desired convex form, the bed should be thoroughly plowed a number of times in order to thoroughly mix the material and have it settle evenly. This is an important feature, though seldom practiced. Gravel is the best dressing for country roads, if of uniform material, free from soil, though a light mixture of clay helps to bind it. All stones larger than a hen's egg should be carefully removed. If on a much traveled road, the gravel should be at least one foot deep in the center, carefully leveled off by means of shovel and scraper. Rolling with heavy rollers is very beneficial. If the gravel is put on in fall, the rains will help to settle it more effectually than if put on in summer, when it often remains in a loose state for months.

Limestone or flintstone chips, cobble or large stones of any kind are unfit for top dressing of roads, to fill shallow holes or ruts. They can be used by first excavating the road bed from one and a half to two feet deep in the center, gradually rising toward the ditches, this can be filled up with stones; the larger ones set on edge, until the bed has the desired form, when the upper layer should be broken up fine, the largest not to exceed two inches in diameter. A thin dressing of gravel may be added, and the whole thoroughly rolled with a heavy roller. This is one way of using stone in road-making, though in most cases too expensive for country roads. Large stones scattered through a road bed are sure to come to the surface in time by the frost raising them, and allowing sand or soil to deposit itself beneath; or if struck on one side by a wheel, the opposite side is raised, and in time it is on the surface, an impediment to every passing vehicle. Every time a wheel strikes a stone it suffers to the same extent as if struck with a sledge, to say nothing of the extra force required to carry the wheel over the obstruction. Remove all stones from the roadway.

Queer Happenings.

There is a bachelor In Ipswich, Mass., eighty-five years of age, who has worn the same hat for over sixty years. He has never used anything but peat for fires and he burns tallow dips for light.

A man at Pioche, Nevada, gave a poor family an order on a grocer for goods to the amount of $25, to be charged to him. The bill rendered read "$10 in cash and $15 for wines and chocolate."

In splitting the butt of a tree into fence rails, Ephraim Alston, of Newlin's township, N. C., discovered twenty-six large gold coins. They were concealed in an inch and a half augur hole, over which wood had formed six inches thick. The coins are supposed to have been put there in the war of 1812.

A young man in Chicago stood a breach of promise suit rather than marry his sweetheart. His only defense was that the girl had depreciated in value, her face being pitted by an attack of small-pox. He declared that neither law nor honor required him to keep his promise under such circumstances.

Four years ago a Texas farmer declared his intention of making one opossum hunt net him $10,000 in less than ten years. The meat and pelts of that hunt were sold for ninety-five dollars. This was invested in twelve calves, which at the end of two years were sold; the proceeds were reinvested in 100 calves, which now, at the end of four years from the first investment are valued at $10 each.

As the earth was being thrown upon the grave of an opera singer at Richmond a succession of trills and warbles were heard from a mocking bird perched in a tree near by. The bird continued its song until the minister pronounced the benediction. As the mourners filed away the bird flew back into its cage, the door of which had been left open, in the window of a house near by.

"Don't stop chopping away at the branches," said an old woodman to his son, "lay your ax at the root of the tree." And, like a dutiful boy, he did as he was told. He laid the ax at the foot of the tree and then went off for a day's fishing.

Hannah Jane!

Poor, old man! he walked feebly and disconsolately about the leaf-strewn cemetery and paused now and then with a weak, irresolute air of uncertainty that betokened a failing and troubled mind; he seemed to be looking for some one or something, and yet he did not stay his footsteps at any of the graves, and he passed the costliest monuments without a glance. Presently he retraced his way, and, seeking here and there among the unmarked graves in the same listless, dazed way, approached a laborer in one of the avenues, and asked, tremulously:

"Can you tell me where Hannah Jane is buried, my friend?"

The man looked up roughly, and if the speaker had been arrayed in fine broadcloth with a weed on his silk hat he would have given him an ungracious answer; but he saw a thin old face set in a frame of white hair, a bent and shrunken form in humble garb, and he answered respectfully:

"Who did you say, sir—wot name?"

"Hannah Jane; she's my wife, you know, and because of my son they buried her here instead of down in our country graveyard, where we used to live years ago. My son's a big man here—a business man—and he gave us a lot worth two hundred dollars to bury her in. I bought a Virginny rose and a sweet briar and some sweet-williams and planted on it; mebbe you'd know it now."

"I don't know as I do," said the workman gently; "but if you think you can tell me about where the grave is, I'll try and help ye."

They walked up and down for a little, and then the old man stopped beside a splendid white marble shaft that reared its fair proportions far above the neighboring monuments, and shaking his head feebly, said, with the old irresolution:

"It's very strange, an' I can't make it out at all—mebbe I'm gettin' old; but I was sure this was the spot."

The workman put up his hand to hide a smile.

"That 'ere grave don't look like as it ever had sweet-william planted on it, does it, old man? I'm favorable to them flowers myself. Hallo! Wot did you say the name was?

"Hannah Jane," answered the old man reverently lifting his hat from his white hairs, "and wherever you are, my dear, God bless you!" he added, looking up to Heaven.

"Well, now," said the workman, getting down on his knees to look at the lettering on the bran new shaft, "this beats me! Here's a H. and a J-a-n-e; what's the rest of the name, old man! Foster?"

"Yes, yes! answered the old man, eagerly; then a look of bitter disappointment crept over his face. "You don't mean it," he said, slowly, "they've never gone and put their great monument over Hannah Jane, she that wanted birds and flowers and the blessed air of heaven above her and the sun shinin' and the dew fallin' on the spot where she slept; she that built a ladder to the skies in good deeds and was humbler than a leetle child, and would raythur have had a board at her head, down in the old graveyard, with plain Hannah Jane on it, carved by me? It don't seem right, that's all!"

He went away sadly and lingeringly and he never came back, but the man he talked to planted sweet-williams and rose slips on the grave, and it looks strange to see them tangled in wild profusion about the stately marble, and whenever he sees a funeral stop near that spot, he looks to see if another grave is dug there, "for some day," he says to himself while he works, "my old man will come back to his Hannah Jane."

SAMARITAN
NERVINE!

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Epileptic Fits, Spasms, Convulsions, St Vitus Dance, Vertigo, Insanity, Apoplexy, Paralysis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all Nervous Diseases. This infallible remedy will positively eradicate every species of Nervous Derangement, and drive them away from whence they came, never to return again. It utterly destroys the germs of disease by neutralizing the hereditary taint or poison in the system, and thoroughly eradicate the disease, and utterly destroys the cause.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Female Weakness, General Debility, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Painful Menstration, Ulceration of the Uterus, Internal Heat, Gravel, Inflamation of the Bladder. Irritability of the Bladder. For Wakefulness at Night, there is no better remedy. During the change of life no Female should be without it. It quiets the Nervous System and gives rest comfort and nature's sweet sleep.

SVMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Alcholism, Drunkenness and the habit of Opium Eating. These degrading habits are by far the worst evils that have ever befallen suffering humanity. Thousands die annually from these noxious drugs. The drunkard drinks liquor not because he likes it but for the pleasure of drinking and treating his friends, little thinking that he is on his road to ruin. Like the Opium Eater, he first uses the drug in small quantities as a harmless antidote. The soothing influence of the drug takes strong hold upon its victim, leading him on to his own destruction. The habits of Opium Eating and Liquor Drinking are precisely what eating is to alimentiveness, as over-eating first, inflames the stomach, which redoubles its cravings until it paralyzes both the stomach and appetite. So every drink of liquor or dose of opium, instead of satisfying, only adds to its fierce fires, until it consumes the vital force and then itself. Like the gluttonous tape-worm, it cries "Give, give, give!" but never enough until its own rapacity devours itself. Samariton Nervine gives instant relief in all such cases. It produces sleep, quiets the nerves, builds up the nervous system, and restores body and mind to a healthy condition.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Nervous Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Asthma, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Syphilis, diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases of the urinary organs. Nervous debility, caused by the indiscretions of youth, permanently cured by the use of this valuable remedy. To you, young middle-aged and old men, who are covering your sufferings as with a mantle by silence, look up, you can be saved by timely efforts, and make ornaments to society, and jewels in the crown of your Maker, if you will. Do not keep this a secret longer, until it saps your vital, and destroys both body and soul. If you are thus afflicted take Dr. Richmond's Samaritan Nervine. It will restore your shattered nerves, arrest premature decay, and impart tone and energy to the whole system.

POLIITNESS PAYS.

Among the acquaintances of my youth, there was one Peter Cox; and I am sorry to say that, from what little stock of patience he may have possessed he invested none of it in politeness. At all events he hid not do it when he entered business. Peter was a builder by trade, and one of the most thorough and faithful workmen in the country. If he undertook a contract, he was sure to perform his part punctually and properly. Still he was not always employed, for many who might otherwise have hired him, were repulsed by his uncouth manner of treating them, and sought assistance elsewhere.

"Peter," said his wife to him one evening, "do you not know that you have lost a good job by offending Mr. Graham?"

Peter looked up from his paper and asked her what she meant.

"I mean that [illegible] Mr. Graham has hired Lamb to build his new [illegible]

[illegible] of it?" said Peter rather [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] hat and began [illegible] buy some lumber [illegible]

"I do when I [illegible] it," returned Peter, without looking up from his work.

Is there any in town to be sold?"

"They'll tell you at the mill. I don't saw any lumber myself."

"But you know the value of it," remarked the stranger, with a slight touch of feeling in his tone.

"Who told you?" retorted Peter.

"I supposed as you were in the habit of using considerable lumber of various kinds that you were the proper one to ask."

"Well, sir," said our grouty builder, in his uncouth, unkind and ungentlemanly way, "It so happens that I have something else to attend to besides keeping the price of lumber for everybody who wants to buy a few boards."

"Ah, yes; I didn't know you were so busy," returned the visitor in the coldest and most polite manner imaginable. "Pardon me if I have interrupted you." And with this he left the shop.

Peter Cox had done no more in this instance than he had done a great many times before; but yet he could not put it from his mind so easy. Somehow it clung to him and even after an hour had passed he found himself wishing that he had treated his visitor with a little more decency. But it was too late now.

Peter got his blinds all made, and then awaited news from Byfield, as it was expected that Sumner Wilkins would soon make arrangements to commence operations. He felt sure of the job and friends had seen Wilkins and recommended him strongly. It would be as good as three dollars a day for several months.

One morning as Peter came out on the streets he heard it remarked that Wilkins had got his hands all engaged, and would break ground very soon. It could not be possible, thought our builder. Surely he would have had notice of such a move. Half an hour after that he was standing at the door of a grocery, when a man drove up in a carriage and entered the store. He bowed to one or two who stood there, but gave Peter only a cold look. It was the man who had called at his shop two weeks before, and inquired the price of lumber. He was dressed plainly as ever, but he drove a splendid horse and the carriage was a costly one.

"Who is that man?" said Peter after the stranger was gone.

"What" returned a bystander, in evident surprise; "don't you know him? Wny that is Mr. Wilkins."

"Sumner Wilkins of Byfield? The man who is going to build the factory?"

"Yes."

Peter Cox left the room with a sinking heart; and by the time he reached the shop was almost sick. What a fall it was. He went home to dinner, and ere long his wife had heard the whole story. She had already learned that the job had been given to another, and knew why it had been done.

"Why didn't he let me know who he was when he came into my shop?" said Peter in a petulant mood.

"That isn't the question," suggested his wife as considerately as possible. "It would be better Peter, if you would why didn't you treat him respectfully? It seems from your own account, that he asked you a very simple and proper question—as any one ought to answer with pleasure. I tell you, my husband that politeness pays. If you could only overcome your [illegible] you would be greatly [illegible]

For some days Peter Cox was sore and morose. He saw the work commenced on the factory without his assistance [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] Peter Cox did not forget the [illegible] his new success. He [illegible] qualified as an accommodating builder, but this was not all. He also knew that the first lesson he had learned was the most valuable one—that investment he had made was yielding him the greatest interest. And moreover the income from the politeness which he had come to possess was not all gain and material. No—no—one of its highest and purest fruits was that which came to his heart, and which remained with him to bless him wherever he went.

A Judge's Charge.

The following comes from Georgia, and its accuracy is vouched for by the stenographer who took it down:

Judge —— was noted for the way he got mixed on his charges to the jury. On one occasion a case was tried before him the points of which may be briefly stated thus: Smith brought a suit agasnst Jones upon a promissory note given for a horse. Jones' defense was a failure of consideration, he averring that at the time of the purchase the horse had the glanders, of which he died, and that Smith knew it. Smith replied that the horse did not have the glanders, but had the distemper and Jones knew it when he bought.

The Sudge charged the jury: "Fentlemen of the jury, pay attention to the charge of the court. You have already made one trial of this case because you did not pay attention to the charge of the court, and I don't want you to do it again. I intend to make it so clear to you this time that you can not possibly make any mistake. The suit is upon a note for a promissory horse. I hope you understand that. Now, [illegible] at the time of the sale Smith had the glanders, and Jones knew it, Smith cannot recover. That is clear, gentlemen. I will state it again. If you find that at the time of the sale Jones had the glanders, and Smith knew it, Smith cannot possibly recover. But, gentlemen, I will state it a third time, so that you cannot possibly make a mistake. If at the time of the sale Smith had the glanders and Jones had the distemper, and the horse hnew it, then neither Smith, Jones nor the horse can possibly recover. Let the record be given to the fury." [Harper's Drawer.

AN INTERESTING FACT.

In France, all patent medicines must be endorsed by an official board of physicians before they can be sold. In lieu of such a law in America, the people have resolved themselves into a National committee which has endorsed Swayne's Ointment for allaying the itching accompanying the Piles, as the only reliable remedy in the market. It's a poor rule that won't work both ways. 46w4

Ingersoll and Christianity.

There is now no danger that Catholics will burn Protestants or Protestants will burn Catholics. Men have learned by experience that fire is not an argument that appeals to the intellect. No church or sect dreams of making converts with the fagot or the rack. Against the christianity of to-day what charge can Mr. Ingersoll bring except that it asks assent to the doctrines which he regards as untrue and preposterous? He surely cannot charge christianity with [illegible] ing and fostering immorality. Catholicism does not teach [illegible] to commit adultery. Methodism does not encourage murder, and Presbyterianism does not promote [illegible] [illegible]

A FRIEND TO THE [illegible]

Sorrow and sickness is the too common heritage of humanity, and when we see how little is done to alleviate the miseries of the great mass of humanity we are almost out of patience with life. Even where the intentions are best, ignorance is prone to bid the afflicted "suffer and be strong," instead of "ministering to the mind diseased," or laying a hand of healing on the poor tortured body.

Ah! when Science and Philanthropy, with love and sympathy and skill, come to the aid of the sufferers, they feel as if the angel of annunciation had drawn near.

Samaritan Nervine really is salvation to thousands. I speak from a full heart when I say it, for friends very near and dear to me have been restored to health and happiness by means of it.

"God bless Dr. Richmond," said one of them to me the other day. I feel as I know the man mentioned in Scripture must have felt when he went from Jerusalem to Jerico and fell among thieves, and when robbed and at the point of death, was befriended and restored to health by the Good Samaritan."

"Yes," he continued, "that was exactly my condition. I had spent a fortune in doctor's bills and patent medicines. Everything I could hear of I tried, so desperate was my situation, but I grew worse steadily, until some kind friend told me of the Samaritan Nervine. Since taking it I am, as you see, restored to perfect health.

With such uncontrovertible proof of the beneficial nature of the remedy, it is not strange that an editor, always solicitous for an accurate knowledge of what could benefit the world in general, should take the earliest opportvnity of visiting the inventor and proprietor of the medicine at the World's Epileptic Institute.

We found the doctor in his elegant private office busily engaged in superintending the gentleman whose business it is to attend to the details of the immense correspondence which is a natural result of his wide-spread reputation.

On making known our wishes, he very kindly accompanied us in our tour of inspection through the magnificent building and grounds.

Almost as we entered the office our attention was arrested by a wonderful collection of photographs, numbering somewhere in the thousands. All nations, ages and stations were represented. The elegant carte of the society leader was side by side witn the picture of the humble artisan; innocent childhood and withered old age showed in their counterfeit presentments the gratitude they could not speak; doctors, lawyers, ministers of the gospel, soldiers, laborers, plain mothers of families, haughty children of wealth, rich and poor, high and low, black and white, all were represented. It reminded me of the miracle cures of Europe, only instead of the crutches, bandages, gold, silver, and wax images of the recuperated pilgrims, left before the shrine of the miracle worker, Dr. Richmond has as testimonials the pictures of his deeply grateful patients.

"You must feel very happy, doctor, when you look at this collection," we said.

"Ah! yes," said the doctor pleasantly, "but if you like my Art Gallery, what would you say to my Library?

He led the way to the next apartment, and we followed, expecting only to see perhaps one bookcase filled with dusty tomes of abstract science. Instead, the walls were lined with very handsome bookcases, containing over one hundred thousand unsolicited testimonials from those whom the Nervine had cured.

"How wonderfully fortunate as well as talented you are," we exclaimed in amazement. "The Nervine has proved a perfect gold mine."

The doctor looked at us reproachful. "I am not one to under estimate the value of health wealth," he [illegible] "for I have known what it is to be [illegible] [illegible]

ROYAL ST. JOHN

A saint come to every home
And with my presence cheery,
I banish care and burdens bear,
Of women, worn and weary.
I run so light, and look so bright,
The ladies dote upon me,
No noise I make, no threads I break,
Though back and forth you run me.
Through every kind of goods I go,
Silk, muslin, cloth and leather;
Though all machines refuse to sew
Yet I sew on forever.
No heads I pain, no eyes I strain,
To find the way to thread me,
No holes have I, save needles eye
To make a cause to dread me.
I'm cheap and good and if you should

HOWGATE, under indictment in Washington for stealing $900,000, escaped from a bailiff Friday while visiting friends. He was disbursing officer in the signal service and it was thought best to let him escape or his trial might divulge secrets detrimental to many very prominent men now holding positions of trust under the government. It is thought he has gone to Europe.

THIS is the way they do business in Missouri. The Ford brothers who killed Jesse James were indicted for murder in the first degree. They pleaded guilty in court and were sentenced to be hung May 19. Gov. Crittenden upon hearing the news granted the murderers an unconditional pardon. If this unwholesome act was committed in Russia people would be congratulating themselves that they lived in a civilized and enlightened country.

A FULL list of President Arthur's cabinet now reads as follows: Secretary of State, Theodore T. Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey; Secretary of the Treasury, Charles J. Folger, of New York; Secretary of War, Robert T. Lincoln, of Illinois; Secretary of the Navy, William E. Chandler, of New Hampshire: Secretary of the Interior, Henry M. THE well-known New York firm of A. T. Steward & Co. are going out of business. When A. T. Stewart died the bulk of his property was found to be given to Judge Hilton, an intimate friend. Mr. Hilton is not the fore sighted business man A. T. Stewart was, and his edict ostracising Jews has cost him dearly. When Mr. Stewart died in 1876, he employed 2,200 hands in his store, while Judge Hilton in the same store in 1882 finds business enough to employ only about 700.

BOSSISM or partisanism has received a check and rebuke from the court of appeals which is now in session at Albany. It will be remembered that the State superintendent of public instruction Gilmour, removed Prof Hoose, principal of the Normal school at Cortland last year. The local board of education, including the Hon. Mr. Duell, protested that he had not the authority without the consent of said board. The court of appeals have just decided without a dissenting vote that Prof. Hoose is principal of the Cortland school and that Superintendent Gilmour had no right to remove him without the concurrence of the local board. This decision will meet the hearty approval of a very large majority of the friends of education.

MORE pounds of oleamargerine than of butter were exported during 1881 from the U. S. During the six fiscal years ending June 30,1881, the annual value of the oleamargerine export rose from $70,483 a year to $881,566; and whereas in 1878 the quantity exported was only 1,698,401 pounds, in 1881 it was 26,887,676. On the other hand, the amount of butter exported during the twelve months of 1881 was 21,881,868 pounds, while the year before it had been more than 37,000,000; and the value of the export fell off $3,250,000. [illegible] a railroad, or employed in any ferry boat or vessel carrying [illegible] is guilty of a misdemeanor and may be sent to the penitentiary [illegible] fined $500. It is likewise a misdemeanor [illegible] directly after [illegible] and it is the same grade of crime for any person to employ or for any man to act as an engineer who cannot read ordinary handwriting. The popular idea that a man may do with his own what he pleases is knocked all out of time. He cannot hurt his horse, nor can he burn the brushwood on his own land if there is any danger of the fire extending to his neighbors' land. An apothecary who fails to label drugs, or who wrongly labels them, or who sells poison without recording the sale in his book, may go to the penitentiary. "A person who loiters about a building with intent to overhear discourse therein, and to repeat or publish the same to vex or annoy or injure others, is guilty of a misdemeanor." The dishonest milkman who sells skimmed milk for genuine without disclosing the same is guilty of the same offense. If a man refuses to assist in arresting a rioter, he may himself go to the penitentiary. It is a misdemeanor to abandon a disabled animal, to fail to provide food and drink for impounded animals, selling, or offering for sale, or exposing a diseased animal; keeping milch cows in unhealthy places, feeding them with food producing unwholesome milk; racing horses on a highway. The law partner of a district attorney or prosecuting officer is debarred from defending a criminal charge. An attorney cannot defend himself in a civil or criminal suit, except he believes the old saying, that a man who acts as his own counsel has a fool for his client and employs an outsider. The Code declares any person twice convicted of felony, and five times convicted of a misdemeanor, a habitual criminal. Sending women to state prison is abolished, and hereafter all women convicted of a felony punishable by imprisonment must be sentenced to imprisonment in a county penitentiary instead of a state prison. All convicts under fourteen shall be sent to reformatories, and between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one to the penitentiary. A convict has some rights, and is declared to be under the protection of the law, and any injury to his person not authorized by law is punishable in the same manner as if he were not sentenced or convicted. This is aimed against brutal keepers and wardens. The husband or wife of a person indict- on account of a crime is in all cases a competent witness on the examination or trial; but neither husband nor wife can be compelled to disclose a confidential communication made by one to the other during their marriage. Goods exposed for sale on the Sabbath can be seized and forfeited. The punishment for profanity is very summary. The party can be taken directly before a magistrate and sent to jail for ten days. Bad doctors had better look out. It is declared manslaughter for any physician to give any drug by mistake or ignorance that causes death. Abortion is made manslaughter in the first degree. The section relating to conspiracy is of special interest to all mechanics or laberers, as it is on it that prosecutions may be sought for interference with workmen in case of labor strikes. The clause relating to the matter reads: "To prevent another from exercising a lawful trade or calling, or doing any other lawful act, by force, threats, intimidation, or by interfering or threatening to interfere with tools, implements or property belonging to or used by another, or with the use or employment thereof."

is especially designed for first-class retail trade, and that the reputation achieved in so short a time is due, solely to honest and superior garments, and that honorable dealing insures to each and every buyer full value for his money. We shall continue as we commenced, to be the public favorites by selling better clothing, keeping a better assortment offering the best fitting and most stylish cut garments that skill and money can produce, and by asking lower prices and guaranteeing every purchase.

Our buyer is again in New York—the third time since our opening, for the purpose of adding correct styles. We mean those nobby fitting garments that sell so readily and everyone admires. Think of it and reflect—the third time since our beginning. The usual way for merchants in this city to do is to visit the market two or three times a year. These men's purchases will begin to arrive Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week and will, let us whisper to you, contain rare and choice bargains—some for less than actual cost of manufacture, and by looking them over you may discover new wants through the abundance and cheapness of our display.

[illegible] grand jury. DeGraw says [illegible] short; [illegible] for slander, libel and defamation of character [illegible] appropriated a cent. He says he has had several very [illegible] offers to go out of town but prefers to remain in Fulton and live down the many "lying rumors." DeGraw was elected village collector this spring. When asked if he thought he he would experience any difficulty in procuring bail he said: "Ten men came to me last night and offered to go my bail for any amount."

An Auspicious Event.

Friday occured the annual opening at Francis E. Bacon's dry goods and millinery stores. The popularity of these occasions at Bacon's are clearly evidenced in the immense throngs that visit his store. Opening days are intended to exhibit the stock carried and are initiatory to a season's trade.

DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS.

This department was filled to repletion with all the latest novelties in dress goods, mantles, dolmans, silks, ribbons, hosiery, parasols, collars, cuffs and a myriad of lesser novelties all of special import to the throng of ladies visiting the opening. The goods in this department were arranged in the most inviting manner, reflecting credit upon the taste and judgment of the corps of clerks. Each line of goods, representing the different branches of business, was presided over by a polite clerk. Ladies' and misses' costumes were in all colors and combinations, and in every material from the plainest cottons and satines to the handsomest silk and satin brocades. The display was the best yet produced by Bacon and only exhibits the resources and extent of the house.

THE MILLINERY DEPARTMENT.

This department occupies the rooms above the spacious stores and a number of handsomely trimmed bonnets and hats were upon exhibition. Among the various styles of popular straws were satin porcupine braids in all colors, double manillas, Leghorn, chips and many others. To match these straws which are in various shades of garnet, olive, dark green, ecru, drab, etc. were shown a full line of velvets, satin surahs, brocades, etc. to match. Bonnets were also in endless profusion. The display of flowers was very elaborate and comprised all grades. Among fine French flowers were some handsome forget-me-nots and pansy wreaths, pond lillies, shaded asters in wreaths and bouquets, daisy montures, wildrose wreaths, geranium clusters, poppies, lillies of the valley etc. The millinery department is under the supervision of Mrs. G. H. Salmon and Miss Mary O'Hara. The arrangements and display of goods was grand.

Last week Deputy Sheriff Odell, of Canastota, was looking for Abram Seely, who was a member of the notrious Loomis gang. He was unable to find his man, and left a description with Officer Ney, who gathered him in on Saturday. He is under indictment for burgalry in Madison county, and had escaped from an officer after a hard struggle. He was taken to Canastota Monday.

John Thompson in "Around The World" at Nichols hall next Monday evening. Secure your tickets at Nichols'.

"Around The World."

If any person in Rochester doubts that there is no cure for the blues he should have witnessed the "Star Comedian," John Thompson, last night in "Around The World." There are a great many patent medicines that are supposed to cure all kinds of pains and aches. Thompson should come under this head, and guaranteed as an infallible cure. To see Thompson will make you forget your mother-in-law. The play is as simple as A B C; the audience are told of the ending before the play begins—however, surprises follow each other in rapid succession; Irish, German, Italian, Yankee, French, Chinese, English and Hebrew [illegible]

THE "BEE HIVE."

This house is so well and favorably known that no words we can write will add to its reputation. Their goods are first-class and just what they are represented to be. There is no need to go out of town to purchase carpets, the "Bee Hive" can do as well by you as any firm in Central New York. Read their mammoth advertisement in to-day's issue and then go and inspect their stock.

Lotta as "Bob."

A special half fare train will run over the D. L. & W. road to-morrow night to accommodate Fulton people who wish to witness Lotta's new play "Bob" in which this talented artist takes the leading part. For further information and tickets call upon Mr. E. F. Blanchard at D. L. & W. express office. Train will leave branch at west end of lower bridge promptly at 7 o'clock and return after entertainment.

Employment.

The following sentiment was uttered by Daniel Webster in the United States senate: "Sir, I say it is employment that makes the people happy. Sir, the great truth should be placed on the title page of every book on political economy intended for America and such countries as America. It ought to be placed in every farmers' magazine. It should be proclaimed everywhere notwithstanding what we hear of the usefulness—and, I admit of the high usefullness of cheap food—notwithstanding that, the great truth should be proclaimed everywhere; should be made into a proverb if it could, that when there is work for the hand and brains there will be work for the teeth. Where there is employment there will be bread. And in a country like our own, above all others will this truth be good, a country where, with a great deal of spirit and activity among the masses, if they can find employment, there is always willingness to labor. If they can obtain fair compensation for their labor, they will have good houses, good clothing, good food and the means of educating their children; their work will be cheerfully performed, and they will be a contented and happy people.

WINSTON, Forsyth Co., N. C.

GENTS—I desire to express to you my thanks for your wonderful Hop Bitters. I was troubled with dyspepsia for five years previous to commencing the use of your Hop Bitters some six months ago. My cure has been wonderful. I am pastor of the First Methodist Church of this place, and my whole congregation can testify to the great virtue of your bitters. Very Respectfully
45w2 REV. H. FEREBEE.

A Boy who Surprised his Father.

A Connecticut man is never happy unless he is inventing something. Even the children have a fancy for the business. Last summer a connecticut farmer's boy visited Barnum's circus, and saw the catapult. It suggested to him the tramp bouncer to be set under a man's doorstep, and he at once went to work to build one. As he wanted to surprise his father he kept the matter secret, and worked like a beaver up in the hay loft of the great barn, building the machine. Finally he got it done. It was a magnificent machine, worked by a spring capable of throwing 150 pounds a distance of 30 feet. This machine he buried in the hay till he should be ready to test it. Something possessed his father's hired man to go up in that hay loft the next day, and he contrived to get right on on the footboard of the machine and was slung whirling across the barn into a half-filled bay of hay on the opposite side. Alighting on the hay saved him from serious injury, but not from surprise. He didn't expect any such experience and was not pleased with it. Neither did he understand it; and, as $500 wouldn't have induced him to go on that hay loft again, he didn't find out what threw him. And fear of ridicule prevented his mentioning it. That night two tramps tried to sleep in that hay loft and gave it up as a bad job, after a sad experience. They had crawled into the hay and were getting themselves fixed, when one got foul of the machine, and immediately his companion heard a whiz, and a wild yell, and the calls for help from the other side of the barn. He rose to go to his companion and got there quicker than he expected. He found his friend very curious to know what tossed him and somewhat scared. The way those tramps fled from that barn was a caution. The next day, while all the folks were away on a visit, the lad got the machine down and set it under the front door-step. Temporarily, he attached the wire that set it going to the door-bell. When the folks returned they all stood on the door step and the old man rang to be let in. With so much weight the machine couldn't throw 'em far, but it rose up enough to dump 'em. The old man was the first to get up. He sprang once more on the step and rang violently. He wasn't a very big man and it seemed as though the Lord had put that snowdrift forty feet away just on purpose to catch him. They got him out and filled [illegible] the boy [illegible]

[illegible] his father. If any [illegible] family of [illegible] abuses his father—and even should the latter become dissipated and seem to deserve it—the law punishes him, and not only is he punished, but his neighbors living on all sides of him are fined, for not interfering and preventing the ill treatment.

There are no newspapers in China. Every town has its market, and two markets are held daily—morning and evening. All events of importance are bulletined in the market-place every day at the expense of the municipality.

There is no mail system in China. If a man wishes to write to a friend in a distant place, he must wait until he finds some one going to that place, and intrust his letter to him for delivery. In such service there is no surety of the letter reaching its destination. This is realized by Chinamen in this country, who get only a very few of the letters sent them by their friends, while their letters in turn frequently miscarry.

There are no liquor saloons in China. The people drink spirits made from rice, as well as gin, and, among the wealthy, wines, liquors, brandies, etc., are used; but this use of spirits is mostly during meal time. Tippling is unknown in China. If a man wants to drink, he can buy his liquor at the grocery store and take it to his house for use. No license to sell is required. Any dealer can sell it freely. During my stay of eleven months in that country, says a writer, I did not see any intoxicated person.

Rice, meats of various kinds, poultry, and fish, are the staple food. A man can live on fifteen cents a day in China—twelve for meats and three for rice. All classes use rice, which is the main article of food in the kingdom.

There is no such thing as courting among young people in China. The bride and bridegroom never see each other until they are about to become man and wife. Their courting is all done by their parents. Let us suppose that you have a son and I a daughter of marriageable age, and we are friends. You tell me that you want to get your son married, and ask if I am willing to give my daughter to him. I say yes, I have seen your son and like him, but you have not seen my daughter. But you hire a female broker to go and inspect my daughter, which she does for a consideration. Indeed, this is a regular business, and many make a good living out of it. She visits my house, sees and talks with my daughter, finds that her feet are so small that she can hardly walk—that absurd custom of deforming the feet is still prevalent in China—and returns and makes a most flattering report. Then you and I come together, and I give you a written paper embodying my consent to the union, while you, in like manner, signify your approval, and give me the paper signed by you, and the engagement is completed. You then cause a great number of sweet cakes to be sent to my daughter from your son, and these are given around to our friends as an announcement of the bethrothal of our daughter. The marriage itself may not take place for a month, six months or a year after the engagement, according to agreement. There is no religious ceremony of marriage in China. A friend of the bridegroom's family—usually a man of respectability and position is chosen, who reads the marriage ceremony from a book, which binds the couple; who, before that time, had been strangers to one another, to live together during life. It is rare indeed that these marriages turn out unhappily.

TWO MEN.—"Who is this well-dressed man with the seal-skin overcoat, hat and gloves? He carries a gold-headed cane and is followed by a bull-dog in a scarlet blanket. Do you know him?" "O, yes, that is Slugger, the pugilist. Fine man. Hard hitter. Very popular. Always surrounded by a crowd of admiring friends, as you see him now. He is very well off; was given a benefit the other night which netted him $2,000." "Indeed, he is fortunate." "Oh, yes, a very fortunate fellow; ranks high in his profession, you see." "Who is that white-headed, weary-looking old man; he seems thinly clad for this wintery day. He is alone. Do you know him?" "Oh, yes, that is old Faithful, a country clergyman. Very learned man, they say. Been a preacher all his life. [illegible]

[illegible] were three demons came out of the deep—
[illegible] the eyes to see;
[illegible] the dreamer out of his sleep,
[illegible] chilled the heart with a sudden leap,
[illegible] the brain with their stealthy creep—
[illegible], terrible, horrible three.

[illegible] was one that was cruel as hate;
[illegible] the days with a sullen boom
[illegible]; like a pall of gloom
[illegible] of his breath, and pitiless doom
[illegible] hold like a soulless fate.

[illegible] was the meat and his drink was gore;
[illegible] to his knees he waded in blood;
[illegible] as he raged down the ensanguine shore,
[illegible] his voice in the horrible roar
[illegible] of his victims, as more and more
[illegible] swelled the ghastly flood.

[illegible] and another one grisly and grim;
[illegible] ten times told than you'd think;
[illegible] one ! the beaker's brim.
[illegible], and hate and sin,
[illegible] was he poured them in,
And gave to the world to drink.

The victims were numberless as th sands—
Maiden and youth and hoary age;
[illegible] wisdom and courage of many lands,
[illegible] manhood and dimpled hands—
[illegible] came to this death-feast ghostly bands—
Weak fools and the strongminded sage.

And the third he came with a goblin smile
Gentle and kind he seemed to be;
But the heart of the fiend was full of guile,
In his merriest moments all the while
His thoughts were cruel, his plans were vile;
He was the worst of the three.

At feast and wedding he sat elate,
With luscious lips he kissed the bride;
He [illegible] the Bible, he pleased the great,
While he wrecked the home and destroyed the state,
With a sway like the rule of iron fate,

THE GIRL DETECTIVE.

[illegible] of Rufus Markham's counting-room was securely closed, and the proprietor of the large, flourishing cotton-factory talked earnestly with a gentlemanly-looking man of middle-age, whose face was as impressive as a wax mask.

"Five thousand dollars!" said the individual. "It was a large sum to leave exposed."

"Exposed!" said Mr. Markham. "It was in my private desk, to which no one has access but myself and my nephew, Fred Tryon."

"Would it be possible for the young gentleman—"

"Sir," said Mr. Markham indignantly, "my nephew is not a thief. If he needed ten times that sum he knows I would give it to him. He will be my heir, and he is as dear to me as a son. It is simply absurd to connect him in any way with this robbery."

"Just state this matter again as briefly as you can, and allow me to take notes, will you Mr. Markham?"

"Certainly. I drew $5,000 out of the bank yesterday to meet a note that was not presented for payment. Retaining it until after the bank was closed, I concluded to lock it in my desk until this morning, and did so. At 9 o'clock this morning the expected note was presented, and I unlocked the desk. The money was gone, and with it a small memorandum-book that was in the same roll."

"The lock was not forced?"

"No, sir; the desk was apparently exactly as I left it."

"And Mr. Tryon has the only duplicate key?"

The old gentleman frowned. He was evidently displeased at the turn the detective's suspicions seemed to be taking. "[illegible] nephew certainly had the [illegible] duplicate key."

"[illegible]! yes. Have you the numbers of all the notes?"

"Yes. The roll consisted of ten five hundred dollar notes!"

"[illegible] of numbers being taken, the [illegible] made a searching [illegible]

[illegible] the old [illegible] to his boarding-house, receiving [illegible] farewell when he took his way to his own rooms in another house. For a week he heard nothing of the robbery.

It was just when summer twilight was fading that returning home from a drive with Maud Clarkson, Fred met his uncle's confidential clerk waiting for him at Maud's house.

"I have a note for you, Mr. Fred," said he, "and as you were not at home I thought I would wait for you here."

Something in the young man's face struck a chill to Maud's heart.

"You have bad news!" she cried.

"Perhaps Mr. Fred had better read the note," was the evasive answer.

But Maud's terror was only increased when Fred, after reading the note broke into a furious exclamation of rage.

"Who dares say that I am a midnight burglar?" he shouted.

"O Fred! what is it?" asked Maud, turning very white.

"My uncle has been robbed of five thousand dollars, and he pays me the compliment of supposing me to be the thief because I have a duplicate key to the private desk. I—great heavens?" he cried with a sudden change in his voice; "he cannot mean it. I rob my uncle—I—"

"Mr. Fred," said the clerk, respectfully, "I only waited to see how you took the note to speak a few words of advice. Mr. Fred, I was with your father when he was killed on a railway train; I was with your uncle when he brought you home for the holidays; and, I've loved you, boy and man, since you were ten years old—and that's twelve long years. I know you never, never took the money; but things look very ugly for you."

"But," said Fred, grasping hard the hand the clerk held out to him, "I cannot understand it. Listen." And he read aloud the note [illegible]

"[illegible] Frederick Tryon—I could not believe without proof—undeniable, positive proof—that you could rob me of $5,000, taken, as you know, from my private desk on Wednesday last. You are my sister's son, and I will never be the one to imprison or punish you; but you are no longer a nephew of mine, Willingly, I will never look into your face again. Your ill-gotten gains I freely give you to start in some business, trusting that you will endeavor to live honestly in the future. Do not try to see me; I will not listen to any explanations I know to be false. Do not write, for I will not open your letters.

RUFUS MARKHAM."

Maud Clarkson grew white as death as she heard the stern edict.

"O Fred!" she cried, "what can you do?"

"Starve, I suppose," was the bitter answer, "as I do not happen to possess the ill-gotten gains he so generously presents me. But I will not ask you to starve with me, Maud. You were betrothed to the millionaire's nephew and heir: the disinherited beggar frees you from your promise."

"Fred," she cried, bursting into tears, how can you be so cruel?" Then, unheeding the clerk, who was discreetly looking from the window, she came close to Fred's side. "Darling," she said, fixing her large black eyes upon his face, "if all the world believes you guilty I do not. If all the world cast you off I will keep my promise."

The young lover had been bewildered, indignant, desperate, but he folded the gentle comforter fast in his arms and great tears fell on her upturned face.

"God bless you Maud!" he cried; "I can defy the world if you are true to me. Now, Potter, sit down and tell me what you know of this wretched business."

"Well, Mr. Fred, I never heard of the robbery myself until this morning, when Vodges, the detective your uncle employed to work it up, came to make his report. They did not notice me at first, and [illegible] I was in [illegible] about all [illegible] remember there was a [illegible] last Wednesday?"

"[illegible]"

"You [illegible] at the time that [illegible]

[illegible] see him. Only a week [illegible] only a week to watch Arnold. And, by the way, you will give me an additional chance if you will leave the city. Throw him off his guard by letting him suppose you are banished for his crime."

"Run away like a coward!" flashed Fred.

"Only for a week. You see, the probability is that Arnold has the money in his possession yet. He will want to see the fate of what he has given you before putting any more into circulation; but he has probably hidden it very securely. He will watch, but if you are willing I will take your room while you are gone, and do a little detective business on my part."

It was not easy to persuade Fred to consent to Potter's plans, but Maud's persuasions being added to the old man's he finally consented to leave the city for a week and return in that time to vindicate his innocence in case of Potter's failure.

Before night Fred was on his way to visit another city, and his landlady had agreed to allow Mr. Potter to occupy his place during his absence.

Fred had been gone two days when the old clerk called upon Miss Clarkson to report progress.

"I am completely baffled," he said, in answer to inquiries. "You see, Arnold knows me and evidently suspects me. He is so affectionately desirous of keeping me in sight that I cannot get a peep into his room; and whenever he is out he locks the door and gives the key to the landlady. I cannot force the door yet, and by the time Fred returns I am afraid the money will be smuggled away.

I am sure the money is in his possession now, he is so careful about his room. Nobody gets in there but the landlady. I did think of bribing the chambermaid to let me in when she was at work there, but unfortunately she left to-day."

A flash of light seemed to pass across Maud's face, but she only said demurely:

"Your landlady is a German is she not?"

"Yes; her English is very imperfect. Have you ever seen her?"

"No; I have heard Fred speak of her. My mother, you know was German."

"But what has that to do with Fred's case?"

"I will tell you. Vodges has tried to catch the thief and failed. You have tried and failed. I mean to try and succeed."

"You! What can you do?"

"Come to-morrow and I will tell you."

Punctual to the appointed time Potter made his appearance. With dancing eyes and flushed cheeks Maud met him

"Well?" he asked, certain from her looks that she had good tidings.

"I told you I would succeed."

"And you did? Huzza! I feel as young as Fred himself."

"To whom I have telegraphed to return. He will be here this evening, and you must bring Mr. Markham, Mr. Vodges and the proper police authorities to meet in this room. Then, Mr. Potter, go to Arnold's room and remove the pipe of the stove at the elbow. In the joint you will find Mr. Markham's memorandum book and the missing notes."

"You are sure?"

"Listen. This morning, in a calico dress, sun bonnet, and very coarse shoes for disguise, I applied for the place of chambermaid at the boarding house where Mr. Arnold has a room. I braided my hair in two long plaits, and convinced your landlady that I was a recent importation from Germany and unable to speak a word of English. She agreed to take me for a week, on trial, and before I had been two hours in the house I was sent to tidy Mr. Arnold's room. Never was a room tidied so quickly; and seeing my mistress on her way to market, shot the bolt and took a survey of the premises. The trunk was locked, the bureau drawer was wide open, the closet door ajar. I felt a reluctance to overhaul any private depositories, though I should have done it," she added resolutely, "if I had been driven to it. I rummaged a little, when on the closet floor I espied a shirt, apparently scarcely soiled except one sleeve and that was black with soot. I [illegible] what he could be doing at [illegible]

[illegible] "It means [illegible] your plan to throw the [illegible] Markham's private desk upon [illegible] has failed. It means that the five thousand dollars stolen from this gentleman are in your possession, except only one given to [illegible] in payment of a debt."

"It's a lie!" cried the prisoner; but his white face, faltering voice and shaking limbs were no proof of innocence. "Search my trunks; search everything I have!"

"No, gentlemen," said Mr. Potter, "draw out the stove, if you please, and look in the elbow of the pipe."

With a cry Graham Arnold fell senseless to the floor as Vodges put his hand upon the stove.

Mr. Markham turned to Fred. There was no word spoken. Hand clasped hand, and each read forgiveness in the other's eyes.

Mr. Graham spent some weeks in jail ere his trial and conviction; but before his sentence was announced Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Tryon were crossing the ocean on a wedding tour to Europe.

His Course Approved.

Rev. C. P. Lyford, of Mexico, at the recent session of the conference in Malone offered the following resolution:

Resolved by the N. N. Y. conference, numbering 214 members and representing a constituency of 100,000 people, that we do most heartily approve the course of President Arthur in vetoing the anti-Chinese bill, and hereby tender him our thanks for that wise and patriotic act. And that we hereby congratulate the whole country upon the defeat by executive action of that un-American and unchristian measure.

DIRECTIONS

For Catarrh, Fever, in the Head, &c, insert with little finger, a particle of Balm into the nostrils; draw strong breaths through the nose. It will be absorbed, cleansing and healing the diseased membrane.

For Deafness, apply a particle into the ear.

ELY'S CREAM BALM

HAVING gained an enviable local reputation, displacing all other preparations in the vicinity of discovery, is, on its merits alone recognized as a wonderful remedy wherever known. A fair trial will convince the most skeptical of its curative powers. It effectually cleanses the nasal passages of Catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions, allays inflammation and irritation, protects the membranal linings of the head from additional colds completely heals the sores and restores the taste and smell. Beneficial results are realized by a few applications. A thorough treatment as directed will cure Catarrh. As a household remedy for cold in the head, it is unequaled. The Balm is easy to use and agreeable. Sold by Druggists at 50 cents. On receipt of 50 cents will mail a package.

Send for circular, with full information.

ELY'S CREAM BALM CO, Owego, N. Y.

Oswego people are complaining because Mr Congressman Mason allows the commercial interests of the city to go by in default when a word would secure the appropriation necessary to make Oswego a fair competitor of other lake harbors. Squabbling over petty appointments has monopolized our members time up to date.

Saturday, the 15th of April, Mrs. John Garrahan stepped on a nail which passed through her shoe and made a small cut on the sole of her foot. SOMEBODY'S CHILD.

Somebody's child is dying—dying with the flush of hope on his young face, and somebody's mother thinking of the time when that dear face will be hidden where no ray of hope can brighten it—because there is no cure for consumption. Reader, if the child be your neighbor's, take this comforting word to the mother's heart before it is too late. Tell her that consumption is curable; that men are living to-day whom the physicians pronounced incurable, because one lung had been almost destroyed by the disease. Dr Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" has cured hundreds; surpasses cod liver oil, hypophosphites, and other medicines in curing the disease. Sold by druggists.

Right Rev A. N. Littlejohn, D. D. bishop of the Diocese of Long Island, administered the rite of confirmation to seventeen persons last evening, in St Paul's Episcopal church, (Rev. Warren C. Hubbard rector), Clinton and Carroll streets. There was a large attendance, and the music which was rendered by choristers under the direction of A. D. Caldwell, was a reproduction in part of the Easter Sunday evening service. It was a superb contribution to an occasion that was full of solemnity and impressiveness and elicited the remark from the bishop that it was worthy of Trinity church New York. Among the candidates for confirmation was the father of the rector of St Paul's. [Brooklyn Daily Eagle.]

is especially designed for first-class retail trade, and that the reputation achieved in so short a time is due, solely to honest and superior garments, and that honorable dealing insures to each and every buyer full value for his money. We shall continue as we commenced, to be the public favorites by selling better clothing, keeping a better assortment offering the best fitting and most stylish cut garments that skill and money can produce, and by asking lower prices and guaranteeing every purchase.

Our buyer is again in New York—the third time since our opening, for the purpose of adding correct styles. We mean those nobby fitting garments that sell so readily and everyone admires. Think of it and reflect—the third time since our beginning. The usual way for merchants in this city to do is to visit the market two or three times a year. These men's purchases will begin to arrive Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week and will, let us whisper to you, contain rare and choice bargains—some for less than actual cost of manufacture, and by looking them over you may discover new wants through the abundance and cheapness of our display.

Ry Co., for $10,000 damages. The excursion train was run into by a regular express, and several persons hurt, all of whom except Mr. Tew were settled with by the company by payment of their doctors bills, amounting to about $300. The company think his price Tew high and will stand a suit.

SUDDENLY WEAKENED.

"I suffered with rheumatism of the back and hip for a number of years," said Mr Thomas Morgan, Superintendent of Streets. "I was waited on by physicians, but they gave me no permanent relief, and I resolved to try St. Jacobs Oil. My rheumatism weakened at the first attack of its great enemy. St. Jacob's Oil, and I was soon well."

SOMEBODY'S CHILD.

Somebody's child is dying—dying with the flush of hope on his young face, and somebody's mother thinking of the time when that dear face will be hidden where no ray of hope can brighten it—because there is no cure for consumption. Reader, if the child be your neighbor's, take this comforting word to the mother's heart before it is too late. Tell her that consumption is curable; that men are living to-day whom the physicians pronounced incurable, because one lung had been almost destroyed by the disease. Dr Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" has cured hundreds; surpasses cod liver oil, hypophosphites, and other medicines in curing the disease. Sold by druggists.

Right Rev A. N. Littlejohn, D. D. bishop of the Diocese of Long Island, administered the rite of confirmation to seventeen persons last evening, in St Paul's Episcopal church, (Rev. Warren C. Hubbard rector), Clinton and Carroll streets. There was a large attendance, and the music which was rendered by choristers under the direction of A. D. Caldwell, was a reproduction in part of the Easter Sunday evening service. It was a superb contribution to an occasion that was full of solemnity and impressiveness and elicited the remark from the bishop that it was worthy of Trinity church New York. Among the candidates for confirmation was the father of the rector of St Paul's. [Brooklyn Daily Eagle.]

AN INTERESTING FACT.

In France, all patent medicines must be endorsed by an official board of physicians before they can be sold. In lieu of such a law in America, the people have resolved themselves into a National committee which has endorsed Swayne's Ointment for allaying the itching accompanying the Piles, as the only reliable remedy in the market. Its a poor rule that won't work both ways. 46w4

We leave it to the public to decide whether or not we are entitled to fame. We answer this question affirmatively, and are modest enough to say so aloud. The public have ascertained to a certainty—it took but a little time to find it out—that our

CLOTHING

—FOR—

Men, Youths, Boys and Children

is especially designed for first-class retail trade, and that the reputation achieved in so short a time is due, solely to honest and superior garments, and that honorable dealing insures to each and every buyer full value for his money. We shall continue as we commenced, to be the public favorites by selling better clothing, keeping a better assortment offering the best fitting and most stylish cut garments that skill and money can produce, and by asking lower prices and guaranteeing every purchase.

Our buyer is again in New York—the third time since our opening, for the purpose of adding correct styles. We mean those nobby fitting garments that sell so readily and everyone admires. Think of it and reflect—the third time since our beginning. The usual way for merchants in this city to do is to visit the market two or three times a year. These men's purchases will begin to arrive Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week and will, let us whisper to you, contain rare and choice bargains—some for less than actual cost of manufacture, and by looking them over you may discover new wants through the abundance and cheapness of our display.

MAKING BUTTER AND CHEESE.

To Those Interested.

THE TIMES this season will be of especial interest to all persons engaged in manufacture of butter and cheese. Our facilities for obtaining the latest correct reports from the principal markets are first class. We will be able to give the Utica and Little Falls markets besides the doings of the Fulton market and all matters of interest to dairyman.

At the Little Falls market Monday cheese brought readily 12½c; the skims sold all the way from 6c to 12½c; only one lot at the latter price, and the bulk of the better qualities at 10c to 11½c. The sales, including commission cheese, amounted to 3,100 boxes which is about 400 boxes less than the corresponding week last season. The season is backward and cold and quantities will not be large for at least a month yet. Dairymen are anticipating a good season with favorable prices. 350 boxes old cheese were resold at 12 to 12½c.

The Utica board of trade last week passed a resolution making a ruling price out of the greatest number of factories sold at the same price, the buyer being obliged to take the whole offering of each factory.

Rental of pews at the M. E. church next Monday.

Mrs S. D. Keller of Syracuse was in Fulton Monday.

Dr. C. S. Marsh of Oswego Falls has removed to Plainville.

Mrs. M. L. Wheeler of lower Oswego Falls is visiting friends in Oswego.

Miss Nellie Cavanaugh has entered the dry goods store of B. J. Dyer as saleslady.

Wade Hudgins will lead the temperance meeting in S. of T. hall, Sunday afternoon, at 3:30. The public are welcome.

Mrs. Colonel Jocelyn, nee Lina Taylor, is in Fulton making her many friends a visit. Mrs. Jocelyn resides in Wichita, Kansas.

W. E. Pruyne, of Norwich, N. Y., traveling salesman for the productions of the Norwich Oil Pa[illegible] Co., was in town over Sunday.

Oliver Jennings, of Palermo, suffered a shock of paralysis Friday affecting his speech and rendering a portion of his body useless.

Burr VanBuren and Miss Maria Josephine Knight were united in marriage by Rev. E. Moyses of Zion church last Wednesday evening.

Frank J. Switzer, collector of the town of Granby, settled with the county treasurer last Friday. Total tax, $19,779.24, returned uncollected, $149.38. His bond was discharged.

The firm of Wilcox & Preston, marketmen in Oswego Falls, have dissolved. Mr. Preston will carry on the business at the old stand and will also settle all the accounts of the old firm.

The first excursion train of the season will leave Oswego to-morrow for Syracuse stopping at Minetto and Fulton. Fare from Fulton to Syracuse and return 75 cents. Train will pass Fulton at 9:30.

The Board of Excise will meet next Monday evening at police court rooms to grant licenses for the ensuing year. The schedule for licenses this season will be: beer $30; hotel $50 to $100; store $[illegible] to $100 and drug stores $30.

The public are invited to attend the Union Gospel Service at S. of T. rooms, Saturday evening, at 7:45. Services will be opened by Mrs James Morrow who will [illegible] a scripture reading, followed by a [illegible] address by Rev G. W. Hughes, on "Spiritual Warfare."

Monday he was working about his house and to all appearances was in unusually good health. Mr. French was close and careful in all of his business transactions and was as anxious up to the time of his confinement to drive a sharp bargain as when in the prime of life.

He was a man widely known and was honest and honorable in his dealing with all, a special feature of his transactions being a desire to have all that could, in equity belong to him, and he died leaving a large amount of property.

A wife and two daughters, Mrs. A. C. Livingston and Miss Frankie French survive him; also a sister, Mrs. David VanBuren.

Time of funeral not announced.

On Friday, April 21, little Bessie Tyler, daughter of Virgil Tyler of this village died at the residence of her grandfather, Dr. Frank Barnes in Syracuse. Her remains were brought to Fulton Monday afternoon for interment.

Under the overspreading branches in Mt. Adnah, amid a bed of flowers her form lies buried, while her spirit has gone to Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me."

How weary amid the sombre groves I wander; as erst they are fair.
But one gold gift shines not, that once shone yonder, a child's gold hair.
One gentle thing that sounded, sounds not ever, a child's sweet tone;
One hand will seek the hollow of my hand never, I am alone!

Mrs Julia R. Titus, daughter of Squire Gaylord, late of Volney Centre, died in Rochester Sunday. Her body was brought to this village yesterday and taken to Volney Centre for interment.

Thursday morning a man named Wagner residing on Fred Schenck's farm, in Granby was found dead in bed. Heart disease was said to be the cause. Funeral was held Sunday and remains interred at Roosevelt.

A New Church.

No more will the fact be annually incorporated in news that "Oswego Falls is the only village in the state of its size without a house of worship." A heroic little band of workers of the Protestant Methodist faith who have been holding meetings in Howe's hall for some time have concluded to have a house of worship. It will cost about $3,000 and a subscription list is open for any to donate their mite that feel inclined. Several of the leading citizens in Fulton and Oswego Falls responded liberally when called upon and work was commenced upon the foundation yesterday. The building will be situated upon First street at a point equidistant from upper and lower Oswego Falls. Rev William Gibbs of Orwell has been assigned to this society as pastor.

W. Dempster Chase goes to Herkimer.

Watertown was chosen as the place of meeting for the conference of 1882.

Rev. H. W. Bennett was re-appointed presiding elder of the Herkimer district.

Rev. O. C. Cole, formerly pastor of the M. E. church in this village, has been appointed to establish a mission in Oswego Falls.

Ex-presiding elder Skeel is changed from the Oswego to the Herkimer district and has received an appointment at Frankfort.

The conference was organized into a missionary society. E. C. Bruce was elected vice president, W. Dempster Chase secretary and R. J. Smith treasurer.

Rev G. M. Mead, the new presiding elder of this district, is about 40 years of age and is a man of family. He was three years in charge of the Arsenal street church in Watertown, and from thence went to Ilion where he stayed three years, when he was sent to Rome and had been there only one year when he received his present appointment.

The leading laymen of the M. E. church in Oswego and Fulton are contemplating petitioning the proper authorities for a change from the Northern to the Central N. Y. conference. Their claim is not made without some degree of justness, as Syracuse is the headquarters for the Central while Watertown is for the Northern. The business interests of Oswego and Fulton are so closely identified with Syracuse that a change would save a great amount of time and inconvenience and place them where they really should be.

Nicholas Althouse who was sent to jail by the last U. S. court at Utica for selling whiskey without government license wants to be released. He says he has no property and that he is unable to pay the fine. He was released.

The Oswego Times Saturday edition came out enlarged to eight pages, and was well filled with live and acceptable matter. It will be repeated again this week. The Times is never behindhand in catering liberally to its patrons.

We received a very pleasant call yesterday afternoon from Mr. Henry Gilbert and wife of Albany, N. Y. Mr. Gilbert is employed upon the new capitol building and favored us with a graphic description of things about it.

The young ladies of the Oswego Normal school indulged in a masquerade a few nights ago. One feature of the evening was a fan drill, another a scene from "Patience" in which twenty embryo tutors represented lovesick maidens, etc. As all these little foolish frolics require about two or three weeks practice to make a creditable show, and as they are occuring with alarming frequency it would be interesting to know what portion of their time is allotted to genuine study. After they remain in the Normal about such a stated time a graduating day is inevitable.

[illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] have [illegible] in their travels.

The parties moving the building have at least in one instance utterly disregarded the most common rights of citizens and property owners along the route. An ornamental Elm on the corner of my lot has been mutilated because of the incompetency of the gentleman (?) who ran the building over on my line and against this tree. Instead of moving the building back from the tree, or tying up the limbs, or removing the projection on the building, or springing the tree from the building, have taken the other method because the easiest, and with an ax cut several limbs, mutilating the tree, which had only partially recovered from a like indecent assault by a former street commissioner. I was not consulted in the matter, and only received a wordy abuse when asking by what authority it was done.

An Ex-president of Baldwinsville, who says he is working by the day in this "moving spectacle," volunteers the advice that the tree needed trimming and he had a right to do it. He claimed to have authority from the village Board, which is untrue. I remarked to this gentleman that I preferred to do my own pruning as our tastes somewhat differed!

This mutilating and trespassing upon my grounds was done in my absence and without my knowledge. There is no excuse for this outrage on my rights, and to feel that you are exposed to the caprice and tender mercy of a party of irresponsible bushwhackers.

Have we any adequate protection? Are our ornamental trees, planted in accordance with the provisions of the village charter to be exposed to the whims and thoughtlessness of barbarians? Can a backwoodsman who has muscle to swing an ax, slash and mutilate our trees? How long would these same heedless, lawless men submit to an indignity and insult of the like character on their own premises?

"Put yourself in his place." For one we protest against this continued rule of opinionated, mulish men whose greatest virtue seems to culminate in reckless vandalism.

Ten days on bread and water would increase their mental and moral perception. The Board of the village have not or cannot give these selfish men any authority to trespass or injure private property. W. L. W.

SAMARITAN
NERVINE!

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Epileptic Fits, Spasms, Convulsions, St Vitus Dance, Vertigo, Insanity, Apoplexy, Paralysis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all Nervous Diseases. This infallible remedy will positively eradicate every species of Nervous Derangement, and drive them away from whence they came, never to return again. It utterly destroys the germs of disease by neutralizing the hereditary taint or poison in the system, and thoroughly eradicate the disease, and utterly destroys the cause.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Female Weakness, General Debility, Leucorrhoea or Whites, Painful Menstruation, Ulceration of the Uterus, Internal Heat, Gravel, Inflamation of the Bladder, Irritability of the Bladder. For Wakefulness at Night, there is no better remedy. During the change of life no Female should be without it. It quiets the Nervous System and gives rest comfort and nature's sweet sleep.

SVMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Alcholism, Drunkenness and the habit of Opium Eating. These degrading habits are by far the worst evils that have ever befallen suffering humanity. Thousands die annually from these noxious drugs. The drunkard drinks liquor not because he likes it but for the pleasure of drinking and treating his friends, little thinking that he is on his road to ruin. Like the Opium Eater, he first uses the drug in small quantities as a harmless antidote. The soothing influence of the drug takes strong hold upon its victim, leading him on to his own destruction. The habits of Opium Eating and Liquor Drinking are precisely what eating is to alimentiveness, as over-eating first inflames the stomach, which redoubles its cravings until it paralyzes both the stomach and appetite. So every drink of liquor or dose of opium, instead of satisfying, only adds to its fierce fires, until it consumes the vital forces and then itself. Like the gluttonous tape-worm, it cries "Give, give, give!" but never enough until its own rapacity devours itself. Samaritan Nervine gives instant relief in all such cases. It produces sleep, quiets the nerves, builds up the nervous system, and restores body and mind to a healthy condition.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Nervous Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Asthma, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Syphilis, diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases of the urinary organs. Nervous debility, caused by the indiscretions of youth, permanently cured by the use of this valuable remedy. To you, young middle-aged and old men, who are covering your sufferings as with a mantle by silence, look up, you can be saved by timely efforts, and make ornaments to society, and jewels in the crown of your Maker, if you will. Do not keep this a secret longer, until it saps your vitals, and destroys both body and soul. If you are thus afflicted, take Dr. Richmond's Samaritan Nervine. It will restore your shattered nerves, arrest premature decay, impart tone and energy to the whole system.

SAMARITAN NERVINE.

Is for sale by druggists everywhere, or may be had direct from us. Those who wish to obtain further evidence of the curative properties of Samaritan Nervine will please enclose a 3 cent postage stamp for a copy of our Illustrated Journal of Health, giving hundreds of testimonials of cure from persons who have used the medicine, and also their pictures photographed after their restoration to perfect health. [illegible] that I speak, my darling,
From my heart and brain,
God giveth me one last thing to say,
With it thou shalt not part.

"Thou wilt listen to many voices,—
And, Oh, that these must be!—
The voice of praise, the voice of love,
And voice of flattery.

"But listen to me my little one,
There's one thing thou shalt fear;
Let ne'er a word to my love be said
Thy mother may not hear.

"No matter how true, my darling one,
The words may seem to thee,
They are not fit for my love to hear,
If not indeed for me.

"If thou'lt ever keep thy young heart pure,
Thy mother's heart from fear,
Bring all that is told thee, day by day
At night to the mother's ear."

As thus they sat spinning together,
An angel bent to see
The mother and child whose happy life
Went on so lovingly.

A record was made by the golden pen,
This on his page he said:
The mother who counselled her child so well,
Need never feel afraid;

For God would keep the heart of the child
With tender love and fear,
Who lisps at her mother's side at night,
All to her mother's ear.

Prospecting in the Northwest.

Fisher, Polk Co., Minn.

To the Editor of the Fulton Times:

Once again I am back to the busy little town of Fisher, from whence I started but a few days ago to enjoy a pleasure trip up toward the headwaters of the Red Lake river.

Red Lake Falls, a little village deriving its name from the stream on whose shores it is built, was our first stopping point, after a pleasant day's ride. This village is being "boomed" by speculators to its utmost, and has been nicknamed "Minneapolis" owing to its vast and yet undeveloped water powers. The falls or rapids are about five miles long, and there is probably a good millsite to every mile. The bed of the river is rocky, which will make dams safe, if properly put in, during the high water of spring. Thompson & Johnson, of this village, have bought a water power there, and will have a mill in the course of erection before long. Their water power has a seventeen foot fall, and is equal to 800 horse power. There is also a saw mill on the river. A mill and water power to be a success, must have another requisite: a good wheat growing country around it; and Red Lake Falls has this.

After a good night's rest we started on our tour of exploration and land hunting, going now up the Clear Water river. The first stream we crossed was Badger creek, that flows into the Clear Water about six miles east of the falls. This creek drains a splendid tract of timber and prairie land, for twenty miles, and is settled for a good many miles on each side. The next strean reached was Poplar river, a stream considerably larger than the Badger and ten miles farther east. This stream has its source in the White Earth reservation, draining the country throughout its course, probably fifty or sixty miles in length. The land is a deep, rich, black loam, and is brush prairie; but easily broken and readily brought into a fine state of cultivation. The next stream is the Neill river and is the largest and finest of the three. This also rises in the White Earth reservation and runs through a rolling prairie and timber country. It is called by the Indians, Hill river.

After crossing the river, and pushing on a few miles east, we came to the end of the eastern settlement. From here we started south along the river. Here I saw the most beautiful country that it has been my pleasure to gaze upon. The portion of prairie and timber is nearly equally divided, and a stream of the finest water meanders through the finest meadow land the sun ever shone upon.

There is but little land left for the settlers in Minnesota, and it will soon be a scarcity in Dakota. My trip up thro' Red Lake Falls and beyond, was with the intent of locating a claim—to buy 160 acres of Uncle Sam's fertile soil. But not being suited I shall try my luck up in the Maple Lake region next. The reason I was not satisfied with the land, was because I was too late. All the best land was taken, and the most of that which is not surveyed is squatted upon, which gives the squatter the first chance when it is opened for settlement. The Mouse river country of Dakota is receiving the attention of a great many land hunters. It has not been surveyed yet, but the land is being taken up very fast. A person going there and building his shanty, and making improvements, will be noticed in the surveyor's report and he has the first chance in taking it up. There will be a large party starting from here in a few weeks, to locate on the Mouse river, in some place where there is a good prospect of starting a village, with a water power.

Another place of note is the Coos [illegible]

[illegible] in the cases of health. This gentleman's disease was the offspring of foul blood, and Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY purified the blood and restored to him the power once more to enjoy his life. Are you suffering from any disease traceable to the same cause? Try Favorite Remedy. Your druggist has it. One Dollar a bottle. Bear in mind the proprietor's name and address: Dr David Kennedy, Rondout, New York.

Hard Work and Small Pay.

It was interesting to notice the industry of the people, writes a correspondent from abroad. In Bliecastle, Germany, there are a number of small shops where nails are made. The smiths hammer them out of wrought iron. Cut nails after the American pattern seem to be unknown. Dogs make the bellows to blow by treading the inner circumference of a wheel. They give it a turn and then stop, put their heads through the spokes and snarl at strangers. They know very well by the sound of the fire in the forge when it is time for them to start the wheel again. That was a lesson early learned in their working career. The dogs off duty sleep beside the anvil, and unwillingly take their turn at the bellows. Workmen are paid by the hundred for the nails made.

A potter whom we found industriously plying his trade sat with his back against the wall and his bare foot on the wheel for twenty seven years. Friction had worn and polished the wood, but the mat was breaking down. He was very little better off than the day he first put his foot to the wheel.

Mr. Michael Robbet, 77 Sargent street, Cahoes, N. Y., was cured of a very severely injured knee by St. Jacob's Oil, says the Rochester, N. Y.

A Sort of Intermixing.

A few years ago there lived in Oxford county, Maine, an aged widow, who had fifteen children. A peculiarity in this family was what may be called a "double marriage." Thus, two of the daughters married brothers, named Palmer; two of the sons married sisters; named Barrows; two other sons married sisters named Bonney; two granddaughters, sisters, married brothers, named Bonney, and thus became sister-in-law to their uncles' wives, two other granddaughters, sisters, married brothers named Bonney, cousins of those already named. Thus there were five double marriages in this family, three of the children and two of the grandchildren of this old lady. Another peculiarity in this family was that twelve of them, six sons and six daughters, settled down on farms within two miles of their mother. On one road there were three owning farms next to each other, and on another road five in succession; and the farms on the first road were only divided from some of those on the second by a river that ran between them.

A REMARKABLE COINCIDENCE.

It is a matter of journalistic record, that some years since, a schooner set sail from Baltimore, having on board a crew of thirteen men. By a most singular freak of nature, the entire force was attacked by a skin disease, which manifested itself in large ulcerated sores on the arms and hands, wholly incapacitating the men from duty. The result was that the vessel was towed back to the city where the men were placed in the hospital. Moral! Had Swayne's Ointment for skin diseases been used in the first place, the crew would have recovered in from 12 to 24 hours. 46w4

MAKING BUTTER AND CHEESE.

MONEY IN THE DAIRY.

The Plan Pursued in Ashtabula County, Ohio, in Making Cheese and Fine Butter.

BY HENRY TALCOTT

When I agreed to give you an article on the dairy, I had in my mind only the practical part of this business, or in other words, the money that can be made from this source by farmers. I do not care to enter into a minute and scientific lecture upon the manufacture of both butter and cheese. My connection with this industry has been of a practical nature for many years. I have kept the cows on my farm, furnished the milk as a patron; also for thirty years past have been manufacturing factory supplies—cans, vats, etc.—and for fifteen years have been salesman and banker for from one to eight factories each year and am still in the business.

I am well aware that the surroundings of this locality may be so different from many others that our rules for a successful dairy business here might not be correct for other places.

The growing demand all over the world for a uniform article of butter and cheese has given the greatest portion of strength and success to this industry. The old farm dairy was very impracticable, because very few people ever learned to be master workmen at this business, and unless they had a large dairy it would not pay them to give it proper attention, and no class of farm work could ever compare with it in absolute slavery. No matter what might happen—a meeting, wedding, dance or funeral—the everlasting old cheese vat had to be used once a day, and directly on time or the whole thing was a failure. You could not let every member of the family do this work, because it gives too great a variety of cheese.

There is no computing the annual loss to the American husbandman for the poor butter and cheese made at the dairy before the co-operative plan among farmers to do this work in factories, and from the great haste that people made at first to introduce the factory system and also the lesson they had to learn by bitter experience in hiring incompetent cheese makers to do the work for a small price, made a serious drawback that has told against the business more fearfully than any other one thing. The cheese maker is usually or very often, one of the sale committee, and if poor goods are sent to market he will get this information suppressed if possible and not let the patrons know the real failure, but will constantly urge for milk to be delivered to the factory in prime condition in order to get a fair price, hoping for better luck next time, and by this blind, if possible make the patrons understand some one or more of their number are furnishing poor milk. There is no excuse for this state of affairs any longer. There are plenty of skilled workmen all over the country who will manufacture cheese and be responsible for all the poor ones they make—it is their business to reject all milk that will not make good cheese—and then we hold them responsible for reasonably good cheese, and upon no other conditions can they secure a situation here.

Much has been said and written about full cream cheese and a holy horror has been showered upon the head of any man who should claim that cheese made only once a day, would bear a little skimming of the night's milk, and not injure the quality of the cheese. There is no doubt full milk will yield more in quantity than half skimmed or three fourths. In 1875 I bought the milk of sixteen patrons of one of our Jefferson factories, and was to have full milk the entire season. There were one hundred and four patrons in all who sent milk to the factory. In the fall butter became scarce, and the price advanced so much our patrons became satisfied they could make more money by skimming their night's milk. They held a patrons' meeting and voted to do this, commencing the first of October. I had bought my milk from all parts of town, and could not get hold of it to make my share of the butter. We were using five vats in the factory. I told our cheese maker I would part company with our patrons, and he might make the milk from my own farm and the sixteen other dairies. I had bought in a vat by itself, and we would see at the close of the season how we came out.

My cheese were full cream, if such a thing is possible, and not make cheese twice each day, so as never to let cream rise at all on the milk. This we continued until the first of December; but during the month of November we only made cheese from two to three times a week. This made no difference with me; I let all the cream stay in the can and kept pouring each milking of new milk into the can until the milk haulers would haul it to the factory. By hauling it to the factory it became all churned up together so thoroughly it did not look when put in the vat, as though the cream had ever risen but would look far richer than the patrons' milk. At the close of the season [illegible] full cream cheese was [illegible] and we paid them for [illegible] cents per pound, and the patrons' skim milk [illegible] had to sell to the same [illegible] cents—two cents per pound [illegible]

[illegible] only took a fraction [illegible] of my milk [illegible]

[illegible] cool for cheese needs to be [illegible] butter alone—as [illegible] is desirable as well as [illegible] I think no superiors to [illegible] Durham cattle [illegible] will ever be found for [illegible] gives one advantage [illegible] if they go farrow [illegible] with difficulty before [illegible] they turn into beef [illegible] when dried, and you never lose a cent.

Having the proper feed and cows, next comes the climate. Where you have reasonably cool nights, so the milk can be kept sweet and without the expense of ice you can manufacture good cheese. If all these things can be secured and you can locate a factory in any district that will furnish 400 cows or more, and not have to haul the milk a greater distance than five miles, it is a reasonably good prospect for a factory. An eight hundred or a thousand cow factory will pay far better dividends to the patrons and stock holders than small ones, unless they haul milk too far to get their numbers. These large factories turn off from $30,000 to $40,000 worth of cheese per season, and I could always make a little better price for so large an amount.

The requisite number of cows being secured, you want, by contract, or in some way, to bind each man to always let his milk go to the factory upon the same terms and upon the same conditions as the rest, or else your factory will be ruined in a short time—as soon as the men find out they have got a factory, and that their location will permit them to break up a good milk route for a team, unless they are paid an extra bonus for their milk in some way. There are lots of farmers mean enough to do this. That will explain to you why I bought the milk of sixteen different dairies in 1875, heretofore mentioned; it was because three or four men on each milk route would spoil the whole business, unless the factory would buy their milk at a good large price—more than they believed it could possibly bring. It gives them an advantage that no class of men stand high enough in any community not to except, unless restrained by contract. This is a serious objection against investing money in a cheese factory.

This difficulty being settled, then look for a factory site. Never mind a village but get as near a good cool spring or clear cold water in abundance as you can. You need an immense amount of good, nice cold water, and drainage also for the factory in some stream of water, and before you start secure by contract the right to use the stream from all parties owning it for at least one mile, or they will sue you for damages done the water after you get fairly started, for this class of men are as sharp as any other. In short, you must keep your eye peeled all the time for all such local breakers. There are enough honest risks to run without the meanness I have mentioned; but I have seen too many bitter lawsuits over this question not to take heed, for the factories get beat every time; juries show corporations no mercy.

The size of a factory of course, depends on the number of cows you have reason to expect. It is best to have them built on a side hill, so the receiving place can be in the second story, and also the curing room. One or even two hundred cow factories can be run with self heating or furnace heating factory cheese vats, but for large factories you really need steam. All factories need one good warm curing room for early and late cheese, under perfect control with heat. If this is not attended to great loss is sustained every season.

The vats, milk cans and all such fixtures are reduced to a perfect science, and every good competent cheese maker can inform you the best, and it is no trouble to get them in any locality in the country. Avoid milk cans with bands or any place outside or inside you cannot get at easy to wash, scald and keep sweet and clean. Milk haulers ought to be provided with a cover to spread over their milk cans when on the road, to keep out dust and storm. You must be neat and clean with milk or you spoil the cheese. It will not do to keep the cows in a dirty filthy place, for you will taint the milk. Dead animals or carrion of any kind must not be allowed on the farm. I have known the cheese from a whole factory utterly ruined because the calves which our farmers deaconed were thrown out upon the lot and the carcasses not buried. This putrid air will spoil the milk in every instance if cows are allowed to breathe it. They must have pure air, pure feed and pure water, pure stables and clean, neat and tidy milkers. If a cow happens to get a little dirt on her teats or bag, or even worse, don't milk a stream into your hand and wash it off and then let it drip into the milk pail; and never learn to milk by soaking the teat with milk and then let it drip into the pail, but always be decent, and clean the bag before you commence to milk. I find it a good plan to make my hired help eat bread and milk once in a while to keep them from being too dirty in this work. I mention all these little things, because it is absolutely necessary to have everything done right. I have had to submit to large discounts when selling cheese for some of my factories for neglect of this kind. But, again, it will never do to let milk stand in a stable any length of time. It must be removed to some good, cool, sweet place to keep it nice. Always bear in mind this is for human food, and do the work so that you can relish it yourself.

When the farmer does supply good sweet milk to the factory his responsibility ends—next hold your cheese maker. I find it does not make much difference in market whether a cheese is made on the acid plan or sweet curd, provided your manufacturer understand his business either way. I have had the sale of both kinds each year for years, and have put them upon the market and had them sold upon their merits and almost every other way, but there would be as much difference in price of either kind between the makers themselves as the opposite. You all know the cheese must pass through a curing process, and the curd must be in an acid condition at some stage either before or after it goes to press. I could always get acid cheese on the market a little earlier in the spring, but no great advantage from that.

I think no person should ever use the April or early spring milk for butter and cheese to put upon the market, but [illegible] price, and you will be compelled to accept two or three weaker ones. I have found it most advantageous to build up a market for our different factories by selling their cheese year after year in the same place; the supply and demand can be made more equal, and produce more uniform and better results. We have hundreds of customers that knew our Ashtabula county cheese from the different factories as perfectly as you do your children, and when they acquire a taste for a certain brand you cannot sell them another. It is very important to have a good reliable salesman—one whose head is not turned instantly by the twaddle of cheese buyers and speculators.

The returns from this industry average this year about $45 per cow from the factory net earning to the patron or a plump cent per pound for milk. Besides this they have skimmed off cream enough for strawberries, made their own butter and possibly a little more for some city cousin. They never let this be known to the public, or give us any statistics in our farmers' conventions.

I am glad to see a great improvement in the public taste not requiring a high colored cheese. Every sensible person on earth ought to know that it is not natural and can not possibly add a particle of richness to the flavor; and if they could only see the nasty stuff we stir in to color it, I think they would all pronounce against it at once.

No section of country should all go into the dairy business exclusively. You must do some other farming with it, or you soon impoverish your soil. No soil will bear constant drain for any one specialty, many years, without exhausting its natural fertility.

A reasonable factory for 400 cows and upwards will cost from $2,000 upwards, and you must have things good and perfect, or you fail. There are many annoying features to the business, but the greatest arise from dishonesty on the part of those who furnish milk. Not a season passes but what some men have to be punished for watering milk, skimming too much beyond the factory rules, or some such caper. Every factory is compelled to keep little glass test tubes, to set the milk of different patrons for cream, and see if each is furnishing nearly the same quality of milk. These tubes are made of glass about one inch in diameter and eight inches long, tight at the bottom. You fill three or four dozen of the these from different messes of milk, and let them be put upon a milk rack numbered for that purpose. Then when you put each man's milk in, make a record of his number, and in twenty-four hours all the cream will rise and you can then see who the honest men are; and whenever you catch a sinner, all it is necessary to do is to send for him to come to the factory immediately. Then show him the record book and cream tube, and his cows will commence to give good milk the next day or else he will be mad and stop sending milk.

Many professing Christianity who are too pious to send milk Sunday, have to be very closely watched almost invariably. Their hired girl or hired man will pour in some Saturday night or Sunday morning's milk; consequently, it is skimmed too deep, and in hot weather generally sours the whole mess. These items are all important, and if any of my readers contemplate embarking in the business, they will have every difficulty I have enumerated to contend with. This much for cheese

NOW FOR THE BUTTER.

The butter part of the dairy is the gold, and cheese may properly be called the nickel or silver.

The present price of butter here is from 15 cents per pound to 48 cents, and all shades between these two. Now, which kind do you want to manufacture and put upon the market? If you have the means at your command to produce good, sweet milk, as I have mentioned before in this article, good butter can be made of it, providing you know how and will then do it.

If you can deliver milk to a cheese factory twice a day, they can then afford to keep a good, nice, clean, sweet room for that purpose, and by having plenty of cold water and ice, can make creamery butter every time; and not a pound of this made in Ashtabula county, Ohio, has sold for less than 40 cents for a long time past, and is generally from 43 cents to 45 cents. We have a few large dairy farmers who can do this, but it is terrible confining work for them to do it, and requires immense care.

But I will give you a brief description of our best creameries and but few have gone into this alone. They engage the cream from as near a thousand cows milk as possible. Every patron is compelled to furnish as pure and clean milk as they can. It has to be taken away from the stable as fast as milked from the cows, and then strained through several thicknesses of muslin cloth put inside of a common wire gauze milk strainer. It is put in clean tin cans of uniform diameter, and these are supplied by the factory. The cans must be set in a trough of certain depth and cool water (ice water if necessary) to keep them cooled down to from 40 deg to 50 deg. This must all be done in a good clean milk room or in pure open air.

Once a day a cream gatherer comes around with a large cooler can so suspended on a spring wagon that he can carry the cream back to the factory and not agitate it. He does the skimming himself, and no patron is allowed to meddle with the milk after putting it into the can, except to keep the water at proper temperature. Each one is credited the exact amount of cream taken from the cans, and it is done by measure in inches, the cans belonging to the factory all being uniform in size; of course larger dairies will use more in number. After this is done, the farmer is then allowed to do anything he chooses with his skim milk. The cream from this process, when as carefully handled all through this process, as the care of the milk, does make a gilt edge butter that is selling for from 45 to 50 cents per pound to-day, while poor, white, winter butter, made from stable milk and kept in a common house pantry, where there are a thousand different kinds of stinks and all the steam and odor from the kitchen stove work, besides standing so long it gets fairly putrid, and then by two or three hours churning it comes white and salvy, not hardly as palatable as good sweet lard, not good enough to be eaten at home, and will only bring 15 cents in store pay, and is dear at that. A large portion of farm dairy butter is all made upon this plan during the summer, [illegible]

[illegible] butter and cheese makers with the kinds that suited them best, so there would be no grumbling on that score or excuse for bad work. There are hundreds of different kinds of coolers on the market, and your Hardin's of Louisville is good for any warm climate. The best one we have in any of our creameries here is sandstone troughs deep enough to set tall milk cans in, and flow ice water all around them. They can be made with brick and water lime cement, and helps to keep the water cooler where ice is beyond the reach.

The churning requires judgment. It is well sometimes to salt the cream; it gets worked in more evenly, and you do not have to crush the grain of the butter as bad by over-working it. The least you can work it and get out the buttermilk, the better the result. It should never be handled enough to reduce it to a salvey condition. The purest and best salt in the world is by far most profitable to buy—no matter what the price may be. High priced butter is very profitable, and yields the farmer a large price for his milk. It is a source of great satisfaction to know you have performed every duty in this world well.

The cheese and butter industry here can be made to equal any section of the world, and in no country or clime should we be excelled. Our people have the intelligence and every means at their command to do perfect work, and if this was better done it would increase home consumption of these goods, and by that stimulus advance the present prices and production. It requires good sound judgment, and years to perfect this business. The cattle must be grown, and a judicious herdsman can do this at will. We can mold any breed of animals necessary for the use of man, or develop almost any peculiar characteristic we desire, by intelligent thought and careful work.

Nature has blessed us with untold resources, given us powers of reason, made mind the master of matter, and we alone are to blame if we do not reach the top round of every ladder of fame.

CLOTHING!

Whose Clothing? when the other brands
Are left upon the dealers hands,
Is quickly sold through out the land,
Arnold's!

Whose are the clothes? that shed the dew,
Bear sun and rain and yet seem new;
And look so smooth and glossy too!
Arnold's!

The heat and cold, the sleet and rain,
'Gainst Arnold's clothing beats in vain;
Their color always will remain.

UNIQUE BLENDED JAPAN TEA!

None Genuine without the Trade Mark.

Full weight guaranteed without the package.

Why These Teas are Preferred to all Others.

Because they are the best and cheapest TEAS ever offered in America.

Because they are always the same, and never disappointing.

Because they are adapted to the wants of every locality, and to the particular water of every district.

Because they are absolutely pure, and uncolored, and every leaf as natural as when on the tree.

Because they are soothing to the nerves, and invigorating to the system.

Because every package serves the same purpose as a caddy.

LYNCH, colored, has been awarded a seat in congress from Mississippi, contested by Gen. Chalmers. It must have aroused varied memories in the minds of some of the members of the House when the colored member arose and addressed them.

CAPT. JOHN A. WISE, ex-Confederate, and son of the governor of Virginia who hung John Brown, has been nominated U. S. district-attorney by President Arthur. This ought to make all honest men, and especially all old-time Abolitionists feel very happy.

ALL efforts have failed to identify a murderer at Bucyrus, Ohio. He calls himself John Smith and says that is a good enough name to take to the scaffold. He wantonly killed a marshal, who was trying to arrest him for drunkenness, and he is now under sentence of death. His only purpose now is to die without being discovered by his relatives and friends.

CRANKS are springing up all over the world. McLean is in a lunatic asylum for attempting to assassinate Queen Victoria and Guiteau under sentence of death for killing President Garfield. Albert Young was arrested in London, Saturday, for writing threatening letters to the Queen's private secretary demanding money or he would kill the Queen. He will be taken care of.

Two infernal machines were discovered in a United States mail bag, in New York Saturday morning, addressed to Cyrus W. Field and W. H. Vanderbilt. One exploded in the bag on the elevated road with a loud report, discoloring the mail matter and scorching the leather pouch. The pasteboard boxes contained canisters of powder with an electric attachment. There is no clue to the perpetrators. It caused considerable excitement.

JAMES G. BLAINE who was on the witness stand in Washington before the committee on Foreign Affairs, being interrogated regarding his knowledge of the unsavory Peruvian muddle, lost his temper and referred to Mr. Belmont, who was questioning him, as a garbage boy. Mr. Belmont retorted in an ungentlemanly manner also, by telling Mr. Blaine he was a bully and a coward. Such unseemly exhibitions of temper by public men is disgusting.

CONGRESS has passed another Chinese restricting bill with the only apparent difference from the first one being a reduction of their virtual banishment from the United States for from twenty to ten years. Intense and perhaps dangerous excitement in California would ensue if Mr. Arthur should renew his veto of the Chinese bill, as passed in its present shape, with the term of the exclusion reduced from twenty to ten years. Even though this modification should fail to cancel the president's objections to the measure, he might safely conclude that the Executive theory might be conscientiously abandoned in favor of congressional action and popular sentiment.

NEIGHBORING NEWS.

The Syracuse Sunday Times says When butter goes up, the grocer learns it by telegraph. When it falls, a mail brings the report.

Mr. Adam Horr is in possession of the intelligence that his wife, and her sister widow of the late Matthew Horr, have fallen heirs to $14,000 each, by the death of their father, in Michigan. They expect to receive the money some time next month. [Phenix Register.

Forty skeletons have been exhumed at Oneida by railroad laborers. They were all in a sitting posture, the feet of one being against the back of another. Daniel Sconond, the present chief of the Oneida's, says that it was a graveyard for the warriors killed in battle or the chase.

Two gentlemen of this city, on Tuesday, riding in from North Hannibal saw a strange looking object on the road, and on examining, found it to be a United States mail bag, and full, at that. The bag was intact, and the gentlemen took it to the nearest post office in Oswego Town. It had doubtless fallen from the mail carriers wagon, and had not been missed. [Oswego Palladium.

Joseph Bowley, a night watchman in the Onondaga county savings bank building, Syracuse, threw himself out of a second story window Friday morning with suicidal intent, but was not injured. He afterwards went into the office of the Trust and Deposit company, of which he was a private watchman, took a revolver from a drawer and deliberately shot himself through the breast, the ball just missing the heart, inflicting a probably mortal wound. He is a man about 40 years of age and has a wife and one son.

A man may be incredulous enough to risk his money in the fickle mysteries of a mercurial stock market but when he gets the itching piles, he goes straight for Dr. Swayne's Ointment. Unlike the Bulls and Bears of the stock exchange, who clean you out of hard earned cash, it returns your money with interest, in the way of allaying the intense itching and insuring repose. 50t4

James E. Sheridan received a letter from his brother Charles, last week, who is in Sidney, Australia. He is well and prospering and says he recently met William Murphy, an old Fulton boy, who had just returned from India and adjoining countries where he had been for two years traveling with a circus.

Capt. J. S. Palmer and his son, Ira, were sawing wood by machinery early Friday morning at their shop on Second street when a balance wheel exploded, the pieces flying in all directions, but injuring no one. A fragment weighing 180 pounds alighted on Mrs. Cooper's house, 50 feet away, breaking through and alarming the sleeping occupants.

We have received a communication from the president of the village of Baldwinsville, Mr. Erwin Fairbanks, in reply to "An Aggrieved Citizen," W. L. W. in last week's Times. Mr. Fairbanks had the contract for moving the building which caused the injury to W. L. W.'s trees. We would be pleased to give Mr. Fairbanks a hearing, but his letter is too personal for publication in THE TIMES.

[illegible] Return.

Mrs. C. S. Eggleston and Miss Sarah Warner returned to Fulton this morning from an extended sojourn in Europe, covering nearly nine months. Their return was wholly unexpected and was a joyous surprise to their friends. Mrs. Eggleston is greatly improved in health and Miss Warner has perfected herself in various studies while across the ocean. Their return was impeded by no delays or accidents and every one will wish them a warm welcome home.

Delicate Surgical Operation.

Dr. Chas. R. Lee performed a difficult surgical operation last Saturday in obliterating an unsightly spot on the head of Richard Bell's seven year old child by removing the skin which bore hair and drawing it over the bare spot in what are known as sliding flaps. Three flaps made, covered nearly one third of the exposed spot, which was nearly two inches in diameter and had never borne any hair, and the transplanted skin and its hair are catching hold and doing nicely. It is thought it will spread over the whole space.

Says it is Malicious.

The Fulton Patriot published an item last week stating that Mrs. A. Ramage had been taken to the House of Refuge for intemperance. Mr. Ramage says it is as false as it is malicious. He sent his wife to the House of the Good Shepherd in Syracuse and paid her railroad fare, board and all incidental expenses. While he acknowledges intemperance was the cause of her removal he asks that the truth be stated. Mrs. Ramage is now at home and through the friendly offices of many Christian ladies is making a sincere effort to reform.

Fulton Board of Trade.

The annual meeting of the members of the Fulton Board of Trade was held at the Lewis House last Wednesday at 3 p. m., for the election of officers for the ensuing year. The following officers were unanimously elected :

Willard Johnson—President.
Almon Bristol—1st Vice-President.
Patrick Powers—2d Vice-President.
Joseph Francis—Sec'y and Treasurer.

On motion $15.00 was appropriated to pay for market telegrams for the season ; the secretary was instructed to notify each member by mail of the call of an annual meeting at least ten days before it is held ; $10.00 was voted the retiring secretary for services in 1881 ; the secretary was authorized to collect $5.00 from each factory ; $10.00 was voted for secretary for 1882 ; Messrs Powers, Bristol and Johnson were appointed a committee to secure rooms for holding weekly meetings, and Monday, May 15, 1882, was announced as the first sale day of the season. The annual meeting adjourned sine die at 3:30.

A Mysterious Death.

A woman arrived in Oswego Falls Friday by the evening train from Syracuse. She was accompanied by a man, the couple alleging Granby Centre to be their destination. They went to the residence of Mrs. Franklin and soon after arriving the woman was taken violently ill. Dr. Wells was summoned and at once pronounced her case fatal. Friday she died and Monday her body was shipped to North Bay for interment. It is said she was a paramour of Seeley, a member of the Loomis gang recently arrested in Fulton by officer Ney, and her presence in this locality is wholly unaccounted for. She was buried by the town of Granby.

Another report says she lived with Seely in Granby last winter and was returning to her home from a visit to him at Canastota where he is confined in jail awaiting trial upon a serious charge. She gave her name as Marshall.

D. H. Trimble's new cheese factory and creamery at South Scriba burned between one and two o'clock Monday morning. The factory was just built and was not yet in operation. In the building were two vats, a press and churn. There had been no one in the factory since Saturday and there had never been a fire in the building. The engine was to have arrived the same day and it was expected that operations would begin this week. The ice house escaped. The loss is from $1,500 to $1,700 and is covered by insurance.

James S. Fraser, commader of the G. A. R. of the State of New York requests that the clergy of all denominations be respectfully requested to set apart one service of Sunday, May 28th, as a memorial service. Post commanders will, through their decoration committees, see that this request be conveyed to them. Flags at decoration day should be displayed at half mast. Post commanders will immediately after decoration day, forward to comrade S. W. Edgerton, Chaplain of the department of New York, Sing Sing, N. Y., full reports relative to the observance of the day in their respective localities. Decoration day will be Tuesday, May 30.

A TELLING LAW.

Mr. Charles Law Jr., in conversation with one of our representatives, recently said ; "I have been a sufferer from rheumatism and neuralgia for the past ten years, and tried all kinds of remedies. Having heard so much about St. Jacob's Oil, I tried a bottle, and found it truly wonderful.

The Contract Awarded.

The contract for repaving streets in the business portion of the village has been awarded to Mr. T. A. Paddock of Mexico. Bids were received from Syracuse, Oswego and other places but Mr. Paddock's was the lowest, being three and one fourth cents per square foot. Mr. Paddock was one of the original contractors who paved the streets some thirty-five years ago when Lovewell Johnson was president of the village. Mr. Paddock is to take up all stone, furnish all sand and relay the crosswalks, the village to furnish dirt for grading purposes only. Work will be commenced as soon as the village board deem it practicable.

New Grocery.

James Morrow, Samuel B. Whitaker and Henry S. Gardner have formed a co-partnership under the name of James Morrow & Co. and will open a mammoth retail grocery store in the store under the post-office. They also propose to buy and sell all kinds of farmers' produce, deal in seeds, dairy and agricultural supplies and possibly verge into the wholesale trade. The gentlemen composing the firm are well known and are recognized as stirring and thorough business men. They will try and be ready for the public Monday morning and invite an inspection of their complete stock.

The Police Commission.

The recent agitation of the police, and the expected action of Mayor Demong has created great interest among all classes of citizens, and more or less anxiety among members of the force who feel that their places are rather insecure under such frequent changes. The Mayor is strongly condemned by some citizens and as strongly upheld by others. No matter if it has unsettled the police force one question has been definitely settled, that all parties including Mayor Demong, the old and the new Commissioners, members of the force, as well as citizens generally, can buy their clothing to much better advantage, whether as to quality, style or price, at the store of kent and miller, numbers eighteen and twenty syracuse, than any other place.

Granby Centre.

Our school commences next Monday. Miss Monk of Fulton is to be the teacher. She taught this school last summer and it is a good recommend in her favor to have a second appointment.

Last week a beautiful daughter of Mr. Smith Craver of this place died from the effects of fire. A fire to consume brush had been set Wednesday night and before the family retired water had been used until it was supposed all fire had been extinguished. The next morning, Rose not yet four years of age, went out to play when she came in contact with the fire and almost immediately she was enveloped in a sheet of flames. Hearing her first call, her mother and brother Johnie went out to meet her coming towards the house. Mrs. Craver succeeded in quickly removing the clothes which were in flames by the masterly aid of Johnnie. She lived but a few hours, as was expected by the physician. The funeral services were held in the church conducted by Rev. Mr. Gibbs of the Protestant Methodist church, of Oswego Falls.
R. K. SINGLETON.

Serious Charge.

Charles F Manley, a married man aged 24 who has two children, was lodged in Oswego jail last Wednesday for attempting to outrage a 13 year old girl who is deformed, named Julia Waters, living near Druces Corners. Manly was going by with a team and called at the house for a glass of water. The little girl was alone. She gave it to him and he then offered her a drink of whisky which she refused. Manly then made improper proposals and attempted to seize hold of her but she eluded his grasp and ran from the house towards the field where some men were at work. He following, overtook her and threw her down and attempted an outrageous assault but her screams attracted the attention of some women and he ran away.

Monday's Oswego Times says : Neighbors of the girl Julia Waters, who was the victim of Charles F. Manly in Volney a few days since, report that she has left Druces Corners to come to Oswego. They say that the girl was not well treated at home. Manly has not yet procured bail and probably will not be able to do so.

The Cheese Market.

UTICA, N. Y., May 1.—For the opening day of the market there was a large representation both of salesmen and buyers. Many of the former merely came to look on and prospect, not having any cheese ready for the market as yet. There was some disappointment at the indifference.

The highest sale of the day was a lot of 71 small cheese, full milk, weighing about 33 pounds each. These were from the Kelley Tract factory, and brought 13c. Of regular size, shipping cheese, 3 lots, containing 269 boxes, brought 12¼c. Seven other lots, 451 boxes in all, sold at 12¼c. Sales, 2,267 boxes ; total, 2,805. Ruling price, 12c.

LITTLE FALLS, May 1.—The cheese market is dull. Sales of 4,100 boxes of factory, 3,000 going on commission. Sales of 700 boxes at 7 and 12c. Sales of 400 boxes of farm dairy at 6 and 11c. Sales of 250 packages of butter at 24 and 26c.

READY MADE OR MADE TO ORDER.

Previous to the time that Messrs Van-Frankenburg&Co., of the Famous Opera Clothing Co., 2 and 3 Wieting Block, Syracuse, N. Y., opened their Retail Warerooms, there appeared to be a sameness about the shapes of Ready Made Clothing, in Syracuse, that was at once striking and singular and of very little credit to the houses, whether large or small, that sold such garments. It was a bold venture on the part of the "Famous" to step before the community with the most fashionable of garments, a quality and superior make up, which they had not been accustomed to buying, for no one ever sold Clothing in Syracuse that could go into successful competition with merchant tailors. It was left for the "Famous" to try that experiment. The field was open and new and the opportunity not lost sight of ; and the "old rut" concerns, managed by "old fogies" at first ridiculed, then disputed, then wondered and they will soon try and imitate. The people have decided the fate of "old fogyism and their verdict has settled in favor of the progressive advanced methods of The Famous Opera Clothing House, 2, and 3 Wieting Block, Syracuse. As a result The Famous enjoys a wonderful trade. Day after day crowds of people avail themselves of the opportunity of securing garments that will keep the shape and cannot be detected from garments made to measure, while other clothiers are contenting themselves by complaining about the dull times and the weather. Do yourself a favor dear reader and if in need of Clothing or not examine the attractive display of Men's, Youths,' Boys' and Children's Clothing, that is sold at one price and at small profits, at the store 2 and 3 Wieting Block, Syracuse, that is entitled to be termed "The Famous."

SAMARITAN NERVINE!

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Epileptic Fits, Spasms, Convulsions, St Vitus Dance, Viritigo, Insanity, Apoplexy, Paralysis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all Nervous Diseases. This infallable remedy will positively eradicate every species of Nervous Derangement, and drive them away from whence they came, never to return again. It utterly destroys the germs of disease by neutralizing the hereditary taint or poison in the system, and thoroughly eradicate the disease, and utterly destroys the cause.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Female Weakness, General Debility, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Painful Menstration, Ulceration of the Uterus, Internal Heat, Gravel, Inflamation of the Bladder, Irritability of the Bladder. For Wakefulness at Night, there is no better remedy. During the change of life no Female should be without it. It quiets the Nervous System and gives rest comfort and nature's sweet sleep.

SVMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Alcholism, Drunkenness and the habit of Opium Eating. These degrading habits are by far the worst evils that have ever befallen suffering humanity. Thousands die annually from these noxious drugs. The drunkard drinks liquor not because he likes it but for the pleasure of drinking and treating his friends, little thinking that he is on his road to ruin. Like the Opium Eater, he first uses the drug in small quantities as a harmless antidote. The soothing influence of the drug takes strong hold upon its victim, leading him on to his own destruction. The habits of Opium Eating and Liquor Drinking are precisely what eating is to alimentiveness, as over-eating first inflames the stomach, which redoubles its cravings until it paralyzes both the stomach and appetite. So every drink of liquor or dose of opium, instead of satisfying, only adds to its fierce fires, until it consumes the vital force and then itself Like the gluttonous tape-worm, it cries "Give, give, give!" but never enough until its own rapacity devours itself. Samariton Nervine gives instant relief in all such cases. It produces sleep, quiets the nerves, builds up the nervous system, and restores body and mind to a healthy condition.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Nervous Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Asthma, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Syphilis, diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases of the urinary organs. Nervous debility, caused by the indiscretions of youth, permanently cured by the use of this valuable remedy. To you, young middle-aged and old men, who are covering your sufferings as with a mantle by silence, look up, you can be saved by timely efforts, and make ornaments to society, and jewels in the crown of your Maker, if you will. Do not keep this a secret longer, until it saps your vitals, and destroys both body and soul. If you are thus afflicted, take Dr. Richmond's Samaritan Nervine. It will restore your shattered nerves, arrest premature decay, impart tone and energy to the whole system.

SAMARITAN NERVINE.

Is for sale by druggists everywhere, or may be had direct from us. Those who wish to obtain further evidence of the curative properties of Samaritan Nervine will please enclose a 3 cent postage stamp for a copy of our Illustrated Journal of Health, giving hundreds of testimonials of cure from persons who have used the medicine, and also their pictures photographed after their restoration to perfect health. [illegible] THE YEAR, THIRTEEN WEEKS [illegible]

By J. G. [illegible]

Oh, sweet are the [illegible] of spring
And [illegible] the summer hours;
And [illegible] the Autumn winds [illegible]
The winter's lingering hours,
And the world goes round and round,
And the sun sinks into the sea;
And whether I'm on or under the ground,
The world cares little for me.

The hawk sails over the sunny hill;
The brook trouts on in the shade;
But the friends I have lost lie cold and still where their stricken forms were laid.
But the world goes round and round,
And the sun slides into the sea;
And whether I'm on or under the ground,
The world cares little for me.

O life, why art thou so bright and brown?
O breath why art thou so sweet!
O friends how can you forget so soon
The loved ones that lie at your feet?
But the world goes round and round,
And the sun drops into the sea;
And whether I'm on or under the ground,
The world cares little for me.

The ways of men are busy and bright;
The eye of woman is kind;
It is sweet for the eyes to behold the light,
But the dying and dead are blind.
And the world goes round and round,
And the sun falls into the sea;
And whether I'm on or under the ground,
The world careslittle for me

But if life awake and will never cease
On the future'sdistant shore,
And the rose of love and the lily of peace
Shall bloom there forever more.
Let the world go round and round,
And the sun sink into the sea,
For whether I'm on or under the ground,
Oh, what will matter to me?

Mr. Ed Trickett, the celebrated oarsman, Kingstion, Canada, says; "I have found St Jacob's Oil a sure and certain cure for rheumatism, etc."

[Lowell Citizen.

"It is not necessary for a man to be poor to be honest." Certainly not. But it seems sort o' half way necessary for a man to be poor if he is honest. A distinction with quite a difference, it will be seen. [New Haven Register.

A Testament Revisor's Opinion.

The emminent author, Prof A. C. Kendrick, D. D., LL. D., who is professor of Hebrew, Latin and Greek in the University at Rochester was one of the revisors of the New Testament, in general conversation with a number of gentlemen, a short time since said: "I have received from the use of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure very marked benefit and I can most cordially recommend it to others."

The longer I live the more deeply am I convinced that that which makes the difference between one man and another, between the weak and the powerful, the great and the insignificant, is energy, invincible determination; a purpose once formed, and then death or victory. This quality will do any thing that is to be done in this world, and no two-legged creature can be a man without it.
[Beecher.

Women are admitted to the bar on equal terms with men in Kansas, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, North Carolina, Ohio, Wisconsin, Iowa and Illinois. By an act of Congress, who have been for three years members of the bar of the highest court of any state or territory, or of the supreme court of the district of Columbia, may be admitted to practice before the United States Supreme Court.

Advice to Consumptives.

On the appearance of the first symptons—as general debility, loss of appetite, pallor, chilly sensations followed by night-sweats and cough—prompt measures for relief should be taken. Consumption is scrorfulous disease of the lungs:—therefore use the great anti-scorfula, or blood purifier and strength restorer,—Dr Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Superior to Cod liver oil as a nutritive, and unsurpassed as as a pictorial. For weak lungs, spitting of blood, and kindred affections, it has no equal. Sold by druggists the world over. For Dr Pierce's pamphlet on consumption, send two stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo N. Y.

Two sons of Erin, shoveling on a hot day, stopped to rest, and exchanged views on the labor question. "Pat, this is mighty hard work we're at." "It is, indade, Jimmy; but what kind of work is it you'd like, if you could get it?" "Well," said the other, leaning reflectively on his shovel and wiping the prespiration from his brow with the back of his hand, "for a nice, aisy, clean business, I think I would like to be a bishop."

Sitting Bull thinks that the great mistake the original proprietors of this country made was in not passing a law to prevent emigrants from coming here, similar to the Chinese bill. Mr. Bull can now see, when it is too late, how the country might have been saved to the Indians. We all sympathize with the lone Indian, but he must see that the present generation is wiser than his forefathers were. The Indians are in luck that they are permitted to remain.

It is by [illegible] Dr. Kennedy [illegible] following letter [illegible] you will [illegible] Andrews was thankful.

[illegible] N. Y. April, 8, 1881.

Dr D. Kennedy Rondout N. Y.

Dear Sir:—Until within a recent date I had for several years suffered greatly from gravel, called by the doctors the brick-dust sediment. For about a year past this sediment has not passed off in the usual quantity, but has accumulated, causing me untold pain. Having heard of "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" I tried it in my case, and after using about one and one-half bottles, I voided a stone from the bladder, of an oval shape, 7-16 of an inch long, and rough on its surface. I send yo the largest piece that you may see of what it is composed. since then I have felt no pain. I now consider myself cured, and cannot express my thankfullness and gratitude for so signal a deliverance from a terrible a disease. You have my consent to use this letter, should you wish to do so, for the benefit of other sufferers.

Yours Truly,
James Andrews.
No 10 Marshal St, Ida Hill.

When we consider that the medicine which did this service for Mr. Andrews cost only one dollar a bottle, it would seem that persons in like fashion can afford the expense of testing its virtues. Get it of your druggist, or address Dr. David Kennedy Rondout, N. Y. "Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" for sale by all druggists.

The Judge Was Convinced.

Miss Byrnes, of San Francisco, recently sued a barber for the value of a switch he had furnished her. The barber agreed to work over the combings of her own hair, but as a matter of fact, she claimed he furnished her with an inferior article. His lawyer asked her if it was not a better switch than she could get in the city for the same money. "I will show you, judge," she answered, kneeling before the court with a bewitching smile, but I'll not let him see." She laid aside her hat and draped her head with the switch. "Now can't you see for yourself, Judge, it doesn't match my hair at all?" His Honor moved back a little, looked over his spectacles around the room, then at the defendant, then at the lovely plaintiff kneeling before him, and stammered out: "M—ye-e-s I see. The court renders judgment in her favor for $25."

Extraordinary.—A family intending to have a turkey for dinner, put him on to boil. He wasn't done in time, and they boiled him four days, unsuccessfully. On investigation, it was found that the turkey had eaten a dozen of Cobb's Little Podophyllin Pills just before being killed, and there was no bile in him. Fact, Only 25 cents per bottle. For sale by R. E. Phillips.

A Sponge Bath.

A modest clerk in one of our most popular drug stores was astonished the other day by a young, sprightly school teacher walking up to the counter and remarking:

"I would like a sponge bath."

"Ah, oh, a—will you please repeat; I did not quite understand?" stammered the clerk.

"I would like a sponge bath," again demanded the customer, while a pair of sharp gray eyes, beaming with wonder and impatience, made him tremble.

More dead than alive, he managed to tell his fair visitor his inability to catch her meaning.

"Well I never! If this isn't queer! I—want—you—to—give—me—a—good—sponge—bath."

At this moment a fellow clerk whispered: "She wants a bath sponge."

At the same moment she comprehended the trouble and fled from the store before she should be recognized by any one, but too late! A gentleman raised his hat to her, passed in and all was discovered.

Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" is everywhere acknowledged to be the standard remedy for female complaints and weaknesses. It is sold by druggists.

Luther said: "If a man is not handsome at 20, strong at 30, learned at 40, and rich at 50, he never will be handsome, strong, learned, or rich in this world." Luther, no doubt, struck the bull's eye as far as beauty, strength, and learning are concerned, but he died before an office-holder had acquired the the art of saving $25,000 a year out of a salary of $3000; hence the remark about riches doesn't fit now.

A St Louis man offers a reward of twenty dollars to any woman who will peel an orange with her fingers and eat it without getting any juice on her chin.

"Ella is your father at home?" said a bashful lover to his sweetheart. "No, Clarence, papa is not at home, but I am. Could'nt you propose to me just as well?" And he did, with perfect success.

RESCUED FROM DEATH

William J. Conghlin of Somerville, Mass, says: In the fall of 1876 I was taken with bleeding of the lungs followed by a severe cough. I lost my appetite and flesh and was confined to my bed. In 1877 I was admitted to the hospital. The doctors said I had a hole in my lung as big as a half dollar. At one time a report went around that I was dead. It gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I got a bottle, when to my surprise I began to feel better, and to-day I feel better than for three years past.

I write this hoping every one afflicted with diseased Lungs will take DR WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAM, and be convinced that CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED. I can positively say it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness.

[illegible] Mass., June 16, 1881.

Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co.:

Gentlemen—I have been afflicted with kidney trouble for years, and in October last is culminated in Bright's Disease. I was confined to my bed for several months, and had given up all hopes of desire to recover, when I began the use of Your Remedy. It gave me immediate relief, and I am now, and have been since the 1st of April, constantly engaged at my business, which I owe to your Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. The doctors all thought I was going to die, and when I improved so fast, several of the neighbors called in wonder to see me, and many of my friends are using your remedies

Numbers 2, 3 and 4, respectively, RING, GENT'S STUD AND LADY'S EAR DROPS, are set with our justly celebrated FRENCH DIAMONDS, the best imitation of the real stone ever produced, and we defy anyone but the cleverest experts to detect that they are not. No. 5 is our handsome ONYX INITIAL RING, suitable for either lady or gentleman; the ONYX Stones we use for settings show both black and white in their composition, and the effect of the engraved initial is very striking and beautiful. No. 6 is our GLOVE RING, set with either Red or Black Onyx, something new and very handsome. No. 7 is an INITIAL CHARM, suitable for either lady or gentleman. On one side we CUT INITIAL same as No. 5 Ring, on the other side we use [illegible] HANDSOMELY CHASED BAND RING [illegible]

Ministers Who Falter by the Wayside—How the Chinese Stand in the Mountaineers' Mind.

BRECKENRIDGE, COLO. April 27, '82.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE FULTON TIMES:

Religion as it really is in the mountains differs so from that which usually passes for popular theology in the outside world that by comparison a resemblance can scarcely be traced. Probably the worst disappointed class of men who come to this country are preachers, the most of whom were without sufficient talent to obtain an easy living in the east, and came west hoping to succeed with poorer intellectual attainments and perhaps expecting to find a lower standard of moral rectitude. Men of this class become instantly convinced that it requires superior ability to make a favorable impression, also that while the people are rather irreligious themselves, they look for the highest culture and the purest morals in those laying claim to both. As these men are in some cases too proud and lazy to perform honest labor their true character soon unfolds itself and unable to withstand the moral strain they rapidly develop into gamblers and dead beats. There are numerous instances of this kind. A few months since while spending a few days in a neighboring town, a friend called my attention to a middle aged well dressed faro dealer, whom he had known as a popular and respected minister in an Ohio town and had often heard him urge his hearers to mend their ways and save their souls by coming into the folds of the church before it was too late, etc., etc. To-day he is a gambler and a drunkard. This class of men are thoroughly detested by the miners who though having little church religion, are usually honest, large hearted and generous to a fault, and will ever welcome a traveler to their cabin and feed him on the best the outfit affords, and the long evenings are whiled away with song and story.

The recent executive veto of the Anti-Chinese bill caused no little ill feeling and indignation here. It would seem as if the opinion of those best acquainted with this evil ought to be entitled to weight. But Arthur understanding their wants better than they themselves do, like his predecessor Hayes, returns the bill with a few lame excuses wishing to maintain amiable relations with the Chinese Empire. The failure of the people of the east to sympathize with those of the Pacific coast upon this question may be traced to different causes. There is a great misconception in the minds of many regarding the real character of the Chinese emigrants. They differ in every respect from those who come to our shores from the countries of Europe. There is no other class of men who crowd themselves into every position occupied by the servant girl; who never become citizens; who pay no taxes but send their money home as fast as they earn it; who receive the protection of the American laws without incurring any responsibility in return; whose cheap and economical manner of living and dress render it impossible for men with families to compete with them in the labor market; who ignore American laws and customs and set up their own courts for the trial and punishment of offenders in every large city where any of them have congregated.

The Chinese are the proudest people that live. They consider their country, their religion, their habits, and everything pertaining to them superior to ours. Then why should they exchange a higher civilization for a lower one? Not one in a thousand have been converted to Christianity according to the report of the investigating committe of the California legislature. The missionaries, who think themselves capable of Christianizing the world, have established churches and Sunday schools and [illegible] all over the Pacific [illegible] purposes. John is no fool [illegible]

Some [illegible] has furnished the New York Times with a [illegible] such as [illegible] instances [illegible] they ought properly to be called discoveries rather than inventions, and are the outcome of luck and chance, or whatever one may choose to call the arrangement of circumstances which is not the result of careful reasoning or logical process. The steam engine, the steamship, the locomotive, the telegraph, the reaping machine, the power loom, the sewing machine, the telephone, the cotton gin, the telescope and scores of similar machines are truly inventions. They require a logical and philosophical combination of laws and principles. But there are hundreds of smaller things, chiefly petty conveniences and contrivances for home use, or amusing or entertaining toys which are more in the nature of discoveries. These last have been only found—the others were found out.

Among these trifles is the favorite toy—the return ball—a wooden ball with an elastic string attached, selling for the sum of ten cents each, but yielding to the patentee an income equal to fair returns on a capital of $500,000. The rubber tip on the end of lead pencils affords the owner of the royalty an independent fortune. The inventor of a gummed newspaper wrapper is also a rich man. The gimlet pointed screw has evolved more wealth than most silver mines, and the man who first thought of putting copper tips to children's shoes is as well off as if his father had left him $2,000,000 in United States bonds. Although roller skates are not much used in countries where ice is abundant, in South America, especially in Brazil, they are very highly esteemed and have yielded over $1,000,000 to their inventor. But he had to spend $125,000 in England alone, fighting infringements. The "dancing Jim Crow," a toy, provides an annual income of $80,000 to its inventor, and the common needle threader is worth $10,000 a year to the man who thought of it. The drive well was an idea of Colonel Green, whose troops during the war, were in want of water. He conceived the notion of driving a two inch tube into the ground until water was reached and there attaching a pump. The simple contrivance was patented after the war, and the tens of thousands of farmers who have adopted it, have been obliged to pay him a royalty, a moderate estimate of which is placed at $3,000,000. The spring window shade yields an income equal to an investment of $1,000,000; the stylographic pen, also $1,000,000; the marking pen for shading in different colors, $1,000,000; rubber stamps the same. A large fortune has been reaped by a western miner, who, ten years since, invented a metal rivet or eyelet at each end of the mouth of breeches or coat pockets to resist the strain caused by the carriage of ores or heavy tools. Fortunes have been made out of the dead as well as the living. The torpedo grave which will explode when body snatchers meddle with it, is one bonanza; another odd, but probably not lucrative one, is an open tube, running from the top of the ground to the coffin lid, just over the face of the corpse. If the person is in a trance and has been buried alive, he draws himself up through the hole and returns to the surface by means of a rope ladder in the tube. If he prefers however, to send for assistance, he pulls a cord which rings a bell near the top of the tube. After lying there long enough to assure his friends that he has no intention of coming back the tube is pulled up, drawing as it comes a glass plate over the face of the inmate of the coffin.

Every time a woman pricks the shell of an egg preparatory to boiling it she violates a patent right, this having been secured by some genious who discovered that it would prevent their breaking during the process of boiling. It having been said that chickens hatched by artificial heat do not thrive as well as others because they miss the maternal affection expressed in the "cluck, cluck" of the natural hen, an inventor has taken out a patent which imitates the sound, soothing and charming the tender hearted but bereaved offspring with its artificial croon and consoling the young orphan with its mechanical solicitude. This is based evidently upon another patent for babies of a machine operated by clock work and producing a low and melancholy murmur which no child, however wakeful can resist, but to which it succumbs in profound slumber. There is also the false bottomed nest which deludes the hen into the belief that she had not laid an egg and combined with her own conscientious devotion to duty, persuades her to a continuance of her work until she is exhausted or undeceived. A patent hen [illegible] by the action of the hens, closes the door of a hen hive at night and [illegible] in the morning [illegible]

A Vile Conspiracy.

Jehiel Jasper saddled into the grocery store and post-office of one of our back-country villages Saturday, and after standing around till he was permeated with caloric said:

"Well, I guess I'll read the news and get along toward home. Squire Perkinses papers come yet?" and he stepped behind the post office boxes as was his custom to take it out and read it.

"Can't let you see it, Jehiel," said the postmaster; "government has issued orders that any postmaster who allows a non-subscriber to read a subscriber's paper will lose his position."

"No! You don't tell me? Well if that ain't a great idea? It's a put up job—a gol darned conspiracy between these here newspapers and the gov'nment to keep the multitude in ignorance, so that they can domineer it over the community. And they talk about this 'ere bein' a free country. It's driftin' right into despotism jes' as fast as it can. How in thunder's a man to know what's goin' on if he don't read, an' now the government's settin' down on all ideas of eddication, an' takin' away that privilege."

"Oh, not so bad as that, Jehiel," said the postmaster. "The government doesn't say anything against your subscribing for the paper yourself, you know."

"Subscribin' for it? What d'ye take me for? D'ye s'pose that I am going to subscribe for a paper that I've read fourteen years right here by the stove without costin' me a cent? No, sir. I ain't a goin' to help 'em to oppress me by keepin' me in ignorance. No sir-ee." And having got a supply of cheap plug todacco "put on the slate" he mogged home—a thoroughly oppressed citizen.

Keep to the Right.

It is a common thing for pedestrians to be crowded off the sidewalks by well-dressed females, who are in the habit of calling themselves ladies, and who are often mistakably dressed as such. These persons are not ladies, and it is coming to be quite well understood. A true gentleman will always respect the rights of the fair sex. He will cheerfully take the gutter if need be, and rejoice at the opportunity of showing his gallantry. But a man who allows himself to be hustled about by counterfeit ladies is of very small account. In fact, it is time that men should introduce a new rule—all the room needed—not an inch more. A true lady will never put on airs and jostle from the sidewalks those whom she chances to meet. She will be content to take a proper portion of the way, and she will generally find her path pleasant. Men, unless very much absorbed, always make ample way for the ladies. Of course there are in every community certain low grade creatures who block sidewalks and crossings when not prevented by fear of the police, but these are not gentlemen any more than impudent females who undertake to occupy the whole sidewalk are ladies. It is neither necessary or proper to allow these female ruffians to have their way. A few lessons will teach them the fact that they have thus far lived in ignorance of—that a lady is never guilty of unladylike conduct, and that a female bully is not entitled to any sort of respect.

"By asking too much we may lose the little that we had before." Kidney-Wort asks nothing but a fair trial. This given, it fears no loss of faith in its virtues. A lady writes from Oregon: "For thirty years I have been afflicted with kidney complaints. Two packages of Kidney-Wort have done me more good than all the medicine and doctors I have had before. I believe it is a sure cure."

"Yes, sir," said Brown. "If there is one thing more than another that I am proud of, it is this, that I always keep my word." "Very true," replied Fogg; "but did you ever find anybody that would take it?" [Boston Transcript.

THE RESULTS OF NECESSITY.

What the ancients suffered for want of knowledge in medical science can only be appreciated by contrasting the vast amount of suffering cured and pain alleviated in modern times, by the use of Swayne's Ointment for skin diseases. Its introduction was characterized by necessary withdrawal of a score or more of illusive, quack nostrums, whose evil effects have living monuments to denounce them. Thus is exemplified the proverb, Necessity is the mother of invention. 50t4

[illegible] just at the moment when [illegible] government was making [illegible] concessions to Ireland it au[illegible] ill for her future. England will ac[illegible] the murder of Cavendish as a re[illegible] to Gladstone's abandonment of the policy of coercion and oppression, and may possibly relegate to her former position and add untasted bitterness to her Irish subjects by enforcing absolute recognition of her superior strength. England and Ireland are in a foment of excitement and the fruit of this dastardly outrage is beyond conception.

The New York Tribune says the consequences of these hideous crimes may be equally disastrous to the Irish cause. The English people will not forget for many a year—it may be for generations—the murder of a Cavendish, planned in a hateful medieval spirit and executed with savage ferocity. It may blind their eyes and harden their hearts to the sufferings of the tenantry. It may cause them to set their faces with inflexible resolution against any concessions, political or agrarian, to the Irish people. It may prolong indefinitely a race conflict which has already outlived four centuries. While these foul murders have widened the breach between Englishmen and Irishmen, they will alienate the sympathies of the world. Americans especially will recoil in horror and utter detestation from the wanton and malevolent wickedness of these political murders. It is not only an enemy of Mr. Gladstone and English Liberalism—it is a deadly foe of Ireland herself that has brought upon her this awful reproach.

THE legislature of this state will not adjourn before June.

U. S. SENATOR LAPHAM is accused of appearing on the floor of the Senate in a drunken condition.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR has signed the Chinese bill, restricting their coming into this country for ten years.

IT is not much of a trick to accumulate wealth as Jay Gould has if any one can have a Judge to make decisions.

BLAINE is going to commence at the bottom of the ladder again. He is going to run for Congress from a Maine district.

GUITEAU claims to have solved the problem of perpetual motion and offers to dispose of his knowledge for $50,000. The sum he asks does not indicate insanity.

LIEUTENANT DELONG and eleven men who went to discover a passage to the north pole have been found in the frozen regions dead. It's about time this sacrifice of human lives was abandoned.

AMONG the amendments to the criminal code of procedure, which are now before the legislature, is one which takes away the power of the grand jury to indict a person for any violation of excise laws.

THE court martial in Sergeant Mason's case is held to be valid, by the Supreme Court. The Sergeant will therefore have to serve out his sentence unless the President interferes. The petitioners for his pardon number about half a million.

SCOVILLE and his wife are having a family tilt. Scoville says she is mentally disturbed and wants to put her in an asylum. It is looked upon by many as an attempt to create a feeling for Guiteau by evidencing to the public that insanity is hereditary in the family.

COLONEL Horatio Hercules Hadley of New York is singled out for notoriety. He is accused of writing the famous Morey letter. Horatio Hercules Hadley was president of a Hancock club in New York city composed entirely of republicans during the last campaign.

THE morals of Texas are being cared for by their state legislature. A bill has been passed taxing persons selling the Police News, Police Gazette and kindred publications $500 per year. This is [illegible] prohibiting their sale. Kansas [illegible] moral law forbidding [illegible] of sale of ardent spirits [illegible] have taken steps [illegible] without much talk [illegible]

The Rome Sentinel [illegible] reports from the surrounding dairy districts, describe the meadows and pastures largely winter killed, many being plowed up because utterly ruined by repeated frosts and freezing when there was no snow on the ground in the winter. The drouth of the two past weeks has kept the grass back. Cattle are not turned out yet. The hay crop will be short. Important dairy interests will suffer. The number of cows in milk are fifteen per cent less than last year. The flow of milk will necessarily be diminished in greater proportion. Kindred reports are universal from all parts of the state.

THE TIMES has received a printed circular from Mrs Jesse W. James, wife of the dead outlaw, in which she says:

"Many grievous circumstances have transpired during the past month which have placed me in a humiliating attitude before the public and added largely to my already deeply distressed condition of mind. While suffering from an overwhelming misfortune, ere the body of my husband became cold, insinuating and persistent writers and publishers intruded themselves upon me and taking advantage of my perturbed and distracted state of mind, have outraged every honorable feeling by representing me as an instrument of accusation against my cherished husband."

In the homely but expressive parlance of the day, Mrs. James don't propose to give Jesse away, and she says any life of him purporting to be written by her is a fabrication.

The Cheese Market.

[From the Utica Herald.]

UTICA, N. Y., May 8, 1882.—Salesmen were disposed to call this a dull market because the price of cheese was off ⅛c. But the fact that all the offerings were taken in one way or another, with only about one-fifth consigned, shows that there was no cause for complaint. Buyers paid all they could afford to, without doubt, after the disastrous experience of last week. There is no object in taking cheese and losing the freight on them to New York. Several factories were represented to-day which were not present last week, and the transactions are respectable for the time of year. The lowest sales were two lots of 160 boxes at 11¼c. The ruling cheese comprised 1,814 boxes at 11½c. There were also 804 boxes at 11⅝c.; 165 at 11⅛ at p. t. Sales amount to 3,658 boxes; commission, 847 boxes; total, 3,505. Ruling price 11½c. Transactions for corresponding date last year were 3,551 boxes, at an average price of 11½c., and a leading price of 12c. Two years ago the leading was 12½c., and the decline was ⅜c., the same as today. Following is our usual table of comparison:

	Receipts.	Exports.	Cable.	Freight.	Price.
May 8, 1880..	26,718	16,962	73s	35s	13¼
May 7, 1881..	26,718	24,915	70s	22s 6d	12¼
May 6, 1882..	16,794	17,742	63s 6d	15s	12c

LITTLE FALLS, May 8.—The market is still unsettled and unsatisfactory. Nearly all of the offerings are skimmed and some of them very badly skimmed. We make three divisions or grades: First. Full creams, of which there were sales of five lots of 825 boxes, all at 11½c. Indeed the market may be quoted as firm for full creams at this figure. Second. Every-day cheese. Of these there were sold, or commissioned, eighteen hundred boxes, the sales at from 10c. to 10½c Some of these were of very good quality and were quickly sold, while the poorer pualities were slow. Third. Every-other-day cheese. Most of these went on commission. Buyers were not anxious for them at any price. The number of boxes was twenty-one hundred, making the total sales of factory cheese for the day, 4,225 boxes.

FARM DAIRIES.—Of farm dairies there were sales of 475 boxes, most of them of very fine quality and selling at 10c. to 11c.

BUTTER.—225 packages of butter sold at prices fully 2c. higher than last week, the range being from 27c. to 29c. nearly all of it at 28c.

THE DANGERS OF THE STOCK MARKET

A man may be incredulous enough to risk his money in the fickle mysteries of a mercurial stock market but when he gets the itching piles, he goes straight for Dr. Swayne's Ointment. Unlike the Bulls and Bears of the stock exchange, who clean you out of hard earned cash, it returns your money with interest, in the way of allaying the intense itching and insuring repose. 50t4

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

We have examined the Princess Louise Cream, now being prepared by Mr. F. Keenan of Fulton for the market and know exactly what the ingredients are that it is composed of and we do not hesitate to say to the public that it is entirely harmless and not in the least injurious to the complexion; it can be used with perfect safety. Respectfully, [illegible] Scandal.

Elder Wood, previous to the M. E. Conference was stationed at Gilberts Mills, [illegible] Cleveland, this county. [illegible] year old daughter taught school in the Cable district last winter, and her good looks captivated the young men of the neighborhood. During the winter she attended revival meetings at Phœnix, and she was accused by envious persons of committing sundry indelicacies. The story reached the ears of her father who traced the stories to their origin, the authors essaying to escape publicity by saying they were only fabricated "for fun." Rev. Mr. Wood has given these scandalmongers their choice of signing a libel or appearing in court. If all scandal mongers were treated in the same way, there would be fewer people who delight in gathering and circulating scandal. As a general thing people who take most delight in scraping the gutters and throwing their contents at other people are themselves guilty of conduct upon which other people with glib tongues might talk by the hour.

Warming the Colt.

Friday afternoon a barn on the premises of Larry Griffin situated in the town of Granby in the neighborhood of "Stony Robbie," was destroyed by fire, including the contents, consisting of a horse and colt, one cow and about four tons of hay and many valuable farming implements. The loss is about $500. Mr. Griffin's insurance policy expired a few days ago and he had neglected to renew it.

The origin of the fire was novel indeed. Mr. Griffin sent a five year old boy from the field to the house for some matches. Returning by the barn he espied the colt lying upon some straw shivering with cold. His boyish sympathy was aroused and he ignited the straw to make the atmosphere more congenial for the animal. A brisk breeze communicated the flames to all parts of the structure and it was quickly devoured—colt included.

OBITUARY.

Frederick Seume died at his residence on Buffalo street this morning at 1 o'clock of consumption, aged 63 years. He was born in the Province of Bohemia, Germany. Fulton has been his home for the past 35 years. He was an accomplished musician and held important positions in both American and English bands. He served in the Union army during the rebellion and his death is directly traceable to continued exposure while in the service. Unassuming and quiet in his demeanor his circle of intimate friends was comparatively small. He was proverbial for his honesty and uprightness and leaves behind a spotless character. His wife who survives him was a daughter of the late William Wright. He leaves a son also who is now in Michigan. Funeral Friday afternoon.

Hannah, wife of Mr. John Loughrey of this village, died at her residence Wednesday morning aged 56 years. The deceased for many months past had been a great sufferer, but with Christian fortitude she bore the pains of her sickness without a murmer, trusting in Him for the reward promised to all who faithfully serve Him while here below. The funeral took place Friday, services being held in the Catholic church at Fulton and the remains deposited in the Catholic cemetry in that village.

[Hannibal News.

Mrs. Ellen Kidney, for many years a resident of Fulton died in Oswego Falls last Wednesday of cancer of the stomach, aged 64 years. Funeral was held Friday at 1 p. m., from Zion church, Rev. E. Moyses officiating.

Ann Burke died in Oswego Falls Thursday aged 80 years. Funeral was held from the church of the Immaculate Conception Friday at 10 a. m.

Ex-police Justice John E. Parker of Oswego Falls was impelled by some unknown force to attend divine services at the M. E. church Sunday morning. The ex-police justice was the cynosure of all eyes as he sat calmly listening and drinking in the words as they fell from the minister's lips. At the conclusion of the sermon and as the last faint notes of the organ were dying away a tremulous and troubled expression wreathed his face. He accepted an invitation from a member of the society to visit one of the class meetings, and there voluntarily declared his intention of forever abandoning his wayward course and passing the remainder of his days in a manner pleasing to his Maker.

John E Parker is a man of more than ordinary ability and attainments and is capable of doing great good for the cause he has voluntarily enlisted in.

A Silent Traveller.

On Aug. 30, 1881, Mr. William Warner wrote a letter to his daughter Sarah who was in Paris, France. Before the letter reached its destination Miss Warner had journeyed on to Mentone. By mistake the letter was forwarded to Calcutta, India, and thence back to London, England. It was endorsed and post marked at that point and shipped to Bombay, where it was opened by mistake, an endorsement to that effect being written across one end of the letter. Miss Warner was in Mentone, patiently awaiting a letter from home, but despairing of ever seeing one, wrote home. On May 3d, 1882, the day Miss Warner arrived from Europe, her father received the letter of Aug. 30, 1881, from Washington. For nearly nine months it has been constantly on the go, having travelled nearly every portion of Europe and Asia. The envelope with its post marks and endorsements in various languages, is a curiosity and a study.

Religious Anniversary.

The meeting of the Universalist Ministerial Circle of Central New York commenced in the Universalist church Monday at 3 p. m. There was a large attendance and much interest manifested. In the evening Rev. Mr. Crosley of the Church of the Reconciliation, of Utica, preached on "The Origin and Problem of Evil." Yesterday afternoon Rev. E. M. Pember of Mohawk, State Missionary made a few very interesting remarks upon "church membership" followed in the evening by Rev. Fisk of Syracuse.

By request Mr. G. C. Lathrop conducted a conference meeting this morning at 9 o'clock. He gave a brief reminiscence of the birth and growth of the Universalist society in Fulton during his residence of fifty years. Others followed. At 10:30 the pastor, Rev. A. U. Hutchins, delivered a semi-centennial historical address setting forth the founding and growth of Universalism in Fulton. It was a carefully prepared and exceedingly interesting paper. Rev. T. D. Cook will deliver a sermon this afternoon at 2 o'clock on the "Centennial of Universalism" to be followed by the communion. This evening the exercises will close with a sermon by Dr. Richmond Fisk, of Syracuse.

Rev. A. U. Hutchins is working with unwonted zeal to build up the society in this section and his efforts are being rewarded with gratifying results.

A JUST CAUSE.

"What need we any spur but our own cause." [Julius Cæsar.

"Thrice armed is he who hath his quarrel just." The knowledge that one's cause is righteous is more than half of any battle. Experience has proven this. This assurance robs defeat of its bitterness, and is the brightest jewel in the crown of success. It is the greatest incentive to untiring effort and maintain zeal in any enterprise. "No spur is needed, but our own cause." Confidence in their own cause leads Kent & Miller, the leading one price clothiers of Syracuse, to invite the closest inspection of their entirely new spring stock of ready made clothing—overcoats, coats, vests, pants in many patterns, in various colors, in latest styles guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction and sold at the lowest cash prices. For years they have pledged their word to the exact fulfillment of their promises, and the constantly increasing number of their patrons prove how faithfully their pledges have been redeemed, inspiring confidence that has never been abused. It is on this ground of confidence, on the justice of their cause, that they are spurred on to more determined efforts to please their patrons; and the public generally are invited to call and see what superior inducements they offer in Gentlemen's Youths' and Boys' Spring Clothing, ready made to put on. Don't forget the place. KENT & MILLER'S Oswego Co. Teachers' Institute.

A teachers' institute for the county of Oswego, conducted by professors Johonnet and Lantry, will be held at the court house, Pulaski, commencing Monday, May 22, 1882, and continuing one week. It is probable that future examinations of candidates for licenses will be conducted by us jointly and strict examinations will be made upon the methods of teaching as presented by our institute instructors, and for these and other reasons, the universal attendance of teachers of the county during the entire season, is very earnestly and confidently expected.

MOTHERS SHOULD KNOW.—How many children are punished for being uncouth, wilful and indifferent to instructions or rewards, simply because they are out of health! An intelligent lady said of a child of this kind: "Mothers should know that if they would give the little ones moderate doses of Hop Bitters for two or three weeks, the children would be all a parent could desire." Hw2

The Phœnix Register says a terrible accident occurred Saturday at the residence of Mr. J. Clark, about two miles southwest of that village which resulted in the almost instant death of Mr. Clark's little four year old daughter. The little one with one or two playmates, was playing with a lumber wagon box which had been left standing on its side. In some manner the box was tipped over, the upper side falling upon the unfortunate child with such force as to crush in the entire top of her head, causing death almost instantly.

A little after ten o'clock last Wednesday evening, Flora Root, the only daughter of John Root of Oneida rushed from the house, her garments in a blaze. By chance Dr. Carpenter and Seymour Harver were in conversation only a few rods distant, and hastened immediately to her assistance, but when they reached her she was enveloped in flames, which extended several feet above her head, her form hidden from sight. They ordered her to lie down, and each taking off his overcoat endeavored with them to smother the flames. Other persons soon came, bringing bed clothing and water, and the fire was suppressed, but not until the fatal work was fully accomplished. She survived only about two hours. The girl was twenty-one years old and has been suffering for some time from depression of spirits, amounting to melancholia.

THE WORLD'S EPILEPTIC INSTITUTE.

While passing through St Joseph, Mo., and having heard a great deal about the World's Epileptic Institute located here I concluded to pay the celebrated institution a short visit. We were met by Dr. Richmond, the proprietor, who has gained a reputation as broad as the land. He is a rather small, yet prepossessing man, of very affable and gentlemanly manners. He gave us a hearty welcome and took great pains in showing us through his palatial and mammoth institution. It is a five story building, 200x180 feet, with basement, and contains over three hundred rooms, and can accommodate five hundred patients, and each and every room is furnished in a most elegant and costly manner. But we will begin at the office, which is a large room furnished with rosewood furniture throughout. In the office are thousands of photographs of those who have been benefitted by the Nervine. The walls are elegantly papered, and are profusely decorated with rich and costly pictures, relieved here and there by busts in stone and bronze of eminent men of this and other countries. In connection with this Institute is a mammoth printing house and bindery, occupying six or seven large rooms, and a score of presses are kept running night and day turning out work for the doctor. The office is one of the finest and most complete in the west, and he has the rooms decorated, carpeted and trimmed up with as much care and luxury as his own private office. On the first floor of this mammoth building is the doctor's private office, the printing department, bindery, tank room, packing, bottling and consultation rooms, barber shop, drug store, etc. all of which are fitted up, regardless of expense. The second floor has the hotel office, dining, billiard and cooking rooms, all of which are furnished with Brussels carpets and the finest furniture. The billiard room has six tables, all of which are free to the guests of the house and their friends. The bath room is large and neat, and is also free to guests. The entire building is surrounded on the east and south by an elegant five acre park, in which are lovely trees, beds of rich and rare plants, gravel walks and drives, delicious arbors, and a most beautiful summer house. There are also a number of fountains that add wonderfully to the beauty of the park, which is truly one of the most lovely and attractive in the western country, and the Institute has no equal for luxury and comfort in the world. Everything is perfection, and the visitor is at once charmed with the entire place and its surroundings. An idea of the immensity of the doctor's business may be given when we say that on the day we visited the Institute he showed us to his express room, and we saw the expressmen take goods labeled to the following places, to say nothing of hundreds of orders from all countries of America; London, France, Germany, Switzerland, [illegible], Spain, [illegible]

SAMARITAN

NERVINE!

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Epileptic Fits, Spasms, Convulsions, St Vitus Dance, Vertigo, Insanity, Apoplexy, Paralysis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all Nervous Diseases. This infallible remedy will positively eradicate every species of Nervous Derangement, and drive them away from whence they came, never to return again. It utterly destroys the germs of disease by neutralizing the hereditary taint or poison in the system, and thoroughly eradicate the disease, and utterly destroys the cause.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Female Weakness, General Debility, Leucorrhoea or Whites, Painful Menstration, Ulceration of the Uterus, Internal Heat, Gravel, Inflamation of the Bladder, Irritability of the Bladder. For Wakefulness at Night, there is no better remedy. During the change of life no Female should be without it. It quiets the Nervous System and gives rest comfort and nature's sweet sleep.

SVMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Alcholism, Drunkenness and the habit of Opium Eating. These degrading habits are by far the worst evils that have ever befallen suffering humanity. Thousands die annually from these noxious drugs. The drunkard drinks liquor not because he likes it but for the pleasure of drinking and treating his friends, little thinking that he is on his road to ruin. Like the Opium Eater, he first uses the drug in small quantities as a harmless antidote. The soothing influence of the drug takes strong hold upon its victim, leading him on to his own destruction. The habits of Opium Eating and Liquor Drinking are precisely what eating is to alimentiveness, as over-eating first inflames the stomach, which redoubles its cravings until it paralyzes both the stomach and appetite. So every drink of liquor or dose of opium, instead of satisfying, only adds to its fierce fires, until it consumes the vital force and then itself. Like the gluttonous tapeworm, it cries "Give, give, give!" but never enough until its own rapacity devours itself. Samaritan Nervine gives instant relief in all such cases. It produces sleep, quiets the nerves, builds up the nervous system, and restores body and mind to a healthy condition.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Nervous Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Asthma, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Syphilis, diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases of the urinary organs. Nervous debility, caused by the indiscretions of youth, permanently cured by the use of this valuable remedy. To you, young middle-aged and old men, who are covering your sufferings as with a mantle by silence, look up, you can be saved by timely efforts, and make ornaments to society, and jewels in the crown of your Maker, if you will. Do not keep this a secret longer, until it saps your vitals, and destroys both body and soul. If you are thus afflicted, take Dr. Richmond's Samaritan Nervine. It will restore your shattered nerves, arrest premature decay, impart tone and energy to the whole system.

A NEW DISCOVERY.

☞ For several years we have furnished the Dairymen of America with an excellent artificial color for butter; so meritorious that it met with great success everywhere receiving the highest and only prizes at both International Dairy Fairs.

☞ But by patient and scientific chemical research we have improved in several points, and now offer this new color as the best in the world.

It Will Not Color the Buttermilk. It Will Not Turn Rancid. It is the Strongest, Brightest and Cheapest Color Made,

☞ And, while prepared in oil, is so compounded that it is impossible for it to become rancid.

☞ BEWARE of all imitations, and of all other oil colors, for they are liable to become rancid and spoil the butter.

☞ If you cannot get the "Improved" write us to know where and how to get it without extra expense. (46)

Burdette on Miracles.

"Do we believe in miracles," Alonzo? Well, we should preach. When a man can sit down in a New York restaurant and have brook trout, spring chickens, venison steak and seed bird served off the same old soup bone we are ready to take in any miracle you ever saw in print. Believe in miracles? When the American farmer can put a quart of strawberries in a box that won't hold a pint of sand; when almost any coal dealer can make seventeen hundred weight a ton; when a common looking clerk can measure a whole yard at one sweep of a thirty-three inch stick; when a ten-pound block of ice looks small along side a four ounce hail stone, when any barkeeper turns whisky into water before he opens up in the morning; when you can put out a fire with illuminating oil; when a committee of women at a church fair can make a barrel of soup with one cove oyster; when soap fat stalks abroad as A. 1 clover fed butter; when you find a miraculous draught of fishes in the sky-blue milk; when—do we believe in miracles, doubting Alonzo? It is an age of miracles. The world is full of miracles, or overrun with rascals. You may accept either interpretation.

Not Quite the Same.

Not quite the same the springtime seems to me
Since that sad season when in separate ways
Our paths diverged. There are no more such days
As dawned for us in that last time when we
Dwelt in the realm of dreams, illusive dreams.
Spring may be just as fair now, but it seems
Not quite the same.

Not quite the same is life since we two parted,
Knowing it best to go our ways alone.
Fair measures of success we both have known,
And pleasant hours; and yet something departed
Which gold, nor fame, nor anything we win,
Can all replace. And either life has been
Not quite the same.

Love is not quite the same although each heart
Has formed new ties that are both sweet and true;
But that wild rapture which of old we knew
Seems to have been a something set apart
With that last dream. There is no passion, now,
Mixed with this later love, which seems, somehow
Not quite the same.

Not quite the same am I. My inner being
Reasons and knows that all is for the best.
But oh! the unstilled yearning in my breast,
As my soul's eyes turn ever backward, seeing
The vanished self, that ever more must be
This side of what we call eternity,
Not quite the same.

A Long, Stern Chase.

Many people in Denver have made the acquaintance of Charley Johnson, a handsome young man who has been making his rounds and headquarters at the police and sheriff's office. He, too, gained many friends, but, while apparently busy, never seemed to be engaged in any regular business. To-day he leaves the city, and his departure discloses one of the most remarkable pieces of detective work ever known in the west.

Mr. Johnson is employed in the law office of Cooper & Tennery, of Peoria, Illinois, but for some time past has been engaged in pursuing a thief all over the western country, and finally, after several months' hard work, succeeded in locating his man.

The fugitive whom Johnson has pursued is David H. Howell, and the offense for which he is wanted is grand larceny. Howell was formerly the agent for the Chicago, Burlington & Quidcy railroad at Colchester, Ill., a station where a great deal of coal mining is carried on.

Among the companies operating there is the Quincy Coal Company, which employs several hundred men. This company has been in the habit of depositing in the railway company's safe about $10,000 to meet the monthly pay roll, and March 10, 1881, had this sum in Howell's care. The money proved too great a temptation for the agent and he stole it. At the time there were other small sums in the safe, all of which Howell took and fled. His whereabouts was a mystery for a long time, but a clew was finally discovered. The fugitive left a young and beautiful wife, and the detectives watched her constantly without any result. At one time she received a postal card from her husband in which he said he was having a fine time in the mountains, but the post mark on the card was so indistinct that it was impossible to discover whence it came, but on December 26th, last, he was heard from at Bridgeport, Mono county, California. Mr. Johnson who has been swindled by Howell, started out to capture him. He missed the trail in California and then returned to Reno, Nevada, where he again struck it. Then began the long chase. Mr. Johnson left Reno and went to Red Cliff, on the Oregon line of the Central Pacific, but his game had flown. From the proprietor of the Williams House Johnson learned that Howell had registered there January 26th, but here the scent was lost. Believing that his man would strike for San Francisco, the detective went there, and on the way reached Fort Costa just twenty-four hours behind the fugitive. Here the game again foiled him by striking south toward Stockton, instead of San Francisco. After the baffled detective had searched the city thoroughly, he sent out to each of the towns in California, Oregon, Nevada and Southern Colorado a photograph of Howell, and then went to Sacramento to be within speaking distance of the principal places. In a short time he received word from the sheriff of Costilla county in the San Louis Valley, that Howell was there. Johnson telegraphed for a requisition and started for Denver, where he had his papers fixed up, but again he failed to capture his man as he had fled before Johnson could reach him. The trail was again lost, but Johnson began to feel easy, as he had gained information that proved that Howell's money had given out. Knowing this, it was easy to predict the end. The fugitive could not go far without funds. Johnson returned to Denver and waited patiently for the end. A few days ago he located his man at Saguache, where he is working in the mine and unable to get out, as the outlets are all watched and the range impassable. Johnson telegraphed to the sheriff of Saguache to arrest Howell and take him back to Quincy where he would get the reward. Johnson returned to Quincy yesterday, and Howell will arrive in a few days. In all Johnson has pursued him 12,000 miles.

Fashion Notes.

New cloths for walking dresses are mottled.

Shot or changeable silks are again in vogue.

Ribbons are again fashionable for neck wear.

It is a fancy to tie the neck ribbon on one side.

Lace is worn with everything and on everything.

White camel's hair is much used for tea gowns.

Historical and picturesque costumes grow in favor.

Brocaded China crape appears among late novelties.

Hip draperies and tunics are much tucked and gauged.

In spite of efforts to make all evening dresses short, trains are worn extensively.

The hair, to be fashionably dressed, must fall low on the neck and also on the brow.

The long plain skirt of some rich, heavy stuff, with a box pleated ruche at the bottom, worn with a panier bodice, gains ground every day.

The light materials, such as tarlatan and tulle, formerly used as ball dresses, are almost entirely superceded by soft woolen veilings and crapes, in all shades of color, and black and white.

Neck ribbons are from one to two inches wide, and are worn around the neck inside the dress collar and outside the standing linen collar. Then they are tied in a long hooped bow, with longer ends.

Houses Built of Cotton.

Of all substances apparently the least likely to be used in the construction of a fireproof building, cotton, would, perhaps, take the first rank, and paper the second; and yet both of these materials are actually being employed for the purpose indicated, and their use will probably extend. Compressed paper pulp is successfully used in the manufacture of doors, wall paneling and for other similar purposes, with the result that all risk of warping and cracking is obviated, while increased lightness is obtained and the fear of dry-rot forever banished. Paper-mache, after having served a useful purpose in an unobtrusive manner for years as a material for small trays, paper-knives and other such light articles, has now suddenly assumed a still more important position in the industral world. A still more sudden and striking advance has been made in the employment of cotton as a building material. A preparation called celluloid, in which cotton is a leading ingredient, has been used lately as a substitute for ivory in the manufacture of such articles as billiard balls and paper-cutters, and now a Canadian manufacturer has invented a process by which compressed cotton may be used not merely for doors and window-frames, but for the whole facade of large buildings. The enormous and increasing demand for paper for its normal uses as a printing and writing material, prevents the extended use of paper-mache as a building material, for which it is so well suited in so many ways; but the production of cotton is practically unlimited.

Value of Ensilage.

This word, which is only a few years old, grows out of a discovery made by a Frenchman, Auguste Goffart, that green crops, when stored in water tight pits called silos, under a heavy pressure, do not rot, but are preserved fresh and sweet, and retain all their nutritive juices for a year or more; and that, when offered to cattle in this condition in the winter, are preferred to any dry food. It is not surprising that the discovery made a sensation among farmers and cattle feeders in this country, and that there is exhibited a keen desire to know all about it; for not only can a great deal more in weight of green food than dry be raised on an acre, but ensilage possesses the advantages of supplying the cattle with succulent summer food in the winter—an advantage of great value to milch cows. Any green crop that stock are fond of when in a growing state is good material for ensilage—grass, clover, rye, young corn, sorghum and vegetables; but corn, clover and the grasses are most generally used, because when growing they are full of juice, which is lost in curing hay or fodder, but preserved in the silo. Several kinds of green crops may be packed in the same silo, and the ensilage is said to be improved by the variety. Corn, either drilled and cultivated or sown broadcast, and in its most juicy condition, is the basis of most ensilage experiments in this country; it may be packed in the silo with clover or grass of any kind cut green, and successive crops of corn may be planted for mixture with different kinds of grasses in their season. As it is estimated that ten to twenty tons' weight of green crops may be cut from an acre of good soil—five to ten times as much as the weight of a dry crop of grain or hay—it is easy to see how much more profitable it is to save green crops in the form of ensilage than to allow them to mature and dry.

Only One Trial.

The first wife of the late Commodore Vanderbilt and the wife of Samuel Carr were sisters. While Vanderbilt was laying the foundation of his great fortune Carr was going backward. He finally became almost destitute. Commodore Vanderbilt then bought a good farm, stocked it, and turned it over to Mr. Carr as a present, but it was not long before Carr had spent everything. He appealed for another trial, but the Commodore was inexorable. The result was that Carr had to be taken to the Richmond county poor house, where he has remained for the last twenty years. Recently Mr. William H. Vanderbilt, [illegible] Commodore Vanderbilt, [illegible] Mr. Carr, [illegible]

Respect Due to Wives.

Do not jest with your wife upon a subject in which there is danger of wounding her feelings. Remember that she treasures every word you utter. Do not speak of great virtues in another man's wife to remind your own of a fault. Do not reproach your wife with personal defects, for if she has sensibility you inflict a wound dangerous to heal. Do not treat your wife with inattention in company; it touches her pride and she will not respect you mor or love you better for it. Do not upbraid your wife in the presence of a third party; the sense of your disregard of her feelings will prevent her acknowledging her fault. If you would have a pleasant home and a cheerful wife, pass your evenings under your own roof. Do not be stern and silent in your own house, and remarkable for sociability elsewhere.

Starting a Newspaper.

In a recent sermon, Mr. Talmage said: "On the theory that anybody can make a newspaper, inexperienced capitalists every year are entering the lists, and it is simple statistic that there is an average of dead newspapers every day in the year. The average of newspaper life is five years. Most of them die of cholera infantum. It is high time it were understood that the most successful way of sinking a fortune and keeping it sunk is to start a newspaper. Almost every intelligent man during his life is smitten with newspaper mania; start a newspaper or have stock in one, he must, or die. But, let me tell you, oh man, that if you have an idea, or any moral, social, political or religious subject, you had better charge the columns already established. Do not take the idea so prevalent that when a man can do nothing else he can edit a newspaper. To man and propel a newspaper requires more realities than any other business on earth. If you feel called upon to start a newspaper, take it for granted you are threatened with softening of the brain."

BED-RIDDEN AND CURED.

W. E. Huestis, of Emporia, Kansas, says that his wife had been sick near seven years, and for the last four months bed-ridden. She had been treated by a number of physicians and only grew worse. Her attention was called to Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription," which she commenced using. In one week she could sit up, and in three weeks she could walk about. Kill the Potato Bugs.

It is important to destroy the first brood of potato beetles. This brood comes from the ground in early spring, and the beetles soon lay their orange-colored eggs in clusters on the under side of potato leaves. These eggs are readily found by turning up the foliage, [illegible] picked off and destroyed. If [illegible] or grubs will soon hatch out, and begin their rapid destruction. Poison in some form must now be used. The two leading insecticides are Paris Green and London Purple. Both are arsenic compounds. The green is a manufactured article while the "purple" is a by product or refuse compound from the dye factories and is therefore cheaper. These substances are either used dry or wet. In the former they are mixed with 30 or 50 times their bulk of flour or plaster, and dusted or sifted on—best while the dew is on, or soon after a rain that the wet foliage may retain the substance. In the wet method, which is now generally preferred, the poison is stirred in water—a large table spoonful or so to the pailful—and applied through a sprinkler, stirring it frequently as it does not dissolve. The "bugs" have been in most potato regions so long that a full discussion is unnecessary. It is important to remember that these arsenic compounds are deadly poisons, and to be used with great caution. And "green" or "purple"—it is fortunate that they have marked colors—in the house, should be put where no one can use them by mistake, and out of the reach of children.

MOTHERS DON'T KNOW—How many children are punished for being uncouth, wilful and indifferent to instructions or rewards, simply because they are out of health! An intelligent lady said of a child of this kind: "Mothers should know that if they would give the little ones moderate doses of Hop Bitters for two or three weeks, the children would be all a parent could desire.

"There's too much horse racing at your agricultural fairs," remarked Parson Jones to the secretary of the county society; "I should like to know, sir, what horse racing has to do with agriculture?" "Well, parson," replied the secretary, with a pleasant smile, "nothing perhaps—or, at least, no more than church lotteries have to do with the spreading of the gospel." Parson Jones saw the paint and changed the conversation immediately.

THE RESULTS OF NECESSITY.

What the ancients suffered for want of knowledge in medical science can only be appreciated by contrasting the vast amount of suffering cured and pain alleviated in modern times, by the use of Swayne's Ointment for skin diseases. Its introduction was characterized by necessary withdrawal of a score or more of illusive, quack nostrums, whose evil effects have living monuments to denounce them. Thus is exemplified the proverb, Necessity is the mother of invention.

THE opinion of the Attorney-General that a constitutional amendment will be necessary to confer the right of franchise upon women does not surprise the men, but it must dampen the enthusiasm of the fair sex who thought that the Legislature could give them the ballot.

THE people of Crittenden, New Mexico becoming enraged at the presence of Chinese who were employed in the construction of a railroad took forcible possession of the railroad, drove the Chinamen from camp and hanged D. THE Express and the Oswego Times each advocate the renomination of Gov. Cornell. The political performances of these two factional papers have been so at variance, that their unity for Cornell would look as though the Governor appeared in a dual front. Trying to ride too many horses may prove a dangerous experiment. Now that the Times and Express have declared for Cornell the Patriot is expected to whoop 'er up this week.

THE arguments for a new trial in the Guiteau case are all in and decision has been reserved until Monday May 22. Speculation as to the decision is being largely indulged in. One report says the judges disagreed, being two for granting a new trial and two for affirming the sentence of the lower court and overruling the exceptions. If the latter be true, Guiteau's last chance is disposed of, and he will be hanged June 30th, six weeks from next Friday.

ONE of the coolest transactions that has come under our observation of late is the case of William Farley, a convict in an Indiana prison at Jeffersonville. He made his escape and procuring a suit of clothes went to Indianapolis to interview the governor regarding his chance for a pardon. His consummate check [illegible] promised to give his case early consideration if he would return to prison. His case is being eagerly watched.

A RESOLUTION has been offered in the assembly for the appointment of a committee of five to investigate the affairs of the reorganized New York and Oswego Midland railroad company, now known as the New York, Ontario & Western railroad company, including the amount of moneys received by the reorganized company from stock and bond holders and creditors of the company under the agreement of reorganization, and from the sales of stock and property of the new company, and from other sources, and in what manner and for what purpose the moneys have been expended, and all agreements and transactions between the Ontario & Western company and the New York, West Shore & Buffalo railroad company. Charges are made that the money has been injudiciously and extravagantly expended.

A BILL recently passed by both houses of the legislature gives the defence the right to the concluding address to the jury in cases involving sentence of death or imprisonment for life. Before acting upon it Governor Cornell very properly submitted the measure to the attorney-general for his opinion upon so important a change in the method of criminal procedure.

As the law has stood up to this time the prosecution is entitled to the last word, and thereby has an advantage which is highly valued. But the change for which a favorable vote in both houses has been secured has long been advocated by leading jurists, and attorney-general Russel in his reply to the governor declares that he is "favorably impressed" with the measure. He takes the ground that the [illegible] in capital cases is so extraordinary that a trial involving either death or imprisonment cannot be surrounded with too many safeguards for the protection of the accused. On the European continent, as well as in several of [illegible] states, the defence is always [illegible] to the last word. The new enactment is the first important step toward a change which will not long be confined to capital offences. As soon as the new rule has been tested and found [illegible] and just in its operation, it will [illegible] be extended to all criminal [illegible] no matter what the charge [illegible] penalty may be.

Driven to Desperation.

Mrs. Harry Hutchins who resided north of Volney Centre in the Baldwin district committed suicide in Tully, Onondaga county last Tuesday morning. Monday she came to Fulton and went to Spooner's drug store and expressed a desire to purchase a quart of laudanum. Mr. Spooner's curiosity was aroused by the large amount she wished to purchase and he inquired if she usually purchased such quantities. She answered in the affirmative saying she only paid twenty cents per quart. He refused to sell to her, whereupon she enquired for "Rough on rats." This he refused her and she left on the noon train for Syracuse.

She reached Tully at 8:30 on Monday evening, and seemingly proceeded at once to the store of Duane Hayford, where she enquired for something to poison rats. "Rough on rats" was recommended to her, a package of which she purchased, paying for it with her last available funds. She then started to walk four miles into the country where a sister resided, and where she spent her childhood. Darkness intervening she sought shelter at the house of a friend named Strait. Early Tuesday morning Mrs. Strait heard groans and something fall heavily on the floor in the room occupied Mrs. Hutchins and going to the room found her lying on the floor unconscious and she died before medical aid arrived. "Rough on rats" had been poured into a cup of water and drank with suicidal intent.

The husband is now at Volney Centre. He is said to be a worthless, dissipated vagabond and his abuse is assigned as the cause of her rash act. Two children are living: a girl of fifteen and a boy of five. Wm. Newton has taken the girl.

The case is one possessed of many heart rending features, and created no small excitement in the vicinity of which it occurred. It was Hutchins' custom to accuse his wife of infidelity and by threats and punishment cause her to make confessions confirmatory of the vagaries of a dissipated and jealous mind.

The result of my use of St. Jacobs Oil for rheumatism is:—I have been recommending it ever since, says the Mayor of Chicago, Hon. Carter H. Harrison, in the Chicago Times.

The directors of the Boston, Hoosac Tunnel and Western railway met Saturday and elected Ginery Twitchell president in place of Gen. Burt, deceased.

The Albany Evening Times says that the Assembly Tuesday passed the resolutions proposing a constitutional amendment providing for biennial sessions of the legislature, without one member in ten knowing what the vote in this dubious explanation, for it is better for legislators to commit crime unconsciously than with their eyes open.

VILLAGE OF FULTON.

Trustees Proceedings.

FULTON, May 16, 1882.

Board met pursuant to adjournment.

Present, Trustees Cavanaugh, Herrick, Patterson and Hart.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Mr. Mead appeared and requested that an order for $200 be drawn on the treasurer for the fire department. Carried.

A demand was made by Mr. A Youmans that a walk laid by the village be removed. Moved that it be placed on file.

Moved that street com. be directed to call attention to all persons placing rubbish etc. in streets, to remove it under the ordinance.

§ 2 No person shall throw or deposit any dirty water, dirt, or filth, chips, shells, straw, manure or other rubbish in any street, lane or alley of this village under the penalty of $3 for each and every offence.

§ 3. No owner or occupant of any tenement or lot in this village shall permit any substance mentioned in the two preceeding sections to be or remain in or upon said tenement or lot, or between the same and the centre of the street adjoining, under the penalty of $2 for every day during which the same shall be or remain thereon.

A Bill by J. Cavanaugh for lamp lighting for $33.67 referred.

Moved that an order be drawn on the treasurer for the above bill. Carried.

Lamp committee reported that lamps should be placed on corners of Erie and 7th, Seneca and 7th, Academy and 5th, and recommended that they be placed. Moved and carried.

On motion the following ordinance and resolution was unanimously adopted:

BE IT ORDAINED, That all persons are hereby strictly forbidden from depositing or leaving any rubbish or material whatever on the public park; of this village, side walks or street adjoining the same and it is hereby further ordained, that all persons are strictly forbidden from in any manner injuring any trees or structure in said park or adjoining the same and the use of said park or side walk adjoining the same except for the ordinary and usual purposes of passage and resort common to all citizens, is strictly forbidden, except upon permission duly granted by the Board of Trustees and that any person violating the forgoing ordinance or any part thereof shall be subject to a penalty of $25 for each and every violation.

Resolved, That the clerk be and is hereby directed to have printed the foregoing ordinance and post the same upon the park And each and every policeman of the village are specially enjoined and upon the comlaint of any citizen to enforce said ordinance, and report all prosecutions for penalties and the details thereof to this board forthwith with their fee for serving notices thereon.

NEIGHBORING NEWS.

Counsellor Peck of Phoenix will deliver the decoration day address at Roosevelt.

One hundred and twenty-four licenses have been granted by the board of excise in the city of Oswego.

There are now fifty-one persons confined in the insane asylum at Mexico, 37 women and fourteen men.

G. Trimble of Palermo, recently, purchased the Oswego Centre cheese factory. Mr. Trimble recently suffered the loss by fire of his factory in Scriba.

Syracuse papers are publishing the fact that the appeal in the Halstead will case has been abandoned. The Baldwinsville Gazette says that the appeal has not been abandoned but will be carried through to the end.

Meetings of the business men and manufacturers are being held in Syracuse, Utica and other cities in the interior for the purpose of protecting the business interests of their respective cities from outside encroachments and special efforts made to centralize trade in New York city.

Henry Williams and Robert Potter, living near Fish Creek Landing, were negotiating an exchange of guns Sunday when both put their guns to their shoulder and aimed at each other. William's gun which had been loaded with powder and a marble, unknown, to him, went off, and the marble passed into the left side of Potter's neck and struck the spinal cord, paralyzing his body. He died in a few hours declaring the shooting was accidental.

[Phoenix Register.

The Utica Press says: The outlook for a bounteous yield of strawberries through this section is by no means flattering. The dry weather last fall kept the vines from spreading to the usual extent, and moreover, the depredation by grubs was unprecedented. Some yards have been plowed up, and others are very spotted. The late cold weather has rendered the plants backward, and it is not improbable that the earliest buds have suffered from the recent freezes though not to the extent they would had the vines been more forward. There is a demand for new plants from far and near which cannot be supplied.

PARISH—G. R. Mosher has traded a farm for the Palmer house at Pulaski. L. D. Snell, an old and successful hotel keeper is now the landlord. It will be a good place to stop during courts or at any other time.

Myron Stone of the Carley House in this place has become the landlord of the hotel at Mallory.

Our cheese factories about here are not doing as much business now as they did at the same time last year. The probabilities are that less cheese and butter will be made this year than last.

Spring is backward. Most of the oats are sown and some of the potatoes are planted. OCCASIONAL.

WELL-MERITED SUCCESS.

A gentleman once asked a distinguished dispensing druggist to explain the secret of the universal demand for Dr. Richmond's Samaritan Nervine. He said it was in fact a genuine medicine—such a compound as every good physician would prescribe for the disease which it was advertised to cure. Of course it cost less than any druggist would charge for the same article supplied on a physician's prescription, and besides, there was a saving of a doctor's fee in addition. Morever, by buying the drugs in such enormous quantities and having a perfect apparatus for componnding the mixture, he was not only able to get better articles in the first place, but also to present the medicine in better form and at less price than the same preparation could be possibly obtained from any other source. Dr. Richmond has devoted all his energies to the alleviation of human sufferings. With this end in view, and with his whole heart in the great labor for the benefit of the afflicted, he has achieved marked and merited success. There can be no real success without true merit. That his success is real is evidenced by the fact that his reputation as a man and physician does not deteriorate, and the fact that there is a steadily increasing demand for his Samaritan Nervine proves that is no nostrum, but a reliable remedy. He has repeatedly informed the public that it is no patent medicine, and no patent has ever been asked for or obtained. Neither does he advertise it as a cure all. It may be urged that some of these diseases are so widely different that it seems absurd to prescribe the same remedy. They may differ in symptoms, yet in character be precisely similar; and then we must take into consideration the fact that remedies may possess various properties. Thus some medicines are both tonic and alternative; others may be tonic and laxative, the properties differing according to quantities administered and the time and circumstances which demand its employment.

In the manufacture of any pharmaceutical preparation the purity and strength of the materials used, and the requisite machinery to be employed, are among the chief essentials. The first is insured by purchasing the ingredients in large quantities, whereby the exercise of greater care in selecting the materials can be afforded; and the second can only be accomplished where the business is sufficiently extensive to warrant a large outlay of capital in procuring chemical apparatus. These facts apply with especial force to the manufacture of our medicines, their quality having become vastly improved since the demand has become so great as to require their manufacture in very large quantities. [illegible]

Gilberts Mills.

H. R. Mason & Co., have removed their cheese box factory to the sawmill and placed in a steam engine. In case of low water their business will in no way be impeded.

Mrs. Griffiths, aged 78, while descending a pair of stairs a few days ago, made a mis-step entangling her feet in her dress causing her to fall heavily to the floor. Her injuries were severe and nearly resulted fatally. We are pleased to announce that she is improving. B.

It is the height of folly to wait until you are in bed with disease that may last for months, when you can be cured by a timely use of Parker's Ginger Tonic. We have known sickly famlies made the healthiest by it. [Observer. 50t4

VAN VALKENBURG'S RESTAURANT.

—:o:—

A Model Restaurant and Billiard Room Charley have you been to look at Van's place, on the corner of First and Oneida Streets since he has remodeled and enlarged it? His Restaurant! Yes, was the reply, and it certainly is one of the best appointed and most attractive places ever opened in our village. Such is the fact. This ever popular place has been thoroughly Repainted and Remodeled so that it is now more pleasant and attractive than ever before. The partitions have been removed, the Rooms made Larger so that any that may wish to go to a First-Class Restaurant can do so now and can go into a private entrance to lunch alone, separate and alone. He has also a Billiard & Pool Room attached, entirely separate from Bar or Lunch Room. The Tables are of Babcock's best make, handsomely gotten up and have the Celebrated Magic Double Action Cushion which are so popular with all lovers of Billiard and Pool. All that money can do to make Van's place more popular than ever has been done. Only the best of everything is kept. Call and look at his bill of fare and know for yourselves the Lunch Van gets up and you will be surprised to learn that he keeps on hand everything in the shape of Lunch that could be got at Delmonicos. He is prepared to get up Lunch for Picnicing and Fishing Parties on the shortest notice in Elegant Style and at very reasonable rates. Now I will give you a small list of his lunches that he gets up: Oysters, in every style; Clam Chowder, Sardines, Lobsters, Crabs, Salmon, Mackerel, Anchovey, Chicken, Corned Ham, Pig Feet Stew, Pork and Beans, Sandwiches of all kinds, Pies and Cheese, Tea and Coffee, and other things and all very cheap. Call and get some of his lunches and you will be more than pleased at the price, so much so that you will say to yourself well I did not know before that people could get such dishes for so small a figure and up here in the country. I have found the place to get my lunch from now out. The prices are what catches me.

We keep in our stores a number of large looking-glasses, because we generally have more customers than one at a time, and they are large and handsome mirrors, and will show the whole figure of a man from head to foot. We can see the theory of she Jim-Jam stores. If they want you to see how their clothing fits, they have you look into a tin can, and then if you can—can stomach their clothing—but we are too charitably inclined, and will not go any farther; on the contrary, if we get a customer that wants just such garments that is generally sold by the Jim-Jams, we will politely show them across the river.

Dr. David Tully of Oswego preached a severe sermon against the "Sin of spiritualism" Sunday evening. He said there were some people on the brink of insanity in Oswego from their belief in spiritualism, that it seemed to have a strong fascination, and he never remembered hearing of a man who recanted after going thoro'ly into it. He asked what spiritualism had ever done for the mind, or to elevate the community. Its fruits he said were death.

Word was received this morning of the death in Omro, Wis., yesterday of Mrs. Ophelia Simpson, a former resident of Fulton, a sister of Henry and John Boardman and Mrs. P. W. Hyde and Misses Frank and Hettie Boardman. She was aged 68 and had lived in Wisconsin for about 22 years. Her remains will be brought east to Albion, Orleans Co., her birthplace, for interment. Her friends will go from Fulton to attend the funeral.

A somewhat celebrated suit was decided before Justice Brown and a jury in Palermo yesterday. S. B. Sykes became the owner of a chattel mortgage given by Mary Quigley to her son William, a cow being the property mortgaged. When Mr. Sykes sought to obtain payment of the mortgage Mrs. Quigley asserted it was a forgery and its existence was unknown to her. Constable Frederick A. Hall sold the cow and Mrs. Quigley prosecuted him for damages. O. P. Jennings was for the plaintiff and G. S. Piper for the defense. The jury brought in a verdict of no cause of action. The venerable F. W. Squires, the meteorologist of North Volney, was placed upon the stand as an expert in handwriting.

Increased Mail Facilities.

Postmaster Gilbert has received word from the post office department that hereafter a special pouch can be made up in time to connect with the fast mail for the west by the noon train on D. L. & W. road. This is gratifying news to the business men and people generally of this section as by this move letters reach the west 24 to 48 hours earlier than ever before. Mr. Gilbert has labored assiduously to bring this accommodation about and it will certainly be fully appreciated.

A Singular Accident.

Mrs Barry, an old lady of Oswego Falls, aged 83, was drawing a pail of water at the residence of her grandson, James Barnes, last Wednesday, when she was overtaken with a severe accident. She lowered the bucket until it struck the water, thinking it had reached the bottom of the well. She was bending over to adjust the pail in front of the spout when the crank was set in motion by the sinking of the bucket, striking her on the head and face and knocking one of her eyes out. Aside from the loss of an eye her injuries are not of a serious character.

Death of Horace H. Hubbard.

Mr. Eber Hubbard received a telegram from San Francisco, Cal., yesterday announcing the death of his brother Dr. Horace H. Hubbard. He was sick twenty-eight days with Typhoid fever. Dr. Hubbard was a son of the late Holcey Hubbard and has been away from Fulton nearly thirty-five years. Previous to the war he was a practising physician in Vicksburg, Miss., and at the breaking out of the war cast his lot with the confederacy. His ability as a surgeon made him prominent and his name figures conspicuously in various histories of the rebellion. At the close of the war he ranked as a major-general. He was an intimate friend of Stonewall Jackson, Gens. Beauregard, Early and the Lees and a warm personal friend of Jefferson Davis.

His brother Thomas was at his bedside during his sickness. A telegram this a. m. announces that his body will be brought to Fulton for interment as soon as practicable.

Pleasures of Hope.

"Hope to joy is little less in joy than hope enjoyed. [Richard II.

Do you doubt it? Ask any one of the street urchins you meet, whose minds have been full of cunning expedients to obtain the needful admission fee to the circus. Why, to look upon their wide open eyes and distended months, as they gazed upon the wonderful show bills was evidence enough of the unalloyed joys of hopeful anticipation they were experiencing. In a less demonstrative, but no less satisfactory way, does the man who has taken advantage of the continued wintry weather chill in the air, to make the winter suit hold out a little longer, for fundamental reasons, look upon the fine display of Spring ready made clothing at Kent & Miller's, 18 & 20 South Salina street. He hopes soon to become the happy possessor of a suit, or perchance of a light spring overcoat so well adapted to the changeable weather we are now experiencing, and his joy is only less than the actual experience of "hope enjoyed." It is a pleasure to share in such joys by pointing out to some needy ones the place and the opportunity for thus satisfactorily supplying their wants at comparatively light expenses. Mothers wishing to give joy to their sons of all ages can not do so more satisfactorily than at KENT & MILLER, 18 and 20 South Salina street.

We are informed by Rev. J. H. Rogers, Methodist clergyman at Baldwinsville, of the marriage of Mr. Fred Guile of Oswego Falls to Miss Agnes Gordon of Fulton.

Married—On the 13th inst by Rev. M. D. Kinney, Seward A. Green and Miss Carrie Harding. Their home for the present is at the residence of Mr. Jedadiah Green's, father of the groom. Here is a wish for long life and happy days.

A post of the Grand Army of the Republic is to be organized in this village. Twelve persons have already signed the roll. Any one desiring information in regard to it may obtain it by calling on W. J. Pentelow at his photograph gallery.

The Mutual Union Telegraph company will soon have a line to Oswego, which will eventually be extended to Ogdensburg. Live men are already pushing the work from Oswego toward Syracuse. We are informed that an office will be established in Fulton.

The Oswego Times asks if there is any one living now who heard the roar of musketry in Oswego in the war of 1812. Oliver Jennings, now living in Palermo has a distinct recollection of the event. His brother David was an orderly sergeant of the miltia and warned out the inhabitants to rendezvous at Battle Island and proceed to Oswego to assist in subduing the enemy. Uncle Tom Hubbard, now ninety-five years of age, was in the ranks at the same time. The sturdy pioneers marched to a point south of Oswego, about where Riverside cemetery is now located when the roar of cannon and the painfully unpleasant rain of shot and shell caused them to retrace their steps towards home. There are several people in this town who have a distinct recollection of the battle.

Rev. A. U. Hutchins, of this village, preached at Phœnix last Sunday at the church building formerly occupied by the Baptist society, (they having removed into their new edifice. The old building was sold and is now being repaired, painted and papered, and has been rented of the present owner to the "1st Universalist parish of Phœnix" where A. U. Hutchins preaches each alternate Sunday. A Sunday school and Bible class has been formed of 40 scholars. Mr. Fitzgerald has been elected Superintendent. Much interest has already been awakened among the friends of Universalism and liberal Christianity. The choir of the Congregational society have furnished the music for several Sundays. Mr. Hutchins after the sermon of last Sunday, in behalf of the society thanked them for their services and kind assistance in making the religious exercises more interesting, and for the commendable charitable spirit they exemplified. A congregation averaging 175 attend the meetings.

A JUDGE'S EXPERIENCE.

Judge J. T. Bossier, of St. Tammany Parish, La., and of the State Legislature, thus expressed his opinion to one of our representatives: "I have found St Jacobs Oil to be very efficacious in sprains and bruises. In my opinion there is no oil or liniment equal to it."

TO RENT—Rooms for a small family in house corner Fourth and Utica street. 50 J. C. BABCOCK.

TO RENT—From May 1st, the residence of M. D. Smith on Broadway. Enquire of 46 Mrs. [illegible]

[illegible] She is just at present the central figure in an unsavory scandal.

THE ACCUSATION.

She accuses Geo. L. Smith, a well known resident of Fulton, who keeps a grocery next door to the ice cream parlor of a gross breach of indecorum. She charges that on the evening of the 20th of April, Mr. Smith came to her rooms to make a neighborly visit; that he brought along a bottle of whisky and upon her refusal to partake of its contents became angry swallowed the liquor himself; that he grabbed her in such a position as to cause her virtuous indignation to rise to a terrible pitch and finally Smith became so drunk he had to be carried out. Mrs. Morse cherished this assault in her heart until last Thursday.

IS IT HER HUSBAND?

Saturday a man appeared in town claiming to be the husband of the woman in the case. He said he was married in Great Barrington, Mass., eight years ago; that up to within three years ago he was a principal in the high school in that place, and is at present engaged as salesman for the Hall Safe & Lock Co., of Cincinatti, Ohio. He says they have lived together in Dover Plains, L. I., and came from Syracuse to Fulton, residing in the Seventh ward in that city two years. Mr. Morse says his wife has of the same character; that she is a kind of female rights woman and her virtuous simplicity is being continually taken advantage of by designing men. He says he will stick to his wife and feels confident of proving that she is being maligned and persecuted.

A JEALOUS HOUSEKEEPER.

Mrs. Morse caused a pang of jealousy to shoot through the system of O. L. Danforth's house keeper and they met and indulged in a war of words in which vile epithets were exchanged with a promptness indicating a warm familiarity with their use and application. Danforth's housekeeper has left Fulton.

DANFORTH'S STORY.

He says he was going to Oswego and Mrs. Morse wished him to make a purchase for her. (Danforth fitted up the interior of Mrs. Morse's ice cream parlor) and as he had partially forgotten the order and was to leave on an early morning train he stepped into her living apartments about nine o'clock one Sunday evening to refresh his memory. He says Mrs. Morse is a lady and Mrs. Morse returns the compliment and says "Danforth is a Daisy."

GEO. L. SMITH

puts in a general denial and requests us to publish the following affidavit:

STATE OF NEW YORK, }

George L. Smith being duly sworn deposes and says that the articles printed in the Oswego Times and Palladium regarding an indecent assault made upon one Mrs. Morse by himself, are untrue and a malicious falsehood, conceived for the purpose of defaming his character he believes. And further deponent says not. GEORGE L. SMITH.

Sworn to before me this 16th day of May 1882. ARVIN RICE, Notary Public.

Mrs. Morse thinks very strongly of giving up her business in Fulton, and in the language of Mr. Morse, "sliding out."

For New Goods and Low Prices go to the Bee Hive.

At the opening day of the Fulton cheese market eighteen factories were represented with 478 boxes of cheese which was sold at 10 to 10½c. The price for the corresponding day in 1881 was 10 cents; in 1880, 11½ cents; in 1879, 7½ cents; in 1878, 7½ cents.

NOTICE TO PATRONS.

The Rolling Stock milk dealers of Fulton and Oswego Falls held a meeting this day to consider the propriety of patrons, where they buy milk, in their alternating with their neighbors and then with dealers during the year. It was concluded that cheaper milk could be afforded if the patrons would continue throughout the year to buy of some one instead of different parties. The dealers in milk are at large expense to furnish a supply during the winter and sometimes costs more than is received, and we would like the continuance of winter customers through the summer. Therefore Resolved,

We respectfully and earnestly ask citizens who desire to take milk in the winter to continue during the summer as a condition precedent to their dealing with us at all.

Dated Fulton, May 2d, 1882.

For New Goods and Low Prices go to the BEE HIVE.

☞G. L. Smith would be pleased to see all his old customers and new ones at his Store in the old Times Building, Oneida street. 46

SAMARITAN
NERVINE!

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Epileptic Fits, Spasms, Convulsions, St Vitus Dance, Vertigo, Insanity, Apoplexy, Paralysis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all Nervous Diseases. This infallible remedy will positively eradicate every species of Nervous Derangement, and drive them away from whence they came, never to return again. It utterly destroys the germs of disease by neutralizing the hereditary taint or poison in the system, and thoroughly eradicate the disease, and utterly destroys the cause.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Female Weakness, General Debility, Leucorrhea or Whites, Painful Menstruation, Ulceration of the Uterus, Internal Heat, Gravel, Inflamation of the Bladder, Irritability of the Bladder. For Wakefulness at Night, there is no better remedy. During the change of life no Female should be without it. It quiets the Nervous System and gives rest comfort and nature's sweet sleep.

SVMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Alcholism, Drunkenness and the habit of Opium Eating. These degrading habits are by far the worst evils that have ever befallen suffering humanity. Thousands die annually from these noxious drugs. The drunkard drinks liquor not because he likes it but for the pleasure of drinking and treating his friends, little thinking that he is on his road to ruin. Like the Opium Eater, he first uses the drug in small quantities as a harmless antidote. The soothing influence of the drug takes strong hold upon its victim, leading him on to his own destruction. The habits of Opium Eating and Liquor Drinking are precisely what eating is to alimentiveness, as over-eating first inflames the stomach, which redoubles its cravings until it paralyses both the stomach and appetite. So every drink of liquor or dose of opium, instead of satisfying, only adds to its fierce fires, until it consumes the vital force and then itself. Like the gluttonous tape-worm, it cries "Give, give, give!" but never enough until its own rapacity devours itself. Samariton Nervine gives instant relief in all such cases. It produces sleep, quiets the nerves, builds up the nervous system, and restores body and mind to a healthy condition.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Nervous Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Asthma, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Syphilis, diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases of the urinary organs. Nervous debility, caused by the indiscretions of youth, permanently cured by the use of this valuable remedy. To you, young middle-aged and old men, who are covering your sufferings as with a mantle by silence, look up, you can be saved by timely efforts, and make ornaments to society, and jewels in the crown of your Maker, if you will. Do not keep this a secret longer, until it saps your vitals, and destroys both body and soul. If you are thus afflicted, take DR. RICHMOND'S Samaritan Nervine. It will restore your shattered nerves, arrest premature decay, impart tone and energy to the whole system.

SAMARITAN NERVINE.

Is for sale by druggists everywhere, or may be had direct from us. Those who wish to obtain further evidence of the curative properties of Samaritan Nervine will please enclose a 3 cent postage stamp for a copy of our Illustrated Journal of Health, giving hundreds of testimonials of cure from persons who have used the medicine, and also their pictures photographed after their restoration to perfect health. Dr D. Kennedy Rondout N.Y.

DEAR SIR :—Until within a recent date I had for several years suffered greatly from gravel, called by the doctors the brick-dust sediment. For about a year past this sediment has not passed off in the usual quantity, but has accumulated, causing me untold pain. Having heard of "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" I tried it in my case, and after using about one and one-half bottles, I voided a stone from the bladder, of an oval shape, 7-16 of an inch long, and rough on its surface. I send yo the largest piece that you may see of what it is composed. since then I have felt no pain. I now consider myself cured, and cannot express my thankfullness and gratitude for so signal a deliverance from a terrible a disease. You have my consent to use this letter, should you wish to do so, for the benefit of other sufferers.

Yours Truly,
JAMES ANDREWS.
No 10 Marshal St, Ida Hill.

When we consider that the medicine which did this service for Mr. Andrews cost only one dollar a bottle, it would seem that persons in like fashion can afford the expense of testing its virtues. Get it of your druggist, or address Dr. David Kennedy Rondout, N. Y. "Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" for sale by all druggists.

What Broke a Printer.

The publisher of a weekly newspaper in Michigan before the war, was under the saddle and hitched to a wagon to boot. He carried a load of doubt, debt and anxiety which would have crushed a secretary of the treasury in one brief week. A dollar was a cart-wheel in his eyes, and two cart-wheels in the eyes of his employes. It is vividly remembered by the writer how a certain publisher in an interior town felt as happy as a king when he could send for two bundles of paper at once, and it is more vividly remembered that he never saw the week when he could buy one bundle of paper and pay off the hands too, in cash.

One day a printer died. Perhaps he gradually starved to death, or maybe the anxiety as how he could buy both wood and flour the same Saturday finished him off. At any rate a new printer came up from Grand Rapids to fill the gap, and his wages were to be $12 per week. On the first saturday he got an order on a hardware store for $10 and $2 in cash. On the next he got a boot and shoe order for $9 and a $3 order on a grocery. On the third he had to take a $6 order on a livery stable and and let the balance go over. The fourth Saturday had arrived, and he had $18 due him. An order for that amount on a saw-mill man was quietly laid on his case and the books balanced, but he protested:

"Why, I can't use this order."

"Why not."

"I don't want any lumber."

"You don't."

"No, sir."

The publisher looked blank, scratched his head, and after a minute hurried over to the desk with the remark:

"I see—all right. I'll tear this up and give you one on a cooper for $10 and another on an undertaker for $8! You had better arrange to get married and settle down here."

The printer went out of that town that evening by a very muddy highway, having disposed of his orders for $3 in cash ond a satchel to hold his spare shirt.

ANSWER THIS.—Is there a person living who ever saw a case of ague, bilousness, nervousness, or neuralgia, or any disease of the stomach, liver, or kidneys that Hop Bitters will not cure. 51w2

A Question Well Put.

A valuable friend and able farmer, about the time the temperance reform was beginning to exert a healthful influence in the country, said to his new hired man:

"Jonathan, I did not think to mention to you, when I hired you, that I think of trying to do my work this year without rum. How much must I give you to do without it?"

"Oh," said Jonathan, "I don't care about it; you may give me what you please."

"Well, "said the farmer, "I'll give you a sheep in the fall if you will do without."

"Agreed," said Jonathan.

The oldest son then said, "Father will you give me a sheep if I do without rum?"

"Yes, Marshall, you shall have a sheep if you do without rum."

The youngest son, a mere stripling, then spoke up and said: "Father, will you give me a sheep, too, if I do without rum?"

"Yes, Chandler, you shall have a sheep, too, if you do without."

Presently Chandler speaks again.

"Father, hadn't you better take a sheep yourself?"

This was a poser; he hardly thought he could give up the 'dear creature' yet; but the appeal was from a source not to be easily disregarded. The result was the demon was henceforth banished from the premises, to the great joy and ultimate happiness of all concerned.

Women everywhere use Parker's Ginger Tonic, because they have learned by experience that it overcomes despondency, indigestion, weakness in the back and kidneys, and other troubles of the sex. [Home Journal. 50t4

How clever and indefinite is the man who never gives offence!
[N. Y. News.

Twelve thousand Holland farmers with considerable capital are preparing to go to Charles Mix county, Dakota. The movement originated in the reports sent back to Holland by a wealthy Dutch farmer who settled in Charles Mix county two years ago. He sent back the most flattering reports of the country, and the emigration fever has grown to large proportions. The present movements have received an impetus also from the present bad condition of the agricultural interest in Holland. Another party of 800 are also en route.

THE DANGERS OF THE STOCK MARKET
A man may be incredulous enough to risk his money in the fickle mysteries of a mercurial stock market but when he gets the itching piles, he goes straight for Dr. Swayne's Ointment. Unlike the Bulls and Bears of the stock exchange, who clean you out of hard earned cash, it returns your money with interest, in the way of allaying the intense itching and insuring repose. 50t4

Sweet Sally Salter.

[Showing how words would sound under the newly recommended order of things.]

Sally Salter, was a teacher who taught;
And her friend, Charlie Church, a young preacher who praught
(Though his enemies called him a screecher who scraught.)

His heart, when he saw her kept sinking, and sunk;
And his eye, meeting hers, kept winking, and wunk;
While she, in her turn, fell to thinking, and thunk.

He hastened to woo her, and sweetly he wooed,
For his love grew until to a mountain it grewed,
And what he was longing to do he doed.

The secret he wanted to speak then he spoke—
To seek with his lips what his heart had long soke
So he managed to let truth leak and it loke.

He asked her to ride to the church and they rode,
And so sweetly did glide that they both thought they glode,
Till they came to the place to be tied and were tode

Then "homeward," he said, "let us drive," and they drove;
And as soon as they wished to arrive, they arrove,
For whatever she could not contrive, he controve.

The kiss he was dying to steal, then he stole;
At the feet he was longing to kneel then he knole;
And he said, "I feel better than ever I fole."

So they to each other kept clinging, and clung,
While Time in swift circuit kept wringing and wrung,
But sad was the time he was bringing and brung.

The man Sally wanted to catch and had caught—
That she wanted from others to snatch and had snaught.
Was the one she now liked to fight and had fought

So Charlie's warm love began freezing and froze,
And he now took to teasing and cruelly tose
The girl he had loved to be squeezing, and squoze.

"Wretch!" he cried, when she threatened to leave him and left,
"How could you deceive me, as you have deceft?"
And she answered, "I promised to cleave, and I've cleft."

SEMI-CENTENNIAL.

Rise and Progress of Universalism in Fulton and Vicinity.—Interesting History by G. C. Lathrop.

In connection with the semi-centennial celebration of the organization of the Universalist church in Fulton, a brief synopsis of the rise and progress of Universalism in this section will perhaps be of interest to the many readers of your valuable paper.

Universalism was first publicly promulgated by Judge Mooney, of Granby, who, although not an ordained clergyman, was a very talented man and liberal thinker. He preached occasionally and usually at his own house, from about 1813 to 1818. The first Universalist sermon by a regularly ordained clergyman was preached by the celebrated Stephen R. Smith, of Clinton, in the school house near the old fort at the lower landing in June, 1826. In the fall or early winter of 1831, Rev. Walter Bullard delivered an evening sermon in the Methodist church. During the winter of 1831—32 Rev. Dolphus Skinner, of Utica, at that time editor and proprietor of the Evangelical Magazine and Gospel Advocate (upon which E. H. Chapin and E. L. Davenport were employed as compositors) gave an evening lecture at the same church. In May, 1832, a society was formed and Rev. Walter Bullard, of Sherburne, was engaged as the first pastor. His engagement was an experimental one and was for three months. The first trustees were John Case, Gen. Robert C. Kenyon and John Worlock. In 1833 Rev. Obed Whiston, of Boston, was employed for one year, preaching half the time here in the school house at the upper landing and the other half in Oswego. After that there was occasional preaching by John French of Pulaski, Chas. B. Brown of Mexico, and Jesse Babcock, who came to the society from the Baptists. In 1835 Rev. Thomas C. Eaton, then preaching at Wolcott, came and preached in the old red school house corner of Second and Cayuga streets, with great acceptance and was regularly engaged during 1835—36. The old brown church was built during his pastorate. It was the first Universalist church in Fulton, built in 1836, and dedicated in the spring of 1837. During 1837 Rev. Alfred Peck was engaged and preached for one year. After that there was occasional preaching by Rev. Mr. Davis of Baldwinsville with great acceptance for three months. He was succeeded by Rev. R. O. Williams of Baldwinsville, who was followed by Rev. L. M. Harves who remained two years and organized the first Sunday school. There were but [illegible] and all. He [illegible] by Rev. Wm. [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] increased and [illegible] The congregation became too large for the little brown church, and the present beautiful edifice, corner of First and Rochester streets, was erected. The corner stone was laid in September, 1863, address by Rev. Dr. E. G. Brooks of New York. The dedication took place in January, 1864. In 1866 Mr. Pullman resigned and was succeeded by Rev. C. B. Lombard. He was followed by Rev. E. R. Sanborn and he by Rev. Luther Rice, who preached acceptably for two years. R. O. Crosby succeeded him and remained two years, followed by Rev. Elmer Jacobs, who remained one year. Then there was occasional preaching for a year or two, when Rev. A. P. Folsom was engaged and remained six months. Occasional preaching from that time until 1879, and the church very much discouraged and hampered with debt, when Rev. A. U. Hutchins, then state missionary, at the suggestion of Rev. Richmond Fiske of Syracuse came and supplied occasionally, as he could in connection with his duties as state missionary, and by his efforts reduced the debt more than half, when the Rev. B. Brunning was engaged for one year. At the expiration of his pastorate, Rev. A. U. Hutchins, state missionary—was engaged as a supply until January 1, 1882, when he was re-engaged as regular pastor for one year, and the church is prospering finely under his administration.

Stopped His Paper.

[Detroit Free Press.]

Nowadays when a subscriber gets so mad because an editor differs with him on some trivial question that he discontinues his paper, we remind him of a good anecdote of the late Horace Greeley, the well known editor of the New York Tribune. Passing down Newspaper row in New York city one morning, he met one of his readers, who exclaimed:

"After the article you published this morning, I intend to stop your paper."

"Oh, no," said Mr. Greeley. "don't do that."

"Yes, sir, my mind is made up. I shall stop the paper."

But the angry subscriber was not to be appeased, and they separated. Late in the afternoon the two met again, when Mr. Greely remarked:

"Mr. Thompson, I am very glad you did not carry out your threat this morning."

"What do you mean?"

"Why, you said you were going to stop my paper."

"And so I did. I went to the office and had my paper stopped."

"You are surely mistaken; I have just come from there and the press was running and the business was booming."

"Sir," said Thompson, very pompously. "I meant I intended to stop my subscription to your paper."

"Oh! thunder!" rejoiced Greeley; "I thought you were going to stop the running of my paper, and knock me out of a living. My friend let me tell you something: One man is just one drop of water in the ocean. You didn't set the machinery of this world in motion, and you can't stop it; and when you are underneath the ground things upon the surface will wag on the same as ever."

Certainly an elegant remedy for all aches and pains in St. Jacobs Oil, says Dr. J. Turner, of Shirrels Ford, N. C., in the Ravenswood (W. Va) News.

A Plug Hat in Wyoming.

The climate of Wyoming is not congenial to the plug hat. You may wear one at 1 o'clock with impunity, if you can dodge the vigilance committee, and at three minutes past one, a little cat's paw of a windmill will come sailing down the snowy range, that makes the cellars and dry wells tremble, and the hat looked like a frightened picket fence. The air of Wyoming when it is feeling pretty well, will wear out a plug hat in about two hours, and leave it looking like a joint of an iron stovepipe. At first sight of the wind the hat gets fuzzy, like the corset of a bumble bee. Then some more little whispering zephyrs come along from the same bed of violets on Vinegar Hill, and after that man has followed his hat for fifteen or twenty miles as the crow flies, he picks it out of a bunch of sage brush, and it is as baldheaded as a door knob. In former years they used to hang a man who wore a plug hat west of the Missouri river; but after a while they found it was more cruel and horrible punishment to let him wear it, and chase it over the foot hills when the frolicsome breeze caught it up, and toyed with it, and lammed it against the broad, broad brow of Laramie peak. An old hunter was out among the Black hills, east of town, last summer, and ran across a little gulch where the abrupt rocks closed together and formed a little atmospheric eddy, so to speak. There, in that lonely reservoir, he found what he at first considered a petrified hat store. It was a genuine deposit of [illegible]

A LONG LOST SON.

Return Home of a Young Man After Twenty Years Among the Indians.

The history of a singular case, one which might, if the phrase were not too hackneyed, be said to demonstrate that "truth is stranger than fiction," has just disclosed at Winona, Minn. In the quiet little village of St. Charles, in the western end of this county, there resides a lady named Mrs Ruth A. Barber. She has been married twice. Her first husband was named Camp, and was one of the "boys in blue" who faced the music of rebel artillery and gave up their lives that the union might live, at the battle of Pittsburg Landing. His relict then lived with several children, on the Big Wolf river, Waupaca county, Wisconsin. In 1864 one of her children, named Orton Morrell Camp, about four years of age at that time, mysteriously disappeared. He was last seen by his mother, playing on the river bank, and his little cap being found floating in the stream, it was generally supposed he had been drowned. A persistent search and dragging of the river failed to discover his body or any further trace of him. His mother did not for a time fully accept the drowning theory, a hope clinging to her, as it only will to a mother, that at some time the missing darling would turn up. In the neighborhood of her residence were camped a roving band of Pottawatomie Indians, the chief of whom, Nassana, had often tried to barter for the boy, he having taken a great liking to him. Mrs. Camp believed her boy had been spirited away, but no evidence could be procured to fasten the guilt on the Indians. The band was traced and their camp searched, and the whole country adjacent vainly scoured in the hopes of discovering some trace of the boy. At last even the mother's patience and hopes died, and she settled down to the belief that her boy was dead. She married again, and with her husband removed to this county. Her children grew up about her, became men and women and settled down in homes of their own. One of these, James W. Camp, located at Royalton, Wis. He was at work in one of the mills there a few days since when a roving band of Indians camped in the vicinity, and among the number Mr. Camp noticed one whose white skin clearly betokened that he did not belong to the tribe although his garb was of the Indian fashion. Mr. Camp became interested in him, found he could speak English clearly, and learned in conversation with him that he was aware he had been stolen from white parents when small. He had of his own impulse, made frequent inquiries concerning the whereabouts of his parents, but all efforts in that respect had been fruitless. He could remember but very few incidents of his youth previous to being so unceremoniously adopted by the Indians, but he could recollect that his parents called him Morrell. Such was the name of Mr. Camp's lost brother, and the conviction flashed upon him that at last the lost had been found. Two scars on the person of the newly-found brother established a chain of evidence which put the question of his identity entirely beyond doubt. His mother was at once notified, and, as might be expected, sped to him on the next train. The young man found it hard to break away from the life which he had led so long and the habits which he had formed, but the better promptings of his heart and the yearnings of love for the being who bore him weighed greater in the balance, and he now begins a new existence among the surroundings of civilized life —the stay and support of a fond mother in whose heart during all these eighteen years there has ever been a niche sacred to his name and memory.

An Omaha man, in danger of losing his house by a foreclosure of a mortgage, sold his wife to her admirer for the $200 needed to satisfy the claim. That was two years ago, at which time the proceedings caused considerable comment. The new couple lived amicably together until lately, when the original husband having prospered during his period of bachelorhood, bought back the woman at an advance of $50.

THE RESULTS OF NECESSITY.

What the ancients suffered for want of knowledge in medical science can only be appreciated by contrasting the vast amount of suffering cured and pain alleviated in modern times, by the use of Swayne's Ointment for skin diseases. Its introduction was characterized by necessary withdrawal of a score or more of illusive, quack nostrums, whose evil effects have living monuments to denounce them. Thus is exemplified the proverb, Necessity is the mother of invention. 50t4

THE last ray of hope has been exhausted in the Guiteau case. Monday the court in banc were unanimous in their decision that Guiteau must hang. [illegible] for a new trial was denied. The prisoner has been placed in solitary confinement and a death watch placed over him. He will hang five weeks from Friday.

THE statement published by some of the papers to the effect that Gen. Twitchell has been elected President of the Hoosac Tunnel & Western Railway Co., is a mistake. Hon. Geo. I. Post still continues acting President and Chairman of the select committee (representing the construction company, with the English Syndicate) to further the construction of this road.

A POSTAL card was mailed in New York Sunday addressed to the president on which the following was written: "If you do not recall your minister from England and ask for the unconditional surrender of all Americans in English dungeons you shall be shot and killed. This is no idle boast. We mean business. You are no American." The card has been sent to the post-master general for disposition.

SHORTSIGHTEDNESS has increased to so great an extent among the youths at the great Government schools in France, that a committee was appointed some time ago to inquire into the subject. In their report the committee point out that in the cause of the prevalence of the infirmity is to be found in the fact that the school books are printed in too small type, and that printing upon white paper is stilll more hurtful.

PEOPLE who contend that greenbackers are dead are not watching politics in our sister state, Pennsylvania. They are stronger than the democrats, it appears, having retained organizations in nearly every assembly district in the state since the presidential election. The split in the republican party is making them many converts. They will have a candidate for governor and the old parties are fearful that they may win the prize. They go anti-monopoly very strong, insist that all money must be issued by the govenment, and demand that laborers shall have the same rights of combination that capitalists have.

EX-U. S. SENATOR Dorsey, a star route thief, has finally turned up in Washington for trial, after having been branded for two weeks as a fugitive from justice. This is the same gentleman that gave a grand dinner in New York after the presidential election at which Vice President Arthur, now president, made a famous after dinner speech, in which he said:

"Mr. Dorsey went out to Indiana and carired it with eloquence, argument and plenty of ——" [laughter.]

He will be shortly tried before a jury of his countrymen for robbing the post-office department. It will undoubtedly be shown that here is where he obtained "plenty of ——" to carry Indiana with.

THE Guiteau case has recently taken a new phase. In Boston a petition is circulating praying the president to stay the execution, on three grounds: First, that for more than twenty years Guiteau has been hopelessly insane," this being declared to be "the concurrent verdict of our leading authorities." Second, that under the right management of the case these opinions of authorities would have gone before the court; and radically changed the character of the trial. Third, that all civilized nations are opposed to hanging the insane and "no asylum would have refused admission to Guiteau." The petitioners, who include some members of the medical profession, ask for a commission of authorities to examine and report upon Guiteau's mental condition, as is the custom in Germany ann France before the trial of persons showing signs of insanity.

NEIGHBORING NEWS.

The coopers of Oswego struck Monday, for an advance from 9 to 12 cents a barrel.

Strawberries are scarce in Syracuse at twenty-five cents a box. About fourteen in a box.

The jury in the Holmes murder trial in Syracuse rendered a verdict of "not guilty." An affecting scene followed the rendering of the verdict.

Syracuse is agitated over the question of a first class park, whose cost will not be less than $200,000. William A. Sweet promises to head the subscription with $10,000.

Oswego county has another newspaper. It is published in Williamstown and is called the Advertiser. It takes for its motto: "Equal and exact justice to all men; exclusive privileges to none."

Strawberry reports to the Oswego Times from the most important strawberry towns lead to the belief that no more than one-half or two-thirds of a crop can be expected from the vines of the county. Contracts are expected to be made at 8 to 8 1-4 cents.

The Oswego Express says "The citizens of Lyons have an eye to business and interests of their village as attested by the fact that they have subscribed $1,200, the price of three acres of land, which they propose to give to a paper mill company as an inducement to locate in that village.

Nilz Gudinungan, a Swede, made his noonday coffee, in the dying department of Conde's factory, in Oswego, where he worked, with water which contamed an alkali, in solution, April 25th. Sunday the man died. The chemical had attacked the coatings of the stomach and destroyed them. His family is helpless.

An effort is being made to enforce the Sunday excise law in Oswego. Sunday, people were locked up for being drunk, and it is said that back doors were in great demand. The Oswego Express does not like the open manner in which the law is violated and wants an example made of some of them. The Express isn't afraid to speak out its mind.

Friday morning about six o'clock, Harvey W. Kendall a young physician of Syracuse was found lying in a field just east of the county poor house near that city, with a bullet through his head. A kit of resurrectionist's tools was lying near him, and as the place where he was discovered is near the county cemetery it is supposed that body snatching was his mission. By whose hand the shot was fired is a mystery. He has since died. The case has excited much attention but up to date no light is thrown upon the cause of the shooting.

James Vick, the well known florist and seedsman, died at his home in Rochester last Wednesday. Mr. Vick was born in England in 1818 near where Charles Dickens was born six years before. He came to this country when fifteen years old and set type beside Horace Greeley. He subsequently published the Genesee Farmer in Rochester. Mr. Vick was a conscientious believer in advertising for which he often spent $100,000 in a single year. His establishment employs 125 hands. Mr. Vick was a real lover of flowers and has done much to multiply their varieties, and increase their beauty. The name of Vick has become familiar in nearly every household in the land. He leaves a fortune estimated at nearly a million.

Assemblyman Farrar of Onondaga county has introduced a bill in the assembly to annul the marriage of Daniel Walrath and Emma H. Sawyer of Chittenango. Daniel and Emma were neighbors and a childish love sprang up between them which culminated in a secret marriage in 1879. They were married by Rev. Irwin and the young husband accompanied his wife as far as the gate of her parents' residence and bidding her good night said he would return in two days. This was in December 1879. She has not seen or heard from her husband since, and as the statutes of this state do not allow of a divorce for desertion a special bill is being prepared to cover the young lady's case. The husband is said to be living in the west.

New Bloomfield, Miss. Jan. 2, 1880.

I wish to say to you that I have been suffering for the last five years with a severe itching all over. I have heard of Hop Bitters and have tried it. I have used up four bottles, and it has done me more good than all the doctors and medicines they could use on or with me. I am old and poor but feel to bless you for such a relief by your medicine and from torment of the doctors. I have had fifteen doctors at me. One gave me seven ounces of solution of arsenic; another took four quarts of blood from me. All they could tell me was that it was skin sickness. Now after these four bottles of your medicine, my skin is well, clear and smooth as ever.

Receiving His Friends.

Rev. A. U. Hutchins who has been pastor of the Universalist church the past four months removed his family here from Syracuse a few days since and on Wednesday evening last gave an informal reception to his friends at his residence, at the corner of Broadway and Fourth streets. About seventy were present and all seemed to enjoy the social gathering. The evening's enjoyment was much increased by the music, vocal and instrumental. Miss Ella daughter of Mr. Hutchins sang a song by T. H. Hinton, entitled "Fairy Land." Miss Bullis, sister of Mrs. H. sang a beautiful solo. Mrs. Nellie Pratt, and Mrs. Jennie Anthony sang a charming duet, Mrs. Ida Watson at the piano. The next call was a reading from Dr. Woodbury. This in some respects was a failure. It had been indicated that he would read a selection from Bryant or Phoebe Cary. But during the evening by the quiet assistance of two ladies he found access to the barrel of sermons in the dominie's study and placing one in his breast pocket, and his book in his hand was prepared for the emergency. First a hymn was selected and read which was also sung by an improvised choir who had a few minutes before been notified of the plot. Afterward the sermon was withdrawn from the doctor's pocket, and he commenced reading a division which treated upon the "Nature of Man," which was discovered by the company to be "dried tongue" surreptitiously obtained and under the facetious protest of the author and the host was brought to a close by the automatic air brake—Amen.

Afterward a fine collation was served on tables distributed through the rooms. There was an abundance and several baskets of fragments were taken up. After another season of social intercourse the guests began to bid the host and his family a good night. Everybody seemed to enjoy the occasion and warmly welcomed the new pastor and his pleasant family to the town with best wishes for their prosperity and happiness. S.

Judge Joseph Mullin of Watertown fell dead in Saratoga last Thursday. In 1843 he was elected district attorney of Jefferson county, and in 1846 he was sent to the 30th congress from his district. In 1857 his career as a judge was begun by his being elected a justice of the supreme court for the Fifth judicial district. He was re-elected to the place in 1856, the term being then eight years, and again in 1878. The term of fourteen years, to which he was then chosen would have carried him beyond the constitutional age, and accordingly, the first of January after he was seventy years old—that is, January 1, 1882—he was retired, Judge Vann succeeding him.

VAN VALKENBURG'S RESTAURANT.

—:o:—

A Model Restaurant and Billiard Room Charley have you been to look at Van's place, on the corner of First and Oneida Streets since he has remodeled and enlarged it? His Restaurant! Yes, was the reply, and it certainly is one of the best appointed and most attractive places ever opened in our village. Such is the fact. This ever popular place has been thoroughly Repainted and Remodeled so that it is now more pleasant and attractive than ever before. The partitions have been removed, the Rooms made Larger so that any that may wish to go to a First-Class Restaurant can do so now and can go into a private entrance to lunch alone, separate and alone. He has also a Billiard & Pool Room attached, entirely separate from Bar or Lunch Room. The Tables are of Babcock's best make, handsomely gotten up and have the Celebrated Magic Double Action Cushion which are so popular with all lovers of Billiard and Pool. All that money can do to make Van's place more popular than ever has been done. Only the best of everything is kept. Call and look at his bill of fare and know for yourselves the Lunch Van gets up and you will be surprised to learn that he keeps on hand everything in the shape of Lunch that could be got at Delmonicos. He is prepared to get up Lunch for Picnicing and Fishing Parties on the shortest notice in Elegant Style and at very reasonable rates. Now I will give you a small list of his lunches that he gets up: Oysters in every style; Clam Chowder, Sardines, Lobsters, [illegible]

The Cheese Market.

[From the Utica Herald.]

UTICA, May 22, 1882.—Transactions for the day were as follows: 160 boxes at 10c; 153 at 10⅛c; 660 at 10½c; 439 at 11c; 505 at 11¼c; 117 at P. T. Sales, 2,394 boxes; commissions, 1,379; total 5,518 boxes. Ruling price, 10½c. Last year the transactions of the corresponding day were 5,259 boxes, with 9c for leading price. The amount, however, does not represent the make of last year, because there was a drop of two cents in price the previous week, and salesmen refused to sell at such a reduction.

LITTLE FALLS, May 22, 1882—It was an agreeable surprise to salesmen today to learn that the market had greatly improved in tone and that prices promised to be higher. The backwardness of the season, the light yield of milk, and the unpromising look of the market last week, were not very encouraging features and dairymen plainly showed their effect. The warm weather, with considerable rain to-day, and the improvement in the market, produced quite a change in the expressions of those interested in the cheese trade. Transactions show quite an increase in quantity, doubtless due to the better prices. Quite all dairymen hereabout have now turned their cows out to pasture, tho' we hear some say they consider it of little use. No "every-day cheese" sold above eleven cents to-day, the range for such being, for the most part, 10¾ and 11 cents; whole milk cheese sold at 11 and 11¼ cents. We learn of 600 cheeses bought by one of our buyers, at the factories during the latter part of last week, at an average price of 10 cents for all fine goods.

Following are the transactions:

Lots	Boxes	Price.
4	158	10 cents.
3	86	10¼ "
14	651	10½ "
20	992	10¾ "

AT FULTON.

Twelve factories on the register. Three hundred and fifty boxes offered, all of which sold at from 10 1-2 to 11 cents. Osborne of Fulton and Hoose of Mexico were the only buyers present. Meetings will be held at the Lewis house throughout the season.

Good Investment—A man received a legacy of $121. He put $120 in the bank and with the odd dollar bought two bottles of the Peerless Worm Specific. The bank burst and he lost all, but the Worm Specific cured his two children of worms that had troubled them for years. He declares that one dollar the the best investment he ever made. Costs 25 & 50 cents. For sale by R. E. Phillips.

WHAT A GERMAN NEWSPAPER SAYS.

We Germans are in general not inclined to believe at once in great announcements and puffs; we are rather supicious, and often with perfect right, of exaggerations and humbugs. Our motto is "what the eye sees the heart believes," and we therefore desire to see and examine our selves before we speak about things and praise them. This was our idea when we heard so much about Dr. S. A. Richmond's justly celebrated World's Elipetic Institute, and we therefore sent a reporter to the building. We are now able to give the best information on the subject, based on a personal review and examination of the premises.

Our reporter found Dr. Richmond in his office. The Dr. kindly received him, and not only answered all his questions, but showed and explained everything about the place to him. His office is on the first floor of the building, and its walls are covered with photographs of gentlemen and ladies restored to health by the use of Samaritan nervine, among whom our reporter recognized many of his own countrymen, and its glass cases contained innumbrable certificate of cures and letters in praise of this world-famous remedy.

About ten years ago Dr. Richmond came to St. Joseph. He was then a poor young man, with but little money and no friends to assist him. He rented a small office on Francis street, and commenced the struggle for success single-handed and alone. He has achieved a grand triumph, in the face of stubborn opposition on every hand and is to-day one of the wealthiest men in our midst. This fact alone is amply sufficient to show the merits of his invaluable preparation, even though there were no other sources from which to procure valid and reliable testimony.

But besides the money which this great medicine has been the means of of giving to to the inventor, the doctor receives daily the blessings of thousands of patients restored to health and happiness through his instrumentality. These letters are open for inspection at his office, and it requires two clerks to attend to this branch of the business.

Dr Richmond is a living example to be imitated by all young men who have a disposition to reach eminence in the world by diligence in the use of their own exertions, and besides the enjoyment of the prosperity which surrounds him, he has the satisfaction to be regarded a human benefactor.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF FULTON.

The Times' Birthday.

Fourteen years ago to-day THE FULTON TIMES was first presented to the people of Fulton and vicinity as a candidate for their consideration. The paper was first published by Geo. E. and J. M. Williams who continued its publication until J. M. withdrew and purchased the Phœnix Register, and remains at the head of that live journal to-day. Geo. E. continued the publication of THE TIMES.

The paper grew and prospered. It was conducted with ability and fearlessness, two traits sufficient in themselves to bring success to any journal, and soon found itself a welcome guest in nearly every household in Fulton and surrounding country.

In January, 1881 Geo. E. Williams sold THE TIMES to E. D. Deming, of Gowanda, N. Y., and moved to Missouri, where he is at present engaged in business. Mr. Deming enlarged THE TIMES and in September, 1881, sold out to Warner C. Wheeler, who soon found it necessary to further extend the paper's borders. Such is the history of THE TIMES in brief up to the time of its present ownership.

Our prospectus for the future is brief. We shall continue to make the paper an authentic disseminator of the local news and shall give the general news of the day in terse but intelligent form. We shall spare no pains to maintain our position as the Leading Local Paper and will endeavor to increase its worth to the general public.

OUR CIRCULATION.

The circulation of THE TIMES attests its value and our extensive advertising patronage is another evidence of its worth. THE TIMES to-day has a larger circulation than any paper ever published in Fulton, by some five hundred, and in substantiation of the above fact our mailing lists, subscription books and press room are at liberty to be inspected by any interested party.

Cheering Words.

The New York Daily News says: "THE FULTON TIMES is one of the best and sprightliest country journals now extant."

Mr. H. H. Haynes writing from Philadelphia to renew his subscription to THE TIMES says: "You are making up a good paper—the best I have ever seen from Fulton. It ought to be appreciated and no doubt it is."

Mrs. W. E. Williams, of St Louis, Mo., is expected in Fulton this week.

Cornelius Murphy, who has made Chicogo his home for some time past, is in Fulton.

Rev. Geo. Foster and wife of Humbolt, Iowa, are visiting their children in Fulton. They will be recognized as old residents of Fulton.

It is reported that a disease somewhat similar in its symptoms to pinkeye is troubling some of the people in the vicinity of Gilberts Mills.

Mrs. S. S. Reynolds will conduct the temperance prayer meeting next Sunday afternoon. The public are invited. Rooms over Woodin's hardware store.

James Stevens offers for sale his stock of confectionery and toys, and he also has a first-class trade in ice cream, cigars, etc. He will rent the building to purchaser. Read Advertisement.

Rev. E. Moyses was visited by a large party of friends Monday evening—his birthday—who styled themselves a pound party. There was some pretty heavy pounds left upon the Rector's table.

The pavement is being repaired on Oneida street, there being not enough money appropriated to repave, both Oneida and First. The business portion of First street only will be repaired.

Where are our policemen? Demands are being made for the enforcement of the ordinance against playing ball in the streets. Pedestrians are being greatly annoyed and horses made unmanageable.

Regents examination will commence at No. 3 school house June 15th, and continue during the 16th and 17th. Any one qualified may present themselves for examination it not being necessary to be a member of the school.

The architect was instructed to draw up a plan for a church building whose cost would not exceed $12,000. The unanimity of the bidders in estimating the work at a much larger figure than the society care to invest will undoubtedly cause a revision of the plans. A meeting of the society is called for this evening in the session room to get the expression of the society as to the most judicious manner of proceeding with the work. The society have no idea of abandoning the project.

DECORATION DAY NOTES.

Parties having flowers to donate will please leave them at S. of T. rooms Monday morning.

Citizens are requested to fall in line and march with the veterans.

Chief Engineer Gilbert requests members of the fire department to meet at the engine house at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday to participate in the Decoration Day exercises.

Any of our citizens who are willing to donate their carriages for the G. A. R. to visit the cemetries on Decoration day will please leave word with D. M. Perine or Capt. J. S. Palmer.

G. A. R. DOINGS.

There are now twenty-three names on the roll for the formation of a G. A. R. in Fulton. W. J. Pentelow, N. H. Gilbert and Marcus Crahan have been appointed a committee to complete arrangements for an organization.

It is proposed to name the G. A. R. in Fulton, Post Schenck, in honor of Daniel F. Schenck, a brave and thoro' soldier who gave his life battling for the preservation of the Union. It would be a merited recognition also to one of the most patriotic families in this vicinity during the war.

William Lovejoy has purchased a lot on Academy street east of Dr. Woodbury's and is putting it in shape to erect a dwelling.

Ed. J. Youngs has removed with his family to Flint, Mich. Mr. Youngs has become a partner in a machine shop.

A service of song and prayer will be held in S. of T. rooms Saturday evening at 7:45 to which the public are invited.

The west end of the lower bridge, known as the Schenck approach, is being rebuilt by the D. L. & W. railroad company.

DeGraw is going to remove his wood yard from the Flats to the vacant lots between Cole's and Hendrick & Hubbard's on First street.

In the game between a picked nine from Oswego and a Fulton nine on the Oswego Falls fair ground, Saturday, Oswego won by a score of 23 to 13.

Dr. Denike is now located in his office in the Townsend block where people desirous of his services will find him. Entrance on Cayuga street or First street.

Mr. A. B. Maynard of this village is purchasing cows in the surrounding towns and shipping them to Herkimer county. None but the best dairy cows are taken.

W. S. Nelson & Co. are shipping over two thousand barrels per week to Baldwinsville and Syracuse. The superior barrel manufactured by the firm cause a brisk demand.

Marcus P. Schenck has been granted a patent on a cider and wine press. Schenck's cider and wine press is reaching a high state of perfection and the demand is becoming large.

S. H. Wendell, formerly with Pardee & Piper in this village now local editor of the Pulaski Democrat has been appointed collector for the village of Pulaski. If he collects the taxes as closely as the news, it will be well done.

On Monday, June 5th, the N. Y. O. & W. company will run another of their popular excursion trains to New York. The Masonic grand Lodge convenes in that city on the 6th, and this will afford members of the fraternity an opportunity to attend at a very cheap figure. The fare for the round trip will be only $7.00

On the 5th Sunday after Easter Rev. Mr. Moyses delivered his 10th annual address as Rector of Zion Church, from which it appears that the contributions of the parish for all objects parochial, diocesan and general and growth in membership have been considerably greater than during any previous decade in the history of the Parish. The present number of communicants are ninety, of whom but thirty-five were on the list when Rev. Mr. Moyses entered upon his duties.

Geo. Montague, one of the proprietors of the Oswego river eel fisheries, says the stocking of the river with trout is an absurdity. They are placed in tributaries to the river and are carried into deep water and eaten by pike, pickerel and large fish, with that ravenous avidity we all know minnows are gulped down. And as for the eel weirs catching them it is untrue. Neither do they entrap black bass. Mr. Montague has spent many years in fishing on the Oswego river and his statements are worthy of thought.

OBITUARY.

Arvilla, wife of George Briggs, died at Seneca Hill the 10th inst. aged 48 years. Funeral services were held from her late residence Saturday, at 2 p. m.

Sarah J., Wife of Peter Speed, died at Battle Island, May 19, aged 49. Funeral was held Sunday at 2 p. m. Rev. A. M. Roe of Fulton, officiating. Interred in cemetery at Battle Island.

P. D. Warner died in Syracuse last week. Mr. Warner was once a prominent citizen of Fulton and was proprietor of a harness store on First street. He had many warm friends in Fulton.

Steven A. Hall died yesterday at the residence of his brother-in-law, A. L. Odell, near Seneca Hill, of consumption, aged 35 years. Funeral will be from the house Friday, and body interred at Rosevelt.

Chas Thomas, died at his home in Skaneateles, Monday. Mr. Thomas it will be remembered was at the home of his uncle, Mr L. S. Worden in this village when prostrated and remained here several weeks.

Word has been received in Fulton of the death in Lagrange, Ind., of Harriet Waterhouse, widow of Baldwin Waterhouse, and sister of Richard Rust of this village. The Waterhouses were at one time prominent in the affairs of Fulton.

A dispatch from Deadwood, D. T., announces the death of Rev. George Pennell. Pennell's death recalls the romantic story of Mary Hannah Schroeppel a former resident of this county who was secretly married to him and basely deserted after the supposed death of a child which the mother never saw.

Morris Richards another one of the pioneers of this locality died in Granby yesterday, two miles north of Dexterville, where he had resided for 51 years. He was 78 years of age. Mr. Richards was an honored citizen and his death brings sorrow to many hearts. Funeral to-morrow at 2 p. m., at his late residence.

Lawrence Griffin died at his residence in "Stony Robbie," Granby, yesterday morning, aged 81 years. Funeral will be held to-morrow at 2 p. m. at the church of the Immaculate Conception in this village. Mr. Griffin recently sustained a severe loss by fire that greatly unnerved him and he was last week severely injured by a wagon which undoubtedly hastened his end. He was widely known and respected and resided for nearly thirty years at South Granby. A wife and two children survive him.

Mrs. Melissa Merritt, widow of Rev. Charles Merritt died at her home in Granby last Thursday aged 72 years. She was the mother of Mr. Tyler Merritt of this village and J. W. Merritt, at whose home she died. Funeral services were held at the house May 20 conducted by Rev. J. P. Simons of Fulton.

The subject of his remarks were well chosen and were from Galatians, second chapter and twentieth verse, holding the attention of many that were there for thirty minutes and showing how dear was the good news of the glad tiding of Salvation to him and to all that have that precious hope.

The subject of this sketch was born in 1809 and had lived nearly fifty years in the home where shere she died. She died as she had lived, beloved by all that knew her and strong in that Christian faith which had so many years buoyed her hopes for the future. She passed away without a struggle or murmur to be at rest with her saviour.

The singing was rendered by the Lysander Congregational choir and was very impressive, the last piece, "Gone with Jesus," seemed to carry us away for a moment to the blissful beyond. By her life she has left an example that we would all do well to follow.

F. A. Seymour of Cleveland, Ohio, has been in town a day or two. Mr. Seymour is traveling salesman for the Murray oil and stove manufacturing Company of Cleveland.

James E. Miller and Geo. Hall returned Monday evening from Constantia with twelve pounds of trout. It would appear from this that trout are plenty yet and near home too.

Rev. J. S. Riggs' lecture to young men in Nichols hall Sunday evening drew a large congregation. It was one of the gentleman's most instructive and entertaining lectures and was ripe with good advice and valuable suggestions.

Rev. A. U. Hutchins left Monday for New York, Boston and other cities in the east, to be absent two Sundays, during which time there will be no preaching at the Universalist church. Sunday-school will meet as usual at 12 o'clock.

In the last issue of "Music and Drama," the recognized music journal of New York city, we observe that "Horace N. Gilbert is the recognized musical and dramatic correspondent for Music and Drama in Fulton, N. Y."

A. S. Morse is working life insurance in town. He represents the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association of N. Y. city—a company that combines the best features of the Old Line and Cooperative and guarantees a constant decrease of assessments by the issue of bonds to the policy holders, which will in about fifteen years make the policy self supporting.

On the 9th inst. P. T. Murphy of Syracuse, agent for Kearney the brewer, was driving upon the west end of the upper bridge just as the factory was out for night, Miss Della Peck an operative in the factory was attempting to cross the bridge from the south to the north side and alleges a wheel of the wagon driven by Murphy passed over her left foot since which time she has been unable to walk. The aid of the law will be invoked to adjust this wrong if not voluntarily righted.

A report is current that Mr. D. Ramsden is to be supplanted as superintendent of the Oswego Falls factories. It is entirely groundless. Mr. Ramsden's services are too valuable to be dispensed with and his management of these factories has certainly been remarkable. While neighboring mills have been embarrassed by strikes, working on half time, and oftentimes failure, the people of this community are willing witnesses to the fact that Mr. Ramsden's executive ability and ripe judgment have averted like calamities here. The mill is constantly reaching out to the great good of everybody in this vicinity.

[illegible] the editors [illegible] of the [illegible] men in this community.

Nothing of an abusive or degrading character that could be coined into English was bad enough for the Patriot to utter in regard to Mr. Conkling in the past. Through abuse one of the editors lost the Fulton post-office and another political point they are trying to work will certainly prove abortive.

Now they have surrendered what they contended was "honest independence" and exhibited to the public how farcial their so-called convictions were and advocate Conkling. It's laughable, but observe their position now:

> "If Mr. Conkling is looking for anything politically it is for the nomination of governor of the state of New York. As a candidate and as a nominee he comes directly before the people. An election as governor of the state of New York this fall would be the most emphatic verdict in his favor possible. And his chances of success are by no means to be laughed away. His chances are quite as good as any one's who has yet been mentioned. He has unquestionable ability, experience and integrity."

The Patriot is prospecting around to strike some popular breeze, thinking perhaps they may blow into popularity or office. If the advocacy of Conkling does not bring about the desired result, we would advise them to pose as anti-monopolists.

Our Monument.

"Men's evil manners live in brass;
their virtues
We write in water." [Henry VIII.

It has never occurred to us before why it is that evil lives while good is so soon forgotten. The fact is that men are the builders of their own monuments. The hardening effect of the evil in their natures furnishes all the material at hand, and that is why their "evil manners live in brass," and become a monument to warn all future generations of the way they trod when in the flesh. Their virtues, if they have any, lead them to modest retirement, and it may be that their epitaphs are written in water because of the lack of more substantial material at hand. But this is the retrospective aspect. Our modest enduring monuments are not those of which we ourselves are the conscious authors. The philanthropist would write his own virtues in water, but those to whom he has been a benefactor, will rear imperishable shafts of grateful memories, more enduring than brass or stone. Thousands of people in Central New York who have experienced the public spirited course of the great One Price Ready Made Clothiers, Kent & Miller, 18 and 20 South Salina street, will rear such monuments to their memory, for they have revolutionized the trade here with their excellent goods, their substantial manufacture, their fidelity to the latest styles, their unsurpassed taste and judgment, and withal their extremely low prices. We counsel all, before purchasing elsewhere, to call and compare critically the goods and prices. At

SAMARITAN

NERVINE!

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Epileptic Fits, Spasms, Convulsions, St Vitus Dance, Vertigo, Insanity, Apoplexy, Paralysis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all Nervous Diseases. This infallible remedy will positively eradicate every species of Nervous Derangement, and drive them away from whence they came, never to return again. It utterly destroys the germs of disease by neutralizing the hereditary taint or poison in the system, and thoroughly eradicate the disease, and utterly destroys the cause.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Female Weakness, General Debility, Leucorrhoea or Whites, Painful Menstration, Ulceration of the Uterus, Internal Heat, Gravel, Inflamation of the Bladder, Irritability of the Bladder. For Wakefulness at Night, there is no better remedy. During the change of life no Female should be without it. It quiets the Nervous System and gives rest comfort and nature's sweet sleep.

SVMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Alcholism, Drunkenness and the habit of Opium Eating. These degrading habits are by far the worst evils that have ever befallen suffering humanity. Thousands die annually from these noxious drugs. The drunkard drinks liquor not because he likes it but for the pleasure of drinking and treating his friends, little thinking that he is on his road to ruin. Like the Opium Eater, he first uses the drug in small quantities as a harmless antidote. The soothing influence of the drug takes strong hold upon its victim, leading him on to his own destruction. The habits of Opium Eating and Liquor Drinking are precisely what eating is to alimentiveness, as over-eating first inflames the stomach, which redoubles its cravings until it paralyses both the stomach and appetite. So every drink of liquor or dose of opium, instead of satisfying, only adds to its fierce fires, until it consumes the vital force and then itself. Like the gluttonous tape-worm, it cries "Give, give, give!" but never enough until its own rapacity devours itself. Samaritan Nervine gives instant relief in all such cases. It produces sleep, quiets the nerves, builds up the nervous system, and restores body and mind to a healthy condition.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Nervous Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Asthma, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Syphilis, diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases of the urinary organs. Nervous debility, caused by the indiscretions of youth, permanently cured by the use of this valuable remedy. To you, young middle-aged and old men, who are covering your sufferings as with a mantle by silence, look up, you can be saved by timely efforts, and make ornaments to society, and jewels in the crown of your Maker, if you will. Do not keep this a secret longer, until it saps your vitals, and destroys both body and soul. If you are thus afflicted, take DR. RICHMOND'S Samaritan Nervine. It will restore your shattered nerves, arrest premature decay, impart tone and energy to the whole system.

SAMARITAN NERVINE.

Is for sale by druggists everywhere, or may be had direct from us. Those who wish to obtain further evidence of the curative properties of Samaritan Nervine will please enclose a 3 cent postage stamp for a copy of our Illustrated Journal of Health, giving hundreds of testimonials of cure from persons who have used the medicine, and also their pictures photographed after their restoration to perfect health. of "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy." I called it in my case, and after using about one and one-half bottles, I voided a stone from the bladder, of an oval shape, 7-16 of an inch long, and rough on its surface. I send yo the largest piece that you may see of what it is composed. Since then I have felt no pain. I now consider myself cured, and cannot express my thankfulness and gratitude for so signal a deliverance from a terrible a disease. You have my consent to use this letter, should you wish to do so, for the benefit of other sufferers.

Yours Truly,

JAMES ANDREWS.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

Is a Positive Cure

for all those Painful Complaints and Weaknesses so common to our best female population.

It will cure entirely the worst form of Female complaints, all ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, and the consequent Spinal Weakness, and is particularly adapted to the change of Life.

It will dissolve and expel tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development. The tendency to cancerous humors there is checked very speedily by its use.

It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion.

That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use.

It will at all times and under all circumstances act in harmony with the laws that govern the female system.

For the cure of Kidney Complaints of either sex this Compound is unsurpassed.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND is prepared at 233 and 235 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass. Price $1. Six bottles for $5. Sent by mail in the form of pills, also of lozenges, on receipt of price, $1. per box for either. Mrs. Pinkham freely answers all letters of inquiry. Inclose 3c. Stamp. Send for pamphlet. Address as above. Mention this paper.

No family should be without LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S LIVER PILLS. They cure constipation, biliousness, and torpidity of the liver. 25 cents per box.

☞For several years we have furnished the Dairymen of America with an excellent artificial color for butter; so meritorious that it met with great success everywhere receiving the highest and only prizes at both International Dairy Fairs.

☞But by patient and scientific chemical research we have improved in several points, and now offer this new color as the best in the world.

It Will Not Color the Buttermilk. It Will Not Turn Rancid. It is the Strongest, Brightest and Cheapest Color Made,

☞And, while prepared in oil, is so compounded that it is impossible for it to become rancid.

☞BEWARE of all imitations, and of all other oil colors, for they are liable to become rancid and spoil the butter.

I said: "At ... ..."

Yet two score came and found me thrifty,
And so I drew the line at fifty.

But when I reached that age I swore
None could be old until three score.

And here I am at sixty now,
As young as when at six I trow!

'Tis true these rogues about my knee
Say "Grandpa!" when they speak to me;

But, bless your soul, I'm young as when
I thought all people old at ten!

Perhaps a little wiser grown—
Perhaps some old illusions flown;

But wondering still while years have rolled,
When is it that a man grows old?

PERFECTLY AMAZED.

In the San Francisco Evening bulletin we observe that Mr. Rosenthal, of the well known firm, Rosenthal & Roesch, 538 California street, that city, said to one of their reporters: "We all know of St. Jacobs Oil and are amazed at the suddenness of the relief it affords. If you know of any one who is suffering with rheumatism, bruise or sprain, tell them to use St. Jacobs Oil.

Worth Observing.

In getting your photograph taken observe the following rules: Keep your eyes fixed on the floor until the moment comes to "keep steady." Practice your sweetest expression before the glass in advance, and begin to express when you see the man advance with the square box. Try to think of something calm and placid—molasses, for example. Keep something in your hand to steady your nerves—a corn cob is a good thing. Never pay the entire sum in advance, and always remember that the plainest looking people make the most successful pictures.

Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" is the debilitated woman's best restorative tonic.

Such a Little Baby.

The smallest baby in the world was recently born in a mining camp at Candelaria, Nevada. The father is a miner and weighs 190 pounds. The mother is a stout, healthy woman, weighing perhaps 160 pounds. The child is a male, as perfectly formed as any human being can be, but upon its birth it only weighed 8 ounces. Its face is about the size of a horse chestnut, and a ring worn on the little finger of its mother was easily slipped over its foot nearly up to the knee. In the opioion of the attending physician the child will live and prosper in good health, nothwithstanding its diminutive proportions. The midget is so small that three of its size could play hide-and-seek in a cigar box.

*_"Manv silly people despise the precious, not understanding it." But no one despises Kidney Wort after having given it a trial. Those who have used it agree that it is by far the best medicine known. Its action is prompt, thorough and lasting. Don't take pills and other mercurials that poison the system, but by using Kidney Wort restore the natural action of all the organs.

Why Nervous Diseases Increase.

The London Lancet says: "Nervous diseases and weaknesses increase in a country as the pooulation comes to live on the flesh of the warm blooded animals. This is a point to which attention has not been adequately directed. 'Meat'—using that term in its popular sense—is highly stimulating, and supplies proportionally more exciting than actual nourishing pabulum to the nervous system. The meat eater lives at high pressure, and is, or ought to be, a peculiarly active organism, like a predatory animal, always on the alert, walking rapidly, and consuming large quantities of oxygen. In practice we find that the meat eater does not live up to the level of his food, and as a consequence he can not or does not take in enough oxygen to satisfy the exigencies of his mode of life. Thereupon follow many if not most of the ills to which highly civilized and luxurious meat eating classes are liable."

The poor bed-ridden, invalid wife, sister, mother, or daughter, can by made the picture of health by a few bottles of Hop Bitters. Will you let them suffer? when so easily cured. 1w2

Balloonists have a unique method of taking "soundings" to learn their distance when travelling in the air at night. COUNTY COURT—COUNTY OF OSWEGO. By virtue of an execution issued out of the county court of the county of Oswego to me directed, in an action wherein Stephen Hinckley was plaintiff and George Simons was defendant against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements of said George Simons, I have seized all the right and title which the said George Simons had on the 21st day of April, 1881, or at any time thereafter of in and to the following described lands and premises which I shall expose for sale at public auction at the law office of Giles S. Piper in the village of Fulton in said county of Oswego on the First day of July, 1882, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day to wit: All that tract or parcel of land situate in the town of Palermo, county of Oswego and state of New York described as follows: Beginning at the north-east corner of lands formerly owned by LeRoy Owen and lands formerly owned by Charles Pangburn; thence running westerly sixty (60) rods along the line of lands formerly owned by Charles Pangburn; thence south far enough so that a line drawn parallel with the above mentioned line to contain twenty (20) acres of land, said twenty acres of land to be measured off from the north end of lot No. 27, Henderson tract, fourteenth township of Scriba's Patent; also the right to cross and recross from and to said premises from the highway leading from the Jennings mill to the state road across the lands formerly owned by Harry Clark as may be directed by said Clark or his assigns and being the same premises conveyed by Harry Clark and wife to George H. Simons by deed recorded in Oswego county clerk's office in Book ... of deeds at page 150.

Only A Smile.

Only a smile that was given me
  In the crowded street one day
But it pierced the gloom of saddened heart
  Like a sudden sunbeam's ray.
The shadow of doubt hung over me,
  And the burden of pain I bore,
And the voice of hope I could not hear,
  Though I listened o'er and o'er.

But there came a drift in the crowd about,
  And a face I knew passed by,
And the smile I caught was brighter to me
  Than the blue of a summer sky,
For it gave me back the sunshine,
  And scattered each sombre thought,
And my heart rejoiced in the kindling warmth
  Which the kindly smile had wrought

Only a smile from a friendly face
  On the busy street that day!
Forgotten as soon as given perhaps,
  As the donor went her way.
But straight to my heart it went speeding
  To gild the clouds that were there,
And I found that of sunshine and life's blue skies
  I always might take my share.

A Chicago Idyl.

"Must I really go sweetheart?"

"Yes" returned Lillian McGuire, placing her shapely white hand in his, and looking into his face with a tender earnestness that showed the true womanliness of her nature; "It is better, far better for both of us that we should part forever," but as she spoke the hot tears of pain welled up into her beauti- brown eyes—those eyes that had bewitched with their bright eyes and dreamy tenderness so many men—and with a little sob of pain Lillian's head was bowed upon George W. Simpson's shoulder in an ecstacy of grief.

"Couldn't you put a ten year limit on your bill, darling?" asked the young man, bending gently over the little head that was pillowed so trustingly just under his left ear; "I certainly ought to have as good a chance as a "Chinaman."

A low moan of pain and a convulsive shudder was the only reply.

But George was not to be denied so easily. "Can I not have one hope?" he said; "one little nickle plated ten cent hope?"

Lillian lifted up her head and looked at him steadily. "Perhaps," she said in cold Bafflin's Bay tones, "you would drop if a house fell on you, but I begin to doubt it. Know then, since you will have it, that under no circumstances can I ever accept your proffered love, for I am a packer's daughter, and packers' daughters come high"—this with a haughty expression that lower case type cannot convey.

George W. Simpson saw at once that this proud beauty had been making a plaything of his love. The revelation was a terrible one, but he bore it bravely.

"Very well" he said, in a husky, have-not-had-a-drink-in-two-hours tone. "You have stamped with the iron heel of scorn upon the tender violets of my budding love, but some day when your children—little winsome brats with sunny smiles and an assorment of colic that will keep you up three nights in every week—are climbing upon your knee until you are in danger of becoming knee sprung, you will perhaps remember with a tinge of sadness in the recollection, how you toyed with the love of a loyal, trusting, Cook county heart and threw forever over a young and happy life the black pall of disappointed hope and crushed ambition. I have seen the roses of my love wither and waste away until they lie shrivelled and blighted by the dusty roadside of life, and you can bet that I feel pretty tough about it. I have seen my beautiful and stately Ship of Hope, with its tall shapely masts and towering wings of snowy canvas, that sailed away so buoyantly and bravely over the shimmering sea not many months ago, come back to me a shapeless wreck—the tapering spars that were so white and clean now jagged and broken, and to them clinging the dark seaweeds, while on the sails that rivalled the clouds in fleecy purity there remain only blackened shrouds that flap dismally in the morning wind, whose voice seems to sound the requiem and dirge of dead and buried love. I have got the boss wreck and don't you forget it."

Lilian looked at him steadily for a moment. "Do you mean the words you have spoken, George?" she asked.

"You bet your life I do," he answered in low passionate tones.

"And do you really love me so dearly?"

"Well, I should gasp," was the reply, a pearly tear glistening in George's off eye.

"Then," said Lilian, twining her arms around his neck, "I will rest on your knee next Tuesday evening as usual. Papa would never forgive me if I let a man who can talk like that go out of the family."

How They Do Things in Turkey.

There has recently been at Jusgat, in the province of the Sivas (Asiatic Turkey), the governor of a prison in that town, who had hit upon a singular ingenious method of enriching himself. This official had organized in the establishment over which he had the honor to preside, a select band of prisoners, whose duties were to sally forth in the dead of night and despoil the surrounding country. Eight or ten used to be let out of the prison at midnight with full instructions as to the dwelling to be attacked and robbed. At dawn they would return, share the booty with the governor, and repose till evening. This daring game lasted several months, until the gang accidentally went to the wrong house. The owner of this house was an opulent Armenian, and he kept on his premises a strapping Kurdish peasant. This latter appears to have been a light sleeper, for, on the night in question, hearing a noise out side, he stepped forth with his gun and engaged in a brisk "tir aux voleurs." The marauders turned, ran, closely pursued by the Armenian household, quite at a loss to understand what induced them to fly along the road leading toward the prison. Arrived at the prison gate, the robbers knocked and were quietly admitted by the governor. The inquiry subsequenty made proved that this way of doing things had been going on for nearly a year.

Suitors for an American Girl.

It is hard enough for one to endure on one's own account for the manifold troubles that beset the millionaire, but it is harder to suffer on account of another, as it appears Miss Mackay is now suffering in Paris. Those who have read Eugene Sue's "Pride of the Duchess," will not fail to recollect what a sensation the young heiress, described in that romance, excited in society and what schemes and diplomatic moves were used by the people for the purpose of advancing their own designs or baffling those of their rivals. Something like this is said to be the case with Miss Mackay. The Count Monte Cristo, when he first drove out of the courtyard in the Champs Elysees, and before he had squandered any of his wealth would it is thought be poor beside Mr. Mackay, the American Millionaire. It is no wonder, then, that his daughter has so many suitors. Indeed, they come in battalions—all sorts and conditions of men. The latest report was that Prince Philippe de Bourbon was the favored one. The Prince is not an undesirable man for a Prince, and the family of the Bourbons is illustrious even for an American millionaire. But Mrs. Mackay would not hear of such a thing. We are told she is daily pestered to death by correspondents with matrimonial views, and has to give audience to business men ready to make an eligible match for the young lady. Still, she could not think of having a Prince for a son-in-law. She has a supreme contempt for titled suitors, and for fortune-hunting bachelors of all grades.

Longfellow's Independence.

The most urbane and sympathetic of men, never aggressive, vehement, nor self-asserting, he was yet indepenpent, and the individuality of his genius held its tranquil way as surely as the river Charles, whose placid beauty he so often sang, wound through the meadows calm and free. When Longfellow came to Cambridge, the impulse of transcendentalism in New England was deeply effecting scholarship and literature. It was represented by the most original of American thinkers and the typical American scholar, Emerson, and its elevating, purifying, and emancipating influences are memorable in our moral and intellectual history. Longfellow lived in the very heart of the movement. Its leaders were his cherished friends. He, too, was a scholar and a devoted student of German literature, who had drank deeply also of the romance of German life. Indeed, his first important works stimulated the taste for German studies and the enjoyment of its literature more than any other impulse in the country. But he remained without the charmed transcendental circle, serene, and friendly and attentive. There are those whose career was wholly moulded by the intellectual revival at that time. But Longfellow was untouched by it except as his sympathies were attracted by the vigor and purity of its influence. His tastes, his interests, his activities, his career, would have been the same had that great light never shone. If he had been the ductile, echoing, imitative nature that the more ardent disciples of the faith supposed him to be, he would have been absorbed and swept away by the flood. But he was as untouched by it as Charles Lamb by the wars of Napoleon. [George William Curtis in Harper's for June.

Lime Kiln Club.

"Dar" am sartin folks I want to keep away from," began the old man as the voices of the Glee Club died away on the last strains of "Sarah Jane's Baby." "I mean dat class of people who groan ober de wickedness of the world, an' have heart aches an' sorrows to peddle aroun' de kentry at de regular market rates. Dar am de old man Turner. He comes ober to see me now and den, but he can't sot still kase somebody stole his dog, or hit him wid a brick-bat, or beat him out of 75 cents. He fully believes dat de world am gwine to de smash at any rate of fifteen miles an hour, an' it would eanamost kill him to lose his old wallet an' find a man honest 'nuff to return it."

"De widder Pumsell comes ober to borry some butter for supper, an' she draps down on a cha'r an' heaves a sigh as big as a barn doah an' goes on to say dat dis am a cold an' unfeelin' world. 'Cording to her tell all men are dishonest, an' all women extravagant, an' all de chil'ren just ready to come down wid de measles. Tears run down her cheeks as she tells how she has to work an' plan while every body else has money to frow inter Lake Erie, an' she wipes her nose on her apron as she asserts dat dis wicked world can't stan' mo' dan fo' weeks longer.

"Deacon Striper draps in to eat popcorn wid me of a Friday ebenin' an' he hardly gits out from under his hat befo' he begins to tell what his first wife died of; how his second run away; how his third broke her leg by fallin' off a fence an' cost him $28.14 for doctor's bill, an befo' he gits frew you couldn't make him believe but what de hull world was dead agin him. He perdicts a late spring, a hot summer, poor crops, high prices, a bloody war, an' goes home feelin' dat he am stoppin' on airth only to accommodate somebody."

"I have no sorrow of my own I've been robbed, but dat was kase I left a winder up. I've been swindled but that was kase I thought fo' queens would beat fo' aces, I've bet on the worng hoss; I've bought lottery tickets which didn't draw; I've been sick unto death an' I've been shot in de back wid a hull brick yard, but I do not sorrow an' I do not ask for sympathy. De world am plenty good 'nuff for the class of people livin' in it. Honest women am sartin to be appreciated. De janitor will now open fo' winders an' we will proceed to bizness." RUBBING IT OUT.

The editor of the Courier, Mr. W. F. Cook, was seized a few mornings ago by a terrible pain in the left shoulder and neck. Having been favorably impressed for some time with the virtue of an article recommended for all sudden pains, and especially rheumatism, we rubbed the affected part, and in less time than we write it, relief came. That article is St. Jacobs Oil.

CERTAIN KNOWLEDGE.

We know whereof we affirm when we say that Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure has performed more wonderful cures than any medicine ever brought before the American public.

Henry Ward Beecher relates that once when riding on the circuit, he breakfasted at a house where johnny cakes were served. Observing a feather protruding from his cake he remarked: "Sister, your johnny cake sees to be feathering out." "Yes," responded the lady unabashed; "I told John no longer ago than yesterday that he must get a cover for the meal barrel or move the henroost."

It is understood Lincoln has approved the opinion of the judge advocate general for the mitigation of the sentence of lieutenant Flipper, the colored officer, who was convicted of mis-appropriating money belonging to the government, and it is supposed the President will restore him to his former position in the army. Whittaker, who was suspected of mutilating his own ears, fared worse than his convicted brother, and had to leave the West Point military school.

MILK is the chief article of diet of 150,000 children, under five years of age, in New York city. Last year 17,000 children died in that city from diseases contracted by the use of impure milk. Several metropolitan journals are battling against the enactment of a law that allows the sale of skimmed milk. The papers are all willing to fight such a mild beverage as milk, but when it comes to something stronger and more murderous they are mute. The dire consequences of a too free use of "skimmed milk" frightens them.

THE comet can now be seen between 10 and 11 o'clock, p. m., with the naked eye in the northern heavens, about half way between the horizon and the pole star and a little to the east. It will disappear about the 4th of June, and then reappear about the 15th of June. It passes the perihelion June 11th, at 10 minutes past midnight. The distance from the sun is 5,785,000 miles, and its velocity at that time will be 118 miles per second. Its velocity at present is very nearly thirty-nine miles per second. The anticipations formed of its brilliancy are doomed to disappointment. This is on account of its smallness. It has not enough material to make a display.

THE Sprague excise bill has passed both houses and now awaits Gov. Cornell's action. As it passed the assembly it was applicable to the whole state, but an amendment in the senate renders it applicable only in New York and Brooklyn. It abolishes the bed clause of the present law, forbids summary arrests for a violation of license, and requires that charges shall be heard and disposed of at once. This allows anybody to sell liquor who can get a license. It requires a warrant for every arrest, and prevents delay of punishment for violation of the law by the old system of giving bail and having trial postponed. It might have been better to have adhered to the original application of the bill to the whole state. An excise law might then have been enacted that would have been obeyed.

Hubbard's Newspaper and Bank Directory of the World.

The best and most complete work of the kind ever issued is H. P. Hubbard's "Newspaper and bank directory of the world," published in New Haven, Conn. Mr. Hubbard is one of the live advertising agents in this country, and in the preparation of these two great volumes, he has spent years of time and an immense amount of money. The amount of information these books contain is truly wonderful. There are 3600 pages crowded with such an array of statistics in regard to newspapers, banks, histories of states, territories, maps of the various countries and a thousand other items of political, geographical and statistical interest, to be found combined in no other work. It is gotten up in the highest style of the printer's art, and is handsomely bound.

Decoration Day.

By W. H. Longfellow.

Sleep, comrades, sleep and rest
  On this field of the grounded arms,
Where foes no more molest,
  Nor sentry's shot alarms!

Ye have slept on the ground before,
  And started to your feet
At the cannon's sudden roar,
  Or the drum's redoubling beat.

But in this camp of death
  No sound your slumber breaks.
Here is no fevered breath,
  No wound that bleeds and aches.

All is repose and peace,
  Untrampled lies the sod;
The shouts of battle cease,
  It is the truce of God!

Rest, comrades, rest and sleep!
  The thoughts of men should be
As sentinels to keep
  Your rest from danger free.

Your silent tents of green
  We deck with fragrant flowers;
Yours has the suffering been,
  The memory shall be ours

RESCUED FROM DEATH

William J. Coughlin of Somerville, Mass, says: In the fall of 1876 I was taken with bleeding of the lungs followed by a severe cough. I lost my appetite and flesh and was confined to my bed. In 1877 I was admitted to the hospital. The doctors said I had a hole in my lung as big as a half dollar. At one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I got a bottle, when to my surprise I began to feel better, and to-day I feel better than for three years past.

I write this hoping every one afflicted with diseased Lungs will take DR WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAM, and be convinced that CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED. I can positively say it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness.

CALLS IT RIVER ROBBERY.
[Syracuse Journal.]

Prizes are offered for the largest catches of bass in Oswego river. It is an outrage to thus encourage people to kill fish only in the hope of winning a prize. Prizes for protection would accord much better with the general desire to save fish. No true sportsment will ever contend for one of the rewards of river robbery.

TO THE VICTOR BELONG THE SPOILS.
[Buffalo Evening News.]

The "Half-breed" papers which are complaining because President Arthur is occasionally putting a "Stalwart" in office are rank hypocrites. If the "Half-breeds" had the power of removal there would not be a "Stalwart" in office to-morrow morning. The President is simply caring for his friends, and the man who fails to do that is not long blessed with those who support him.

A POOR CHEMIST.
[Cayuga Chief.]

At Rochester the other day, Judge Wheeler decided that cider was not a spirituous liquor. The Judge may be a good lawyer but we can certify that he is a poor chemist, or he would know that alcohol can be readily distilled from cider in very decided quantities. And for an upright, downright, far-reaching drunk, including a general bewilderment of all the intellectual faculties, a hard cider drunk takes the lead.

WARNING TO GHOULS.
[Scranton Republican.]

The fate of the Syracuse grave robber, who was found with a bullet in his brain beside the grave of a pauper whose body he was about to steal, should be a warning to the ghouls who desecrate the resting places of the dead. Of late the stealing of corpses has become too common, and such a grim lesson as this may have its effect in restraining those who incline to such a base business.

THE GOVERNORSHIP.
[Utica Herald, May 24th.]

The air is full of oaths by stalwarts that no candidate presented by Mr. Arthur can be forced down the throats of the republicans of this State; and on the other hand that Gov. Cornell, if he extorts a renomination, must be beaten at the polls. It has ceased to be a secret that the canvass for Mr. Cornell includes some noisy supporters who are willing that he shall receive the compliment of a renomination, but pronounce his re-election impossible. They admit that the odium of the Tammany alliance, the presumptuous dictation of many of his vetoes, his disregard of the opinions of the farmers and his offensive attitude toward the National Guard, and his greedy grasp for power in a railroad commission, render him one of the weakest candidates who could be brought before the people. In some respects, perhaps, the most eligible candidate is Congressman James W. Wadsworth, whose record as comptroller demonstrates his fitness for administrative duties, and his thorough devotion to any tasks imposed upon him.

⁂"Presumption begins in ignorance and ends in ruin." On the other hand, the production of Kidney-Wort began with wise cautions and scientific research and its use ends in restoring shattered constitutions and endowing men and women with health and happiness. "My tormented back," is the exclamation of more than one poor hardworking man and woman; do you know why it aches? It is because your kidneys are overtasked and need strengthening, and your system needs to be cleansed of bad humors. You need Kidney-Wort.

NEW LIME HOUSE.

Having erected a storage house for lime at Oswego Falls, I am now prepared to deliver the celebrated Jamesville lime and cement (fresh from the kilns) to any part of Oswego Falls or Fulton, also plastering hair, sand and mortar for sale. 44tf GEO J. EMENY.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

We have examined the Princess Louise Cream, now being prepared by Mr. F. Keenan of Fulton for the market and know exactly what the ingredients are that it is composed of and we do not hesitate to say to the public that it is entirely harmless and not in the least injurious to the complexion; it can be used with perfect safety. State Press Association.

The New York State Press Association will hold its twenty-sixth annual meeting at Jamestown on Wednesday and Thursday, June 7th and 8th. On the evening of the first day, Hon. A. W. Tourgee will deliver an address and Will M. Carleton will read a poem. The second day's programme of exercises will include a drive through the village and a visit to the various manufacturing industries of Jamestown and an excursion on the lake in the steamer Jamestown, which has been tendered. An "eventide lunch" will be tendered at Chautauqua by the assembly authorities and an address of welcome will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. J. H. Vincent. At 8 p. m. a reception will be tendered to the members of the Association and their ladies at the residence of ex-Governor R. E. Fenton. On the following day an excursion to the oil region is contemplated.

The Cheese Market.

[From the Utica Herald.]

UTICA, N. Y., May 29, 1882.—At no market of this season has the ruling price remained in abeyance so long and so uncertainly as it did to-day. Buyers themselves hardly seemed to know what they were going to pay. Factorymen still claim that the make is running one third short, and where, a year ago, there was quite an amount of grass cheese in market, the offerings to-day were all hay cheese, nor will there be any of grass make until two weeks from the present time.

Transactions for the day are as follows: 100 boxes at 10¼c.; 324 at 10½c.; 80 at 10⅜c.: 1,509 at 10⅜c.; 3,142 at 10¼c.; and 383 at p. t. Sales, 5,537 boxes; commissions, 1,312; total, 6,849 boxes. One year ago transactions amounted to 7,450 boxes the leading price being only 9½c. To-day the ruling was 10¼c.

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y., May 29, 1882.—Buyers complained to-day, that there was no margin for profit on their transactions of last week, and salesmen did not argue the point. The average quality of the stock is about the same as that of last week; whole milk cheese sold at 10¾ and 11c. and "every day" cheese went at 10½c. down. There was sharp competition on some of the finest goods which ran the price up. The range in prices is quite wide, but on the great bulk of the sales it is only one cent. Salesmen talk strong in support of their confidence that prices of cheese must be good for some time. In view of the light yield and the very high price of beef and other staple articles of food, their argument appears well taken. Altho' grass is still backward the late rains are giving it a rapid growth and it must soon tell on the yield of milk.

AT FULTON eighteen factories were represented with 737 boxes of cheese which were sold at 10½ cents. One year ago there were 1693 boxes sold at 8½ cts.; two years ago, 12¼ cts., and three years ago, 7½ cts.

NOTICE TO PATRONS.

The Rolling Stock milk dealers of Fulton and Oswego Falls held a meeting this day to consider the propriety of patrons, where they buy milk, in their alternating with their neighbors and then with dealers during the year. It was concluded that cheaper milk could be afforded if the patrons would continue throughout the year to buy of some one instead of different parties. The dealers in milk are at large expense to furnish a supply during the winter and sometimes costs more than is received, and we would like the continuance of winter customers through the summer, Therefore Resolved,

We respectfully and earnestly ask citizens who desire to take milk in the winter to continue during the summer as a condition precedent to dealing with us at all.

A Singular Accident.

[Oswego Falls Cor. Oswego Times.]

Last Wednesday as a son of Samuel Smith who lives a mile west of this village was fitting a piece of new ground, the drag became fast upon a root and the boy went to raise it. As he did so the team jumped, throwing one-half of the drag bottom up, while the other part remained fast. The team were pulled back upon the upturned teeth of the drag where they lay floundering, badly tangled in the harness. The boy in order to cut the harness was obliged to get between them, and had his legs and hips badly torn. He now lies in a critical condition. The team were terribly hurt, several of the drag teeth having penetrated their bowels. One of the horses has since died.

Is He in the Canal?

Wednesday evening the canal boat D. F. Adkins, of Oswego tied up for the night at the Upper Landing, opposite Hulett's grocery. It was loaded with lumber and bound for Troy. In the morning (Thursday) at 4:30 the driver, a man said to have been about forty-five, was called and ordered to feed and harness the team preparatory to the day's towing. At 5 o'clock the captain went to call the driver to breakfast and found the team unfed, the lantern being on the bow of the boat alongside of which was the feed he had prepared, standing in a pail. The general impression prevails that the man was drowned. The captain said he employed him at Port Jackson and his name was John Wright, that he was sober and contented and his sudden and mysterious disappearance was unaccountable to him. The canal opens into the river at the point where his body is supposed to be and consequently the authorities are unable to draw the water out. Parties will give the place a thorough search to-morrow.

Memorial Day in Fulton.

This day was more fully observed in Fulton yesterday than ever before. The genial sunshine and balmy breeze made the day all that could be required and the community seemed bent upon making the day commemorative of those who had fallen for their countay. Business places were generally closed and the principal manufacturing industries were quieted during the afternoon.

At 3 p. m. the procession proceeded to Mt. Adnah in the following order:

Fulton Amateur Band.
Veterans, Fifty Strong.
Veterans in Wagons.
Carriages containing Clergy, Officers etc.
Wagons with Flowers.
Fulton Fire Department.
Citizens in Carriages.

The procession was preceded to Mt. Adnah by a vast crowd and the lawns and hillsides were dotted with a mass of people. The procession marched to the speaker's stand and halted, where a stirring address was delivered by Dr. David Tully of Oswego. Mr. Tully is a pleasant and interesting orator and paid several glowing tributes to the heroes sleeping in Mt. Adnah.

Trying Their Muscles.

[Tuesday's Palladium.]

Seven members of the Fulton bicycle club left that village in their natty uniforms at 10 o'clock this morning for Oswego, taking the east side of the river. Eight miles out they were met by Mr. W. B. Phelps, jr., and Mr. Burt Chesebro of this city. The party crossed to the west side at Minetto and arrived here about noon, having made a leisurely and pleasant run. They stopped at the Doolittle house, cooled their heated brows and flushed faces at the Deep Rock spring, and then, chaperoned by Mr. Phelps and others, visited the popular points of the town. The party consists of the following, and their wheels are of the size mentioned: Mr. S. B. Mead, captain, 54 in.; Mr. J. F. Willard, 56; Mr. J. J. Wright, 52; Mr. Arvin Rice, 54; Mr. Wm. Pollard, 54; Mr. J. C. Prosser, 52; Mr. E. M. DeRusha, 53.

One of the notable features of the memorial services yesterday was the presence of about sixty members of Zion Sunday School, bearing flowers. As the procession entered Mt. Adnah the little ones formed a line on either side of the gateway, and paid homage to the sturdy veterans. The flowers were donated for decoration. The children were under the supervision of the Rector, E. Moyses.

Summons and complaint have been served on the president of the village in an action for $10,000 damages for the killing of John Sharp Dodgson, brought by his wife. June 27, 1880, Mr. Dodgson was returning from Oswego in the night, and drove into the hydraulic race, near the plaster mill. The village will contest the claim. Read the trustees proceedings of last evening in regard to the matter.

The banquet of the Commercial Club in Chicago Saturday evening was an important event. The New York Herald says over $140,000,000 of capital was represented. Among the guests were Gen. Phil Sheridan, and Postmaster-general Howe. One of the leading spirits of the club was Mr. Murry Nelson, whom the Herald says was one of the speech makers. Mr. Nelson, a former Fultonian and brother of W. S. Nelson, stands at the head of Chicago's commercial and financial interests.

Art embroidery has reached such proportions in this country that many attempts have been made to facilitate work by inventing something that will hold the ground work or material the embroidery is worked upon. Mr. S. E. Lincoln has overcome all obstacles and now holds the patent for an "Embroidery Hoop Holder" that bids fair to displace anything of the kind in the market. The work can be adjusted and shifted to any position and fully meets the requirements of all people who embroider. It can be seen at 55 Oneida Street.

ANDREW LALONDE.

FARMER'S WIVES.

It is an evident fact that farmers' wives are afflicted with many diseases which are the result of overwork. They are constantly on one ceaseless routine of toil from daylight at morning until late at night. No change, no relaxation, no rest! Farmers should note this fact, and be forewarned before it is too late. It is astonishing what an amount of labor the wives of farmers perform. Many of them get up and have breakfast ready before their husbands are out of bed. Then it is work, work, work, until near midnight, their minds during the time being constantly occupied with their duties, and with thinking of how the food is to be supplied, when the washing and ironing is to be done, when time can be spared to scrub the floor, how the children are to be clothed and kept tidy, and innumerable other things not necessary to mention, all of which combine to overwork and break down the strongest woman in the land. In case is it safe to be continuously thinking upon any one thing. And in cases where the brain has been weakened by too great a strain upon it, thereby producing insanity, epilepsy, vertigo, hysterics, female weakness, general debility, ann a multitude of other diseases, the remedy is rest and a few bottles of Dr. S. A. Richmond & Co's Samaritan Nervine. It acts directly upon the nervous centres and invigorates and strengthens the whole system. Many ladies have refrained from using Samaritan Nervine on account of an existing prejudice against advertised medicines. Let us ask a question: are you prdjudiced against sewing machines because you have seen them advertised, or can you doubt the ingenuity and skill required in their invention? Again, would you refuse to insure your house becase the company adqertised that it had paid millions of dollars in losses and yet had a capital of several millions left? Do such advertisements shake your confidence and create predjudice? Then why refuse to credit the testmony of those who have found Samaritan Nervine to be all that is claimed for it in overcoming those ailments peculiar to your sex? The following statement speaks for itself:

Fairfield, Lenawee Co. Mich.
April 25, 1881.

Dr. Richmond—Dear Sir: This is to certify that my wife had fits for thirty-five years. They would last her for about an hour and sometimes longer. I happened to hear of your medicine and sent for some of it. She had no more fits after she took the first dose. She is now permanently cured, and her health is a great deal better than it has been for twenty years or more. You are entirely at liberty to use her picture and this testimony in any manner which you please, and may sign my name to it. We owe you this much at least for woat you have done for her. Yours

SAMARITAN
NERVINE!

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Epileptic Fits, Spasms, Convulsions, St Vitus Dance, Vertigo, Insanity, Apoplexy, Paralysis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all Nervous Diseases. This infallible remedy will positively eradicate every species of Nervous Derangement, and drive them away from whence they came, never to return again. It utterly destroys the germs of disease by neutralizing the hereditary taint or poison in the system, and thoroughly eradicate the disease, and utterly destroys the cause.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Female Weakness, General Debility, Leucorrhoea or Whites, Painful Menstration, Ulceration of the Uterus, Internal Heat, Gravel, Inflamation of the Bladder, Irritability of the Bladder. For Wakefulness at Night, there is no better remedy. During the change of life no Female should be without it. It quiets the Nervous System and gives rest comfort and nature's sweet sleep.

SVMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Alcholism, Drunkenness and the habit of Opium Eating. These degrading habits are by far the worst evils that have ever befallen suffering humanity. Thousands die annually from these noxious drugs. The drunkard drinks liquor not because he likes it but for the pleasure of drinking and treating his friends, little thinking that he is on his road to ruin. Like the Opium Eater, he first uses the drug in small quantities as a harmless antidote. The soothing influence of the drug takes strong hold upon its victim, leading him on to his own destruction. The habits of Opium Eating and Liquor Drinking are precisely what eating is to alimentiveness, as over-eating first inflames the stomach, which redoubles its cravings until it paralyzes both the stomach and appetite. So every drink of liquor or dose of opium, instead of satisfying, only adds to its fierce fires, until it consumes the vital force and then itself. Like the gluttonous tape-worm, it cries "Give, give, give!" but never enough until its own rapacity devours itself. Samaritan Nervine gives instant relief in all such cases. It produces sleep, quiets the nerves, builds up the nervous system, and restores body and mind to a healthy condition.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Nervous Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Asthma, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Syphilis, diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases of the urinary organs. Nervous debility, caused by the indiscretions of youth, permanently cured by the use of this valuable remedy. To you, young middle-aged and old men, who are covering your sufferings as with a mantle by silence, look up, you can be saved by timely efforts, and make ornaments to society, and jewels in the crown of your Maker, if you will. Do not keep this a secret longer, until it saps your vitals, and destroys both body and soul. If you are thus afflicted, take DR. RICHMOND'S Samaritan Nervine. It will restore your shattered nerves, arrest premature decay, impart tone and energy to the whole system.

SAMARITAN NERVINE.

Is for sale by druggists everywhere, or may be had direct from us. Those who wish to obtain further evidence of the curative properties of Samaritan Nervine will please enclose a 3 cent postage stamp for a copy of our Illustrated Journal of Health, giving hundreds of testimonials of cure from persons who have used the medicine, and also their pictures photographed after their restoration to perfect health. It is [illegible] Dr. Kennedy [illegible] following [illegible] see in one minute why [illegible] was thankful;

Troy, N. Y. April, 6, 188[illegible].

Dr D. Kennedy Rondout N. Y.

DEAR SIR:—Until within a recent date I had for several years suffered greatly from gravel, called by the doctors the brick-dust sediment. For about a year past this sediment has not passed off in the usual quantity, but has accumulated, causing me untold pain. Having heard of "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" I tried it in my case, and after using about one and one-half bottles, I voided a stone from the bladder, of an oval shape, 7-16 of an inch long, and rough on its surface. I send yo the largest piece that you may see of what it is composed. since then I have felt no pain. I now consider myself cured, and cannot express my thankfullness and gratitude for so signal a deliverance from a terrible a disease. You have my consent to use this letter, should you wish to do so, for the benefit of other sufferers.

Yours Truly,
JAMES ANDREWS.
No 10 Marshal St, Ida Hill.

When we consider that the medicine which did this service for Mr. Andrews cost only one dollar a bottle, it would seem that persons in like fashion can afford the expense of testing its virtues. Get it of your druggist, or address Dr. David Kennedy Rondout, N. Y. "Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" for sale by all druggists.

VAN VALKENBURG'S
RESTAURANT.

:o:

A Model Restaurant and Billiard Room Charley have you been to look at Van's place, on the corner of First and Oneida Streets since he has remodeled and enlarged it? His Restaurant ! Yes, was the reply, and it certainly is one of the best appointed and most attractive places ever opened in our village. Such is the fact. This ever popular place has been thoroughly Repainted and Remodeled so that it is now more pleasant and attractive than ever before. The partitions have been removed, the Rooms made Larger so that any that may wish to go to a First-Class Restaurant can do so now and can go into a private-entrance to lunch alone, separate and alone. He has also a Billiard & Pool Room attached, entirely separate from Bar or Lunch Room. The Tables are of Babcock's best make, handsomely gotten up and have the Celebrated Magic Double Action Cushion which are so popular with all lovers of Billiard and Pool. All that money can do to make Van's place more popular than ever has been done. Only the best of everything is kept. Call and look at his bill of fare and know for yourselves the Lunch Van gets up and you will be surprised to learn that he keeps on hand everything in the shape of Lunch that could be got at Delmonicos. He is prepared to get up Lunch for Picnicing and Fishing Parties on the shortest notice in Elegant Style and at very reasonable rates. Now I will give you a small list of his lunches that he gets up: Oysters, in every style; Clam Chowder, Sardines, Lobsters, Crabs, Salmon, Mackerel, Anchovey Chicken, Boiled Ham, Pig Feet Stew, Pork and Beans, Sandwiches of all kinds, Pies and Cheese, Tea and Coffee, and other things and all very cheap. Call and get some of his lunches and you will be more than pleased at the price, so much so that you will say to yourself well I did not know before that people could get such dishes for so small a figure and up here in the country. I have found the place to get my lunch from now out. The prices are what catches me.

And who are they who but forget?
You, who my coming could surmise
Ere any hint of me as yet
Warned other ears and other eyes,
See the path blurred without regret.

But when I trace its windings sweet
With saddened steps at every spot
That feels the memory in my feet,
Each grass blade turns forget-me-not,
Where murmuring bees your name repeat.
[James Russell Lowell in the May Century.

"I believe St. Jacobs Oil to be the very best remedy known to mankind," says Mr. Roberts, business manager of this paper. [Milwaukee (Wis.) Sentinel.

Genius, Capital, Money, Foolishness.

Tennyson can take a worthless sheet of paper and by writing a poem on it make it worth $5000. That's genius. Vanderbilt can write a few words on a sheet and make it worth $5,000,000. That's capital. And the United States can take an ounce and a quarter of gold and stamp upon it an "eagle bird" and "twenty dollars." That's money. The mechanic can take the material worth $5 and make it into a watch worth a hundred. That's skill. The merchant can take an article worth 25 cents and sell it to you for a dollar. That's business. A lady can purchase a very comfortable bonnet for $10, but prefers to pay $100 for one. That's foolishness. The ditch digger works ten hours a day and shovels out three or four tons of earth for $1. That's labor.

SICK-HEADACHE.

MRS. J. C. HENDERSON, of Cleveland, Ohio, writes: "The use of two of Pierces Pleasand Purgative Pellets' a day, for a few weeks, has entirely cured me of sick headache, from which I formerly suffered terribly, as often, on an average, as once in ten days." Of all druggists.

How to Secure Good Husbands.

Among the Zuni Indians, who have recently come to the front by coming east for ocean water, there is said to be a social custom that might be worth adopting in more civilized circles. In Zuni-land the houses belong to the women instead of the men, so a man can marry without first being obliged to buy or hire a house; marrying men are therefore abundant among the Zunis. On the other hand, a man who marries can occupy his wife's house only during good behavior, the wife having always the right to put an unsatisfactory man out of doors. This is a privilege that would raise many an American wife from abject slavery to the rank of equal partner in the conjugal firm. But, whether for husband or wife, the Zuni plan is an advantageous one; it encourages early marriages, assures every woman a home, so that she need not marry merely to get one, and it keeps husbands in order, for almost any man will behave himself if by so doing he can avoid the onerous duty of paying house rent.

A Multiplicity of Afflictions.

On Friday morning last, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Farnum, of this village, received a telegram from New York conveying the sad intelligence that Mr. Farnam's brother Joel, of that city, lay at the point of death. They took the first train for New York and before they had been gone an hour, another telegram was received by the family that Mrs. Farnum's sister, Mrs. Mary LeBart, of Little Falls, could survive buta few hours at the fartherest. A dispatch was sent back which reached Mrs. F. at Little Falls where she stopped, and Mr. Farnum went on to New York. Mrs. Farnum's sister was buried on Saturday afternoon, and Mr. F's brother on the day following. Within an hour after the second telegram had been received by the family in Oneida, a letter arrived from Mrs. Selkregg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Farnum, who resides in North East, Pa., which stated that her husband's mother, a member of her family, was very ill and could in all probability live but a few hours, her sickness being heart disease. By JOHN B. O'REILLY.

Those who love truly never die,
Though year by year the sad memorial wreath,
A ring of flowers, types of life and death,
Are laid upon their graves.

For death the pure life saves,
And life all pure is love, and love can reach
From heaven to earth and nobler lessons teach,
Than those by mortals read.

Well blessed is he who has a dear one dead;
A friend he has whose face will never change,
A dear communion that will not grow changed,
The anchor of a love is death.

The blessed sweetness of a loving breath
Will reach our cheek all fresh through weary years!
For her who died long since, ah! waste not tears,
She's thine unto the end.

Thank God for one dead friend,
With face still radiant with the light of truth,
Whose love comes ladened with the scent of youth,
Through twenty years of death.

FROM THE GREAT METROPOLIS.

New York is to-day one of the world's three wonderful cities. It is a home for twenty nationalities. The architecture lacks uniformity as to classification, but as to monotony, it has no such demerit. The two extremes of the island show to the traveler the difference between the city, proper, as it was fifty years ago and what it is to-day. The thoroughfares that were known to all men visiting New York thirty or forty years ago are deserted and dead, comparatively speaking. For instance, the celebrated Boulevarde, and avenue known as the "Fifth," is no more a residence of millionaires below Twenty-third street. The same residences are to be seen, however, that were built years ago, but the aristocrats have moved "up town." Boarding-houses, clubs, business houses and fashionable eating saloons are in their stead. Far up the magnificent avenue, as many as four miles from Washington Square, stretches the piles of gorgeous dwellings and massive mansions. Central Park, that once charming resort, but of late sadly neglected, stretches along on the west side of Fifth Avenue to One Hundred and Tenth street, affording, in the hot months, a refuge for the hot and wearied sight-seer. Just now the park commissioners are squabbling among themselves in regard to the land-scape, outlines and artistic profiles of the work which ought to have been perfected ten years ago. The rich and the poor meet frequently, alas! too often, in this collosal city. The parks are infested with

TRAMPS, BEGGARS AND POLICEMEN.

Not that the officers of the law are to be classed with the two aforesaid, but the three are always at hand when you do not desire their company. God help the poor, and in this city they are poor. Poverty has no caste here. I think I have never witnessed the depths of poverty before coming here. Being somewhat of a philanthropist, I have endeavored to ascertain to what nationality the majority of beggars spring from, but have not been able to learn with any degree of certainty. One thing is positive, however, and it is that strong drink fathers the great majority. During the warm weather these vagrants find the open air, at night, no foe, and the small parks in and about the city are filled with them. Our municipal authorities are at their wits end, almost, trying to solve the problem of "what to do with the tramps." 'Tis true, the tramp is hated and despised, but so was the Saviour of the world; and I, for one, have an idea that something is wrong with the condition of things, and to blame for the condition of affairs which gives birth to such monstrosities. People are supposed to take an interest in tramps, because they take no interest in themselves. The wealthy denizens, of course, are able to look after number one, so that one does not have any surplus feeling to expend upon their welfare. In fact the rich are, to me, objects of commiseration. When one comes to view the possessions of great wealth from the standpoint of an outsider, it possesses few alluements. This subject is, however, open to much opinion of a various character, therefore I will only add that, although money is what we are all after, yet we can have too much money.

Quite often I meet an old and familiar face on the streets of New York. The writer had a very pleasant chat with Mr. and Mrs. George M. Case one morning in East Fourteenth street. I don't see as either have grown old a day, and they have certainly forgotten none of their old-time pleasant and courteous manner, so agreeable to meet.

M. R. JEFFERDS,

an old Fultonian, ran across me in the Fifth Avenue hotel one evening last week. He is now engaged in railroading in Texas, so he informed me. "Mose" looks as fresh and handsome as he did nine years ago. Age doth not wither, [illegible] his infinite variety.

I am located in business somewhat out of the [illegible] line of Fultonians, being [illegible] up on Fifth Avenue, but I [illegible]

[illegible] household [illegible] be seen hanging from attic and [illegible] windows, [illegible] linen, and other housekeeping effects, which are supposed to indicate the return of house cleaning time. People clean house here about the same as usual. Ash barrels are always turned bottom up, the wrong way of the [illegible], you inwardly say cuss words, and spit out what [illegible] have accumulated in behind your back teeth. Another sign of spring is the army of "sidewalk brokers." These men, and women also, peddle and hawk an infinite variety of wares—useful, foolish, silly, absurd, and the Lord only can tell what not. They are a clever, good natured set of people, and are generally able to crack a joke with any [illegible] facetiously [illegible] and sell them, but if they [illegible] sunbeams kiss the atmosphere and warm the strata of air which is about four or five feet from the earth, then, O! then! look out for the "curb stone vender," for he will be out in full array.

In looking through the city directory I run across a familiar name now and then. I saw the name of Lawrence Johnson, M. D., a while ago. 'Tis he who wrote a flat, contemptible and profane article, endeavoring to cast ridicule upon a little called "Toomka," which was written for, and published in, THE FULTON TIMES years ago, and extensively copied throughout the United States. I have ever felt as if I would enjoy bringing this party to his prayers, as the spirit which prompted his attack upon my story was of a nature parallel to that of any insect made only to be exterminated. Not that any person attached the least importance to his peculiarly paltry and petty scrap of plagiarized billingsgate, but I, who knew the inner consciousness of the motive which led him to adopt a cowardly method of reaching me by an anonymous letter to a public journal, appreciated the deep damnation of it, and leads me ten years after to bring it up in the same columns, as an interesting bit of reading to my friends. Your readers cannot say I was precipitate in my rejoinder, at all events. One thing was plain, Mr. Johnson did not possess astuteness enough to penetrate the veil of satire thrown about the romance. This was a great joy to me, and also a big thing to my intimate friends, who were all in the plot, and to this day he is ridiculed as having sprawled into a pit of his own digging. I advise him to study Martin Chuzzlewit. Let him turn to the scene where Jonas, in his rage at Tom Tinck, prevents the key to the future being given him by that honest man. If he had but waited for Tom's explanation, "why he gave the letter to him, (Jonas,)" the name of Mr. Nadget must have been brought in, as the true cause, and thus Jonas would have saved his own life.

BUSINESS

is progressing and developing into vast proportions. I refer to the piano and organ trade, as the other branches of trade I am not so well acquainted with. New York is the real center for all manufacturing in [illegible] instruments, and buyers [illegible] to take pianos [illegible]. The curious figures, [illegible] the manufacture of [illegible] shows beyond dispute that the number of pianos made in this country are not sufficient to place an instrument in the house of every family in New York alone. Among forty-two millions of inhabitants, this leaves room for several millions of pianos to be made and sold. People often say, "Why! almost everybody has a piano!" But the saying, although very common, is not in the slightest sense true, as can be seen from my statement above. I will also add that those having a Weber piano may rest assured they have the most celebrated and by all odds the best piano now before the public. The great Weber factory turns out a magnificent new piano

EVERY WORKING HOUR,

ten each day, and a grand total of sixty per week. But before I get into a business form of advertising,—a thing which comes very natural to me, as I had entire charge of the "intellectual" advertising (!) in the western houses with which I was associated,—I will bring this long letter to a culmination.

In my next I shall have some interesting gossip about New York customs, curious sights, [illegible].

Yours truly,
F. R. KENYON JONES,
108 Fifth Ave.

NEW YORK, June 1, 1882.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.:—Dear Sir—For many months I was a great sufferer. Physicians could afford me no relief. In my despair I commenced the use of your "Favorite Prescription." It speedily effected my entire and permanent cure. Yours thankfully,
Mrs. Paul R. Baxter, Iowa City, Ia.

Fashion Notes.

The latest London rage is for gray.

Paniers are worn only for full dress.

Black Chantilly lace is again in favor.

Button boots are going out of fashion.

Any neat utility costume will do for a traveling suit.

Flannel costumes, principally, are worn on the streets.

Bangled jet is the novelty for trimming black dresses.

Very small jet bonnets are worn this season by young ladies.

Children's shoes are of kid, buttoned high, and without heels.

There is a rage in New York for small jet beaded Fanchon bonnets.

Ulsters are much worn for traveling costumes, but are not [illegible].

Origin of Memorial Day.

Homage to fallen heroes began with the history of the human race. The chaplet of immortelles was early wreathed by the ancient Athenians and Grecians around the memory of their fallen heroes, which kept alive the fire of patriotism and love of country in the breasts of those who followed after them. The custom of these brave races, whose deeds illumine the pages of history with a lustre which time nor age cannot dim, has descended upon the American people in this land of liberty, and to-day the memory of the honored dead of this country will be perpetuated amid the [illegible] flowers that surround the [illegible] resting places. It is meet that the observance of this memorial day should be conducted by the surviving comrades of the fallen heroes, for to them belongs the honor of first instituting the beautiful custom whereby the memory of our dead soldiers will not be forgotten by the American people. Early in the year 1866 a number of union soldiers met at the State capitol in Springfield, Ill., and formed a nucleus of what has since become the Grand Army of the Republic. Its objects as set forth in a circular sent to all the prominent public men was "To keep alive the fraternal relations existing among old soldiers, and patriotism and devotion to our country."

Immediately following the organization of the Grand Army of the Republic came the desire to perpetuate the memory of their dead comrades, and for that purpose each post set apart a day in the early springtime when they would visit the graves of their dead comrades and decorate them with flowers in a becoming manner. This custom was followed during the years 1866-'67 and at the second national convention of the Grand Army of the Republic, January 15, 16 and 17, 1868, a resolution was adopted setting the 30th of May as a day to be kept sacred to the memory of their fallen comrades, and congress was asked to make that day a legal day so that all classes of American citizens could unite in honoring the graves of our fallen soldiers. Congress then in session immediately enacted the necessary legislation and the following 30th day of May was generally observed throughout the northern states. From that time forward with each succeeding year Decoration Day has continued to grow in popular esteem until it has come to be looked upon as a day of little less interest than the greatest of American days, the day of independence.

How "Injuns" Farm.

A gentleman just up from Standing Rock Agency said the Indians were engaged in planting. In answer to an inquiry as to how the reds were progressing in the peaceful ways of grangering, he smiled and said their manner was odd. Every year they seem to know less about how to farm. This is attributable to the fact that they are learning the ways of the whites too rapidly. They begin to understand that as soon as they can grow crops their rations will be cut off, and hence their growing ignorance of agriculture. If they are given a bushel of beans to plant, they will eat nine-tenths of the amount and plant one-tenth, and the one-tenth will be dumped in three or four holes in the ground. Last Last spring they were furnished with five bushels of onion seed. They couldn't eat them, and consequently planted the whole five bushels in a piece of ground fifty by one hundred feet. They were too lazy to prepare a larger patch; besides it would have been in opposition to their policy of maintaining the ration system. When the onions came up it was a curious sight to see the young shoots crowd each other. The whole dry naked surface of the ground was raised up on top of the sprouting plants. It is our informant's opinion that the present generation of Injuns will not make successful grangers.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC ENDORSEMENT.

GORHAM, N. H., July 14, 1879.

Gents—Whoever you are, I don't know; but I thank the Lord and feel grateful to you to know that in this world of adulterated medicines there is one compound that proves and does all it advertises to do, and more. Four years ago I had a slight shock of palsy, which unnerved me to such an extent that the least excitement would make me shake like the ague. Last May I was induced to try Hop Bitters. I used one bottle, but did not see any change; another did so change my nerves that they are now as steady as they ever were. It used to take both hands to write, but now my good right hand writes this. Now, if you continue to manufacture as honest and good an article as you do, you will accumulate an honest fortune, and confer the greatest blessing on your fellowmen that was ever conferred on mankind.

THE FULTON TIMES.

Wednesday, June 7th, 1882.

THE Utica Herald says "We are still looking thro' the state press for a good word for the late legislature.

CROP reports from the western states were never more flattering. The wheat crop of Michigan alone will exceed that of [illegible] by 1,000,000 bushels.

THE Assembly on Wednesday adopted by a vote of 77 to 35, the majority report of the Judiciary Committee exonorating Judge Westbrook from the charges brought against him.

THE following have become laws: Prohibiting the coloring of oleomargarine, butterine and adulterated cheese; regulating the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine or any other form or imitation of butter and lard, or any form or imitation of cheese.

JOHN F. GRAY, M. D. LLD., died at the Fifth Avenue Hotel in New York yesterday.

He was the first American physician that abandoned Allopathy and embraced the system of Hahneman known as Homoeopathy. He had practiced for over fifty years. His patrons were among the most intelligent and wealthy of that city.

THE national liquor dealers convention at Chicago, has practically confessed the force of prohibition, and will go in for an organized fight against prohibition. This programme, if carried out, will utterly destroy the argument against dragging temperance into politics, and will force upon the average voter an expression for one side or the other of the temperance question.

PROCEEDINGS in the Malley trial have been halted and will remain so until the 18th inst. A juror 72 years of age is in feeble health. Should he die the case would be retried. The Rome Sentinel asks: Has not this Cramer family endured about enough? After the Malleys are acquitted would it be strange if counsel for the defense should learn that Jennie Cramer left a brother?

BISHOP GILMOUR of Cleveland wrote a letter that was read Sunday in all of the Catholic chrches of his diocese excommunicating any lady who hereafter attends meetings of the ladies' land league or becomes a member. The bishop denounces that branch as calculated to make brawling politicians of the women, and holds that membership therein is incompatible with womanly modesty.

CHANCES for a stay of proceedings in the Guiteau case are hopeless. The final decision of the court in banc was rendered Monday, which is adverse to the prisoner. The last card has been played and Guiteau will hang June 30, three weeks from Friday. Following is the decision of the judges: "The judges who listened to the argument in the case have come to the conclusion that they have exhausted their powers upon it. They have heard it patiently, fully, fairly, and a re-argument would bring them to no other conclusion than that which they have already arrived at, and they decline to reopen the case for argument."

The Canal Amendment.

The friends of the constitutional amendment for exempting the canals from State tolls, which is to be submitted to a vote of the people this fall, must be on the alert. Powerful interests are opposed to the adoption of this measure. If ratified at the ballot boxes, it will greatly aid New York in the sharp competition with the Mississippi and St. Lawrence routes for a fair share of the trade of the western states. It will also help the Erie and Oswego canals in their struggle with the railroads for the traffic between the lakes and the Atlantic. It is prudent for the supporters of the amendment to assume that these interests will oppose its adoption. Indeed, it is apparent to those who keep a vigilant eye upon the matter that strong influences are already at work to defeat it.

The danger which the advocates of the amendment have, perhaps, most to fear springs from another source. The exemption of the canals from tolls makes their support by general taxation a necessity, and this is provided for in the amendment. A strong appeal on this ground against the measure will be addressed to those portions of the state which lie remote from the canals, and from the lakes and rivers immediately connected with them. It will be remembered that many members of the legislature from these localities voted against submitting the amendment to the people.

This is not in any sense a party question. The amendment is supported and opposed by prominent men in all parties. It cannot depend for success upon any existing political organization. It must rely upon its merits and the efforts of its friends to carry it through. As a whole, western and central New York are in favor of it. The cities of New York and Brooklyn are vitally interested in having the pending measures prevail. If they want it adopted they must be wide awake and take steps to that end.

 "Magnificent promises sometimes end in paltry performances." A magnificent exception to this is found in Kidney-Wort which invariably performs even more cures than it promises. Here is a single instance: "Mother has recovered," wrote an Illinois girl to her eastern relatives. "She took bitters for a long time, but without any good, so when she heard of the virtues of Kidney-Wort she got a box, and it has completely cured her liver complaint."

The coroner's jury in Syracuse inquiring into the death of Dr. Kendall, who was found dead in the county house cemetry, have adjourned their labors until Saturday. In the brain, a half inch from where the large pistol ball was imbedded, has been found a wad of paper, which could not have come from either of the weapons found on his person. This, with other circumstances, is believed to wholly overthrow the theory of suicide.

Col. Moses Summers, a post warden in New York city, a former resident in Syracuse and known by many in this section, suffered a terrible accident while attending to his duties Saturday morning. While walking across a beam of a bark he fell a distance of twenty feet into the hold, striking upon his back and completely paralyzing him. Col. Summers was once part owner of the Syracuse Stadard. But little hopes are entertained of his recovery.

The fore part of last week Dr. Carroll was casting the fly in the river near the saw mill when it was taken by a large pickerel which he succeeded in towing to the shore but in the effort to land him he parted the leader and made off with the flies. Tuesday mornihg Will Hart speared a pickerel near the dam, in the gills of which the Dr's flies were found complete and uninjured, where they had been retained for a week. The fish weighed seven and a half pounds.

I should be glad to have our affairs arbitrated. I am willing to pick a man and Warren pick a man and they select a third to examine the above accounts and our affairs and I will pay the entire expense of so doing.

OSWEGO COUNTY, ss:

Carlon Church being duly sworn, deposes and says that the foregoing statement of account between himself and his brother, Warren Church, is just and true, and in all respects correct, according to his best knowledge and belief up to Jan 1, 1880, since which time he has taken the boat Carrie Herrick and horses, the value of which will apply on said indebtedness. CARLON CHURCH.

LETTER OF CARLON CHURCH TO WARREN CHURCH.

FULTON, Dec., 1876.

WARREN CHURCH, New York City:

I was very much pleased with the account Wilson brought from New York in regard to your drinking and gambling. He says you are not doing either and have five or six hundred dollars in the bank. I had thought that you must have gambled and drank up what you had made as you did not send me any. I do not feel as bad in not getting the money as I should if you had fooled it away. I am glad you are sending your children to school. Libbie says that one of them is smart. I should not feel that the money I have let you have has been lost if I should not receive it back if I knew that your children would grow up and not disgrace the name. That is what I have let you have so much money for is on account of your children. I hope you will keep them in school and learn them to be honest and to do as they agree, let what will come. That is the way I made my money and I never knew a man to prosper any other way. You must be true to your friends and do as you agree. By so doing you will build up friends for yourself and also for your children. If not you and your family will be despised and shunned by all good people. Children always have to stand the disgrace of their parents. What I want is a mortgage on the boat so I can get what the boat makes, as you agreed I should have every dollar that she made. The best guarantee you can have for what I will do for you in the future is what I have done for you in the past.

CARLON CHURCH.

[The above appeared in last week's Patriot.]

Warren Church to Carlon Church.

Editor FULTON TIMES:

I saw in last week's issue of the Fulton Patriot a statement of what purported to be an account as between Warren Church and Carlon Church, and to give it an appearance of fairness and honesty, it was bolstered up by the affidavit of Carlon Church. Now I pronounce the whole statement as false and untrue, and call the attention of a fair-minded people to the following, and ask them to judge who stands in the wrong as to honesty, justice and right:

From 1859 until 1864 I faithfully served the said Carlon Church, and at a fair compensation it amounts to - - -	$1,565 00
1865. To 1-7 interest in a deceased brother's estate, - -	100 00
1876. To 54 days labor with team, at $3 per day, - -	162 00
1876. Money paid on mortgage, for which I hold a release in full, -	1,319 00
1880. To cash as per vouchers, -	850 00
1881. To [illegible] days labor with son and team, at $[illegible] per day, -	158 00
	$4,152 00
[illegible] By 5 years board, washing and cash, -	[illegible]
Balance due Warren,	[illegible]

"CHATTEL MORTGAGE.

"WARREN CHURCH }
TO CARLON CHURCH. }

"Mortgage dated April 10, 1876. Filed in town clerk's office April 26, 1876. Mortgage covers canal boat "Carrie Merrick," and given to secure the payment of the sum of $1,319 00, due one year from date.

"For value received, I hereby release all claims against Warren Church on account of the above described chattel mortgage, and I hereby declare the said mortgage satisfied and cancelled, and also release unto said Warren Church all claims or demands against him, of whatsoever kind, hereby acknowledging myself fully paid and satisfied by him of every and all claims against him: C. CHURCH.

"Dated October 6, 1876."

We have called attention to release of mortgage to me in 1876 by Carlon Church.

Oswego County—ss.:

Warren Church, of said county, being duly sworn, deposes and says that the above account is true and correct according to his own knowledge.

WARREN CHURCH.

Sworn to before me this 6th day of June, 1882.
JOHN E. PARKER,
Justice of the Peace.

Now, as to the letter that Carlon Church presents to the public, and by which he seeks to place himself before the public as a generous, whole-souled man, (and I say here the letter was dated January 7th, 1880, and not December, 1876, as printed in the Patriot, and that abbreviated,) and where he would hold me up to public censure as a gambler and drunkard in a spasm of anxiety, and entertain such a solicitous feeling for the welfare of my children in the next, and finally, as an exhibition of his well-known generosity, he mildly requests a mortgage on my boat that he might have every cent it makes. Now, in 1874, I, and Carlon Church bought the boat Carrie Herrick, for a stipulated price. I have run the said boat and have had it in my possession since that time, and have, during this time, paid Carlon Church every cent earned by the said boat, except what was actually necessary to support myself and family in an economical way. Trusting in the promises made by this man, Carlon Church, to our dead father, and relying upon him as most men would who were dealing with a supposed brother, I was not as careful to keep my receipts and papers as it seems Carlon was. He says he would be glad to have our matter arbitrated by outside parties. This I was willing to do last fall, as can be proven by Simeon Church, and he would not consent, and now it will be arbitrated by a competent court of justice, and I can assure Carlon Church that at the proper time all receipts, and other papers necessary to substantiate my just claims and rights, will be produced, and then probably there will be introduced some things that will tend to throw a very great light as to the reputation of some-one who has borne (as they suppose) heretofore a good character for truth and veracity. Not wishing to show an undue anxiety about this matter I patiently await the final settlement of our affair.

Respectfully,
WARREN CHURCH.

NOTICE TO PATRONS.

The Rolling Stock milk dealers of Fulton and Oswego Falls held a meeting this day to consider the propriety of patrons, where they buy milk, in their alternating with their neighbors and then with dealers during the year. It was concluded that cheaper milk could be afforded if the patrons would continue throughout the year to buy of some one instead of different parties. The dealers in milk are at large expense to furnish a supply during the winter and sometimes costs more than is received, and we would like the continuance of winter customers through the summer, Therefore Resolved,

We respectfully and earnestly ask citizens who desire to take milk in the winter to continue during the summer as a condition precedent to dealing with us at all.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF FULTON.

"Patience" Friday evening.

It is said that a man is known by the sidewalk he keeps.

Edgar Briggs and wife of Detroit, Mich., are visiting friends in Fulton.

Mrs. John Maynard leaves to-morrow for a few weeks visit with friends in Canada.

A little daughter has arrived in the household of Mr. Henry Wilcox at South Granby.

WANTED—A competent girl, to cook, wash and iron. Apply to Mrs. D. Ramsden, First street.

On the first page of to-day's issue will be found a letter from a former Fultonian, Fr. Kenyon Jones.

All members of the G A R are requested to be present at the Armory next Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock. Fall in.

J. J. Bonney left Monday for Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, where he will employ himself during the summer. His family will join him in a few days.

Prof. W. N. Ferris and family of Pittsfield, Ill., are in Fulton for a short time, guests of Mr. E. C. Whitaker, and J. C. Gillespie, Mrs. Ferris' father.

☞Will the lady who took the piece of lace from the Boston Bazaar on Monday evening, June 5th, please return the same at once and save exposure.

The Patriot says it is rumored that THE TIMES is threatened with a libel suit, growing out of its statement of the Morse-Smith affair. It is an error.

Levi Montague has returned to Fulton. Levi says he is just from China, and reports C. P. Tucker & Son's tea crop as exceeding any previous season in quantity.

Mr. M. D. French and the family of Barney Ferguson wish THE TIMES to thank their friends for the many kind and appreciable favors tendered them during their recent sad affliction.

W. C. Wheeler, editor of THE TIMES, accompanied by his wife, left Monday to attend the meeting of the New York State Press Association, which convenes in Jamestown to-day.

Mr. G. A. Burtch is a taxidermist of pronounced ability. He exhibited to THE TIMES a Wax-billed Coot that was mounted with rare skill. Mr. Burtch resides at No. 6 Seneca street, and is prepared to do work for the public.

Miss Dora Stewart of Albany, N. Y., was united in marriage, at the residence of her brother, Mr. M. A. Stewart of this village, this afternoon at 2 o'clock by Rev. Father Griffa of Oswego, to Mr. T. D. McNight of New York city.

Mrs. Mary E. Highriter, who has been in Boston attending the New England Conservatory of Music for the past year, returned to Fulton Saturday. It is rumored that she will soon return to Boston to make that city her home.

J. N. Peck, for a long time in the grocery of D. A. Ray & Co., and latterly in the employ of D. C. Skaden, has made a change. Mr. Peck is now in the employ of Robinson & Langdon, and would be pleased to see his friends at his new place.

This section was visited Saturday night by a very heavy rain, accompanied by sharp lightning and incessant and deafening thunder. The water in the river rose four inches before daylight Sunday morning, something unprecedented for the Oswego.

Friday afternoon Messrs. F. J. VanValkenburg and L. T. Richardson went down in the vicinity of VanBuren's Island bass fishing. Mr. Richardson was busied caring for the catches, as in the short space of two hours Van gathered in thirty-four fine specimens. Van is an adept casting a fly.

The Cayuga Chief, published at Weedsport, N. Y., celebrated its fifth anniversary with the last publication. The Chief is able, fearless and independent, and winds up a few remarks regarding its future policy with the following:

We do not belong to our patrons
Our paper is wholly our own,
Whoever may like it, may take it;
Who don't can just let it alone!

The approach to the lower bridge, between the Genesee mills and store house is being vigorously pushed. One of the trusses underneath has been removed and the earth excavated to build an abutment. The work is in charge of James N. Clark, and his management of it is gratifying as he has obviated a suspension of travel across the lower bridge while the preliminary work is being done. The bridge will be of iron. W. S. Nelson & Co. pay two hundred dollars towards its construction.

An Excellent Rendition.

If an audience assembled to witness delineation of characters by neighbors, whose ability in any direction they think they are able to fathom, are not arch-critics, they are nothing. The leading characters in "Esmeralda" produced in Nichols Hall Friday evening by the Thespian Society of Zion church, were thoroughly and admirably sustained, and the large audience present highly entertained. The music by Andlefinger's orchestra was inspiring and first-class. The costumes from New York were complete, and the whole entertainment creditably managed. Hazel Conger, as 'Dora Desmond," gave evidence of special dramatic ability, as also of previous experience upon the stage. Miss Gertrude Stephens, as "Esmeralda;" Dora Smiddy, in Lydia Ann, and Phœbe Moyses, as "Kate Desmond," were faultless in their several roles. Messrs. Smiddy, John and H. Bacchus were thorough. The difficult and pleasing character of "Elbert Rogers," the poor old man with a termagant wife, was well depicted by Mr. G. W. Yates, his makeup and quaint dialect eliciting continuous applause. Come again.

"Patience" in Fulton.

The Henderson Comic Opera Company, consisting of twenty-six artists, will produce Gilbert & Sullivan's latest production "Patience," at Nichols Hall, Friday evening. The Johnstown Republican of June 1st, speaking of this company, says: "We have no hesitancy in pronouncing the company first-class in every respect. Mr. Henderson's Bunthorne was simply immense, eliciting the admiration of the entire audience. Mr. Stevens was equally good as the Idyllic Poet. Miss Edith Barton, as Patience, sustained the difficult role with great credit. She is a beautiful soprano, easy in her manner and faultless in vocalization. Her voice is full, round and sweet, and shows evidence of thorough training. Miss Essie Barton, Miss Helen Corlett, Miss Alice Thomas and Mis Rose Beaudet, as rapturous maidens, sustain their characters in a truly excellent and satisfactory manner. The situations of the piece are extremely ludicrous, keeping the audience in the best of humor from the beginning to the end. The company will return on Monday evening next, when they will produce Audran's celebrated comic opera "Olivette."

This is the first time that "Patience" has ever been announced for Fulton, and the indications point to an overflowing house. The company is first-class, and deserving of patronage.

The church will be handsomely decorated, and the exercises will be of a character instructive and pleasing to old as well as young.

Taking the Ninetieth Degree.

A large number of candidates from Oswego and surrounding towns convened in the masonic temple in Oswego Tuesday evening for the purpose of receiving the degree of the Egyptian Rite of Memphis. Remarks were made by Dr. J. Watson, Dr. D. Pardee and W. B. Haward of Fulton and N. H. Gilbert gave a couple of songs which were loudly applauded. Following is a list of the members elect from Fulton: M. H. Brando, W. B. Howard, Willard Johnson, N. Charnley, Dr. D. Pardee, S. Parmelee, J. T. Sheridan, Dr. J. Watson, R. E. Phillips, R. B. Whitaker, J. H. Merton, W. Hornibrook, R. P. Hall, F. M. Baker, Dr. C. R. Lee, C. R. Nichols, Dr. G. V. Emens, N. H. Gilbert.

Woodchuck Hunters.

Friday the annual woodchuck hunt took place. It was a propitious day, and the large number of chucks brought in demonstrated the activity of the hunters. Sides were chosen, consisting each of six men, the losing party to pay for supper.

Capt. C. Wilkinson,	Capt. Ed. Cole.
James Miller,	W. J. Watson,
Eli DeRusha, jr.,	Wm. Hetherington,
W. P. Hillick,	LeRoy Stearns,
N. H. Gilbert,	Thos. Osborn,
Jeff. Bailey,	Frank Wright.

Wilkinson's side brought in 51 and Cole's 46, total killed 96. After viewing the slaughtered woodchucks and reciting the day's adventure, the whole party, with a few friends, repaired to the Johnson house and enjoyed a richly spread collation. Landlord Dresser spared no pains in providing for the nimrods.

E. church, in this village, to-morrow to promote plans for the endowment of the Gardner Baker Professorship in Syracuse University, at 2:30 o'clock, p. m., and in the evening at 7:30 o'clock an address will be made by some distinguished gentleman from abroad. Chancellor Sims will not be present in the evening.

Murder in the First Degree.

Sam Williams (colored) of Auburn, who has been on trial at Lyons, for the murder of Hall at Sodus Point, last fall, has been found guilty of murder in the first degree. Williams was in Fulton a short time before the murder, accompanied by two colored friends, he playing the banjo, the others singing, and will undoubtedly be remembered by many in this locliaty. He will be sentenced to-day.

Mrs. Cassie French, wife of M. E. French, died of consumption Saturday, at the residence of her father, Barney Ferguson, on Emory street, aged 26 yrs. She had been a sufferer from the dreaded disease for about a year, but so great was her hope in once more enjoying normal health that she did not yield to its steady and undermining march until three weeks prior to death. Mrs. French enjoyed a wide and pleasant acquaintance, and her untimely death is a source of sincere regret to her family and multitude of friends. Conscious until the final spark of life departed, she assured the friends gathered at her side that "all was well." A husband and one child survive her. Funeral was held yesterday, from the house, at 2 p. m., conducted by Rev. J. S. Riggs of the Presbyterian church. The remains were interred in Mt. Adnah.

POST DANIEL F. SCHENCK.

AN OLD TIME MEETING OF THE "BOYS IN BLUE."

Post No. 271 Mustered in—A Rousing Camp Fire—Toasts that Warmed the Veterans—Spirit of 61 Still Lives.

Perhaps no town in the state responded more promptly or generously to the first call of President Lincoln for men to assist in subduing the then incipient war. They were asked to lay aside their usual avocations but for a few days as the noise of the guns fired from Fort Sumpter would be quieted and in a few days forgotten. It proved to be but the beginning of one of the most stubborn and prolonged wars of modern times—whose history is familiar to all. Not one-half of the brave men who left Fulton ever returned. Many of the survivors met last evening and formed a post of the Grand Army of the Republic, an organization composed only of those who participated in the war of the rebellion.

Post J. D. O'Brian, of Oswego, accompanied by the city band, and a delegation from post Gould, Phœnix were present and participated in the ceremonies. Post Daniel F. Schenck, No. 271, was mustered in by Major Thomas Matthews, of Oswego, consisting of the following named veterans:

W. J. Pentelow,
D. Hendrick,
N. H. Gilbert,
F. C. Mosher,
E. B. Abbey,
Geo. Ward,
O. J. Jennings,
A. Bennett,
Prof. R. Simpson,

The following officers of Post Daniel F. Schenck were then elected:

Commander—William J. Pentelow.
Senior Vice—James F. Cooper.
Junior Vice—E. S. Cook.
Quartermaster—D. Hendrick.
Adjutant—Robt. Simpson.
Officer of the Day—F. C. Mosher.
Officer of the Guard—M. F. Crahan.
Quartermaster Sergt.—N. H. Gilbert.
Sergt Major—H. H. Kendrick.

SOLDIER'S FARE AND CAMP FIRE.

The assembled posts, with many invited friends, repaired to Nichols hall where coffee and sandwiches, a peaceful soldier's food, was relished. The hall had the appearance of a genuine army mess room, regulation tin dishes and bare tables predominating, while squads of veterans made the building resound with camp fire melodies. Many were the laughable incidents recited, and also many were the unpleasant memories revived as the name of some dead comrade was mentioned.

TOASTS AND SONGS.

Rev. Dr. Tully of Oswego responded to "Our Country," in place of Rev. J. S. Riggs, who was absent on account of sickness. The reverend gentleman was in his happiest mood, and the vast and unlimited resources of "Our Country" was depicted with great vigor and warmth. "Our Flag" was paid a glowing tribute by Rev. E. Moyses of Zion church. Mr. N. H. Gilbert favored the veterans with "'Tis Sweet to Be Remembered," followed by Capt. J. S. Palmer, who responded to "Our Fallen Comrades" in a brief and pleasant way, and was lustily cheered. "The Irish in Our Late War," was to have been responded to by Rev. Father Kearney, but owing to his absence T. B. White of Oswego complimented and eulogized them in a creditable manner. "America, the Home of All Nations" was taken in hand by Ex-Mayor M. P. Neal of Oswego, and then Mr. Geo. E. Smiddy, at the urgent request of the "boys," sung the "Hearts of Oak," which was received with such favor that he was forced to appear again to quiet the "vets." "The Press" was responded to by Mr. Fred Bennett, of the Patriot. He recited the dangers the representatives of the press underwent to give accounts of battles, and also the prominent part the press played in fostering sentiment that precipitated the war. His response was well received, and at the conclusion was loudly cheered. The final, "The Grand Army of the Republic," Mr Melvin F. Stephens responded to. Its past, present and future were clearly painted, supplemented with a terse and well delivered address.

Post Schenck thanked Post O'Brien and Gould for their kindness, and the meeting was brought to a close at 12:30. Post Schenck accompanied Post O'Brien to the depot, where a mutual cheering occurred, and the evening's work ended.

Comrade Chas. Wilson furnished bread for the G. A. R. last evening.

Sidney M. Smith died June 2d at 4 p. m., the immediate cause of his death being hemorrhage of an ulcer in the inguinal gland. His death was not unexpected though it came suddenly at last. Mr. Smith was born in Warren, Herkimer Co., in 1816, and when a mere boy removed with his parents to Fulton where he uninterruptedly as boy and man spent over fifty years. He was closely identified with some of our important industries in former years, but lately occupied an important position in the E. W. Ross shops. Mr. Smith was a quiet industrious man, a valuable citizen and kind neighbor. A widow and three daughters survive him and five brothers. The brothers reside, two in New York, one in Scranton, Pa., and one each in Knoxville and Bristol, Tenn.

Funeral was held from his late residence on Third street, Monday, at half past ten and was largely attended. Rev E. C. Bruce of the M. E. church and Rev J. S. Riggs, of the Presbyterian church officiating. His fellow workman from the E. W. Ross shops attended the funeral in a body and accompanied the remains to Mount Adnah. J. G. Benedict, Samuel Green, A. Bristol and James Smith acted as bearers.

SAMARITAN

NERVINE!

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Epileptic Fits, Spasms, Convulsions, St Vitus Dance, Vertigo, Insanity, Apoplexy, Paralysis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all Nervous Diseases. This infallible remedy will positively eradicate every species of Nervous Derangement, and drive them away from whence they came, never to return again. It utterly destroys the germs of disease by neutralizing the hereditary taint or poison in the system, and thoroughly eradicate the disease, and utterly destroys the cause.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Female Weakness, General Debility, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Painful Menstruation, Ulceration of the Uterus, Internal Heat, Gravel, Inflamation of the Bladder, Irritability of the Bladder. For Wakefulness at Night, there is no better remedy. During the change of life no Female should be without it. It quiets the Nervous System and gives rest comfort and nature's sweet sleep.

SVMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Alcholism, Drunkenness and the habit of Opium Eating. These degrading habits are by far the worst evils that have ever befallen suffering humanity. Thousands die annually from these noxious drugs. The drunkard drinks liquor not because he likes it but for the pleasure of drinking and treating his friends, little thinking that he is on his road to ruin. Like the Opium Eater, he first uses the drug in small quantities as a harmless antidote. The soothing influence of the drug takes strong hold upon its victim, leading him on to his own destruction. The habits of Opium Eating and Liquor Drinking are precisely what eating is to a limentiveness, as over-eating first inflames the stomach, which redoubles its cravings until it paralyzes both the stomach and appetite. So every drink of liquor or dose of opium, instead of satisfying, only adds to its fierce fires, until it consumes the vital force and then itself. Like the gluttonous tape-worm, it cries "Give, give, give!" but never enough until its own rapacity devours itself. Samaritan Nervine gives instant relief in all such cases. It produces sleep, quiets the nerves, builds up the nervous system, and restores body and mind to a healthy condition.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Nervous Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Asthma, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Syphilis, diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases of the urinary organs. Nervous debility, caused by the indiscretions of youth, permanently cured by the use of this valuable remedy. To you, young middle-aged and old men, who are covering your sufferings as with a mantle by silence, look up, you can be saved by timely efforts, and make ornaments to society, and jewels in the crown of your Maker, if you will. Do not keep this a secret longer, until it saps your vitals, and destroys both body and soul. If you are thus afflicted, take Dr. Richmond's Samaritan Nervine. It will restore your shattered nerves, arrest premature decay, impart tone and energy to the whole system.

SAMARITAN NERVINE.

Is for sale by druggists everywhere, or may be had direct from us. Those who wish to obtain further evidence of the curative properties of Samaritan Nervine will please enclose a 3 cent postage stamp for a copy of our Illustrated Journal of Health, giving hundreds of testimonials of cure from persons who have used the medicine, and also their pictures photographed after their restoration to perfect health. STONES IN THE KIDNEYS

AND BLADDER EXPELLED—LONG SUFFERING OF ONE OF TROY'S—BEST PEOPLE—A LUCKY MAN.

It is by no means a strange thing that Dr. Kennedy should have received the following letter. By reading it you will see, in one minute why James Andrews was thankful;

TROY, N. Y. April, 8, 1882.

Dr D. Kennedy Rondout N. Y.

DEAR SIR;—Until within a recent date I had for several years suffered greatly from gravel, called by the doctors the brick-dust sediment. For about a year past this sediment has not passed off in the usual quantity, but has accumulated, causing me untold pain. Having heard of "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" I tried it in my case, and after using about one and one-half bottles, I voided a stone from the bladder, of an oval shape, 7-16 of an inch long, and rough on its surface. I send yo the largest piece that you may see of what it is composed. since then I have felt no pain. I now consider myself cured, and cannot express my thankfullness and gratitude for so signal a deliverance from a terrible a disease. You have my consent to use this letter, should you wish to do so, for the benefit of other sufferers.

Yours Truly,

JAMES ANDREWS.

No 10 Marshal St, Ida Hill.

When we consider that the medicine which did this service for Mr. Andrews cost only one dollar a bottle, it would seem that persons in like fashion can afford the expense of testing its virtues. Get it of your druggist, or address Dr. David Kennedy Rondout, N. Y. "Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" for sale by all druggists.

A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN.

[From the Boston Globe.]

Messrs. Editors:—

The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," as some of her correspondents love to call her. She is zealously devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass.

For Kidney Complaint of either sex this compound is unsurpassed as abundant testimonials show.

"Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills," says one writer, "are the best in the world for the cure of Constipation, Biliousness and Torpidity of the liver. Her Blood Purifier works wonders in its special line and bids fair to equal the Compound in its popularity.

All must respect her as an Angel of Mercy whose sole ambition is to do good to others.

Philadelphia, Pa. (3) Mrs. A. M. D.

VAN VALKENBURG'S

RESTAURANT.

A Model Restaurant and Billiard Room Charley have you been to look at Van's place, on the corner of First and Oneida Streets since he has remodeled and enlarged it? His Restaurant! Yes, was the reply, and it certainly is one of the best appointed and most attractive places ever opened in our village. Such is the fact. This ever popular place has been thoroughly Repainted and Remodeled so that it is now more pleasant and attractive than ever before. The partitions have been removed, the Rooms made Larger so that any that may wish to go to a First-Class Restaurant can do so now and can go into a private entrance to lunch alone, separate and alone. He has also a Billiard & Pool Room attached, entirely separate from Bar or Lunch Room. The Tables are of Babcock's best make, handsomely gotten up and have the Celebrated Magic Double Action Cushion which are so popular with all lovers of Billiard and Pool. All that money can do fo make Van's place more popular than ever has been done. Only the best of everything is kept. Call and look at his bill of fare and know for yourselves the Lunch Van gets up and you will be surprised to learn that he keeps on hand everything in the shape of Lunch that could be got at Delmonicos. He is prepared to get up Lunch for Picnicing and Fishing Parties on the shortest notice in Elegant Style and at very reasonable rates. Now I will give you a small list of his lunches that he gets up: Oysters, in every style; Clam Chowder, Sardines, Lobsters, Crabs, Salmon, Mackerel. Anchovey Chicken. Boiled Ham, Pig Feet Stew, Pork and Beans, Sandwiches of all kinds, Pies and Cheese, Tea and Coffee, and other things and all very cheap. Call and get some of his lunches and you will be more than pleased at the price, so much so that you will say to yourself well I did not know before that people could get such dishes for so small a figure and up here in the country. I have found the place to get my lunch from now out. The prices are what catches me.

Crime Hereditary?

The question as to whether crime was hereditary came up in New York police court, and Justice Patterson recalled two instances as follows:

"I knew a gentleman who was well-to-do in business. He was a church member, and stood high in the community. He had a most excellent wife, one son and a daughter. After the birth of the daughter the father took to drink, left the church and became an inveterate drunkard. He had six children after this—three sons and three daughters. All six turned out bad. The three sons went to State prison, and two of the daughters' husbands were also sent to State prison, and they were bad themselves. The first son and daughter were models of recitude, and the son did all he could for his unfortunate brothers.

"The other day I had 'Red Fogarty' and his wife before me at an examination in Jefferson Market court, about a silk dress which had been stolen from a house and sold by Mrs. Fogarty to the woman who was arrested with the dress on. Well, Mrs. Fogarty carried a bouncing boy with her, a child of about two years—a noisy fellow. He did not cry, but roared. as if angry, and chattered. I was passing through the examination room; Mrs. Fogarty was standing with the boy in her arms. As I passed my diamond stud glistened a little, and the little fellow made a grab at my shirt-front. I caught his hand and put it away, when he grew perfectly ill-natured and mad because I did so. The badness was born in him."

"PRO BONO PUBLICO"

It is a remarkable fact that while thousands of people refuse to read paid puffs of worthless nostrums, none skid over Dr. Swayne's little squib about his Ointment for itching piles that itch so much at night. The people well know that it is published for their benefit, in other words it is pao bono publico. May its far reaching effects be peruated to the end af time. 3w4

The will of the late Cornelius J. Vanderbilt, of New York, who committed suicide a short time ago, is being contested by his sister, Mrs. Mary A. Lebau Berger. He left an estate valued at $750,000, not one penny of which went to any person by the name of Vanderbilt. Mrs. Berger alleges that Cornelius, at the time the will was executed, was a resident of Connecticut, where all his real estate was situated; that the writing was not his last will; that its execution was not his voluntary act, and that he was not of sound mind at the time he signed it. She alleges that the document was procured by fraud practiced on Cornelius by Geo. N. Terry, to whom he left $120,000, and others.

HOW TO GET SICK.—Expose yourself day and night, eat too much without exercise, work too hard without rest, doctor all the time, take all the vile nostrums advertised, and then you will want to know

HOW TO GET WELL.—Wnich is answered in three words—Take Hop Bitters! 3w2

Edwards, a negro murderer, attempted to escape from the Union county, N. C., jail Saturday. He knocked down the sheriff with a piece of timber, and attacked three men who came to the sheriff's assistance. One had his hand and arm broken by blows from the timber, and Berty Binford was knocked down. The negro sprang upon and attempted to choke him. Binford placed a revolver to the negro's side and fired four shots. The negro then arose and again rushed at Binford with the blood gushing from his wounds. He fell a moment later and died. MORTGAGE SALE—Whereas default has been made in the payment of money secured to be paid by a certain mortgage dated the eleventh day of May, 1880, executed by Michael Welch of the town of Owasco, Cayuga county, N. Y., to Samuel S. Woodworth, of Seneca Falls, Seneca county, N. Y., said mortgage being recorded in the office of the clerk of the county of Oswego, N. Y., in liber 125 of mortgages at page 151, on the 20th day of May, 1880, at 12¼ o'clock, p. m. and, whereas: said Samuel S. Woodworth on the 24th day of March, 1881 by an instrument in writing under his hand and seal, dated that day, duly assigned said mortgage to Josiah Letchworth, of Owasco, Cayuga county, N. Y., who now owns and holds the same, said assignment being recorded in Oswego county clerk's office, in liber 128 of mortgages page 211, and, whereas; the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is the sum of one hundred and sixty-eight dollars which became due April 1st, 1882, and the amount to become due thereon is the sum of two thousand eight hundred dollars and interest thereon from April 1st, 1882, making the whole amount claimed to be unpaid on said mortgage two thousand nine hundred and sixty-eight dollars and interest as aforesaid, and no suit or proceeding at law having been had for the recovery of said money or any part thereof, notice is hereby given; That, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein and hereinafter described at public auction at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Oswego, N. Y., on the 13th day of July, 1882, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day. Said premises are described in said mortgage as follows; All that tract or parcel of land situate in the town of Volney, county of Oswego, and state of New York designated as part of lot number seventy-three (73) in the 15th township of Scriba's Patent, bounded and described as follows to wit: Beginning at the north-east corner of said lot number seventy-three; Thence south 21 deg 23 min west twenty-eight chains and twenty four links or thereabouts to a cedar stake; Thence north 69 deg west twenty-four chains and seventy-eight links to a stake; Thence north 21 deg 23 min east twenty-eight chains and twenty-four links or thereabouts to the north line of said lot number seventy-three to a stake standing north 18 deg west thirteen links from a beech tree marked "H;" Thence south 69 deg east twenty-four chains, twenty-eight and one-half links to the place of beginning containing seventy acres of land.

Compensation.

BY MISS F. R. HAVIGAL

Oh! the compensating springs, oh! the balancings of life,
Hidden away in the workings, under the seeming strife;
Knowing the fret and the friction, waiting the whirl of force,
Evolving the truest power, from each unconscious source.

How shall we gauge the whole who can only guess a part,
How can we read the life, when we cannot spell the heart;
How shall we measure another; we, who can never know,
From the jutting above the surface, the depths of the vein below.

Even our present way, is known to ourselves alone,
Hight and abyss and torrent, flower and thorn and stone;
But we gaze on another's path, as a far off mountain scene,
Scanning the outlined hills, but never the vales between.

Ah! if we knew it all, we should surely understand,
That the balance of joy and sorrow, is held by an even hand;
That the scale of success or loss, shall never overflow,
And that compensation is twined, with the lot of high and low.

The easy path in the low land, hath little of grand or new,
But a toilsome ascent leadeth, to a wide and glorious view;
Peopled and warm is the valley, lonely and chill the hight,
But the path that is nearest the storm cloud, is nearest the stars of light.

Launched on the foaming stream, that bears along like a dart,
There is danger of rapid and rock, there is tension of muscle and heart,
Glide on the easy current, monotonous, calm and slow,
You are spared the quiver and strain, in the safe and quiet flow.

Oh! the sweetness that dwells, in the harp of many strings,
While each all vocal with love, in tuneful harmony rings;
But, oh! the wail and the discord, when one and another is rent,
Tensionless, broken or lost, from the cherished instrument.

For rapture of love is linked, with the pain or fear of loss,
And the hand that takes the crown, must ache with many a cross;
Yet he who hath never a conflict, hath never a victor's palm,
And only the toilers know, the sweetness of rest and calm.

Only between the storms, can the Alpine traveler know,
Transcendent glory of clearness, marvels of gleam and glow;
Had he the brightness unbroken, of cloudless summer days,
This had been dimmed by the dust, and the balm of brooding haze.

Who would dare the choice, neither or both to know,
The finest giver of joy, or the agony-thrill of woe;
Never the exquisite pain, then never the exquisite bliss,
For the heart that is dull to that can never be strong to this.

Great is the peril or toil, if the glory or gain be great
Never an earthly gift, without responsible weight;
Never a treasure, without a following shade of care,
Never a power, without a lurk of subtle snare.

Then hush, oh! hush, for the Father knows what thou knowest not,
The need of the thorn and the shadow, linked with the fairest lot;
Knows the wisest exemption, from many an unseen snare,
Knows what will keep thee nearest, knows what thou couldst not bear.

Hush, oh! hush, for the Father, portioneth as He will,
To all His beloved children, and shall they not be still?
Is not His will the wisest, is not His choice the best,
And in perfect acquiescence, is there not perfect rest?

Hush, oh! hush, for the Father, whose ways are true and just,
Knoweth, and careth, and loveth, and waits for thy perfect trust;
The cup He is slowing filling, will soon be full to the brim,
And infinite compensation, forever be found in Him.

Hush, oh! hush, for the Father, hath fullness of joy in store,
Treasures of power and wisdom, and pleasures forever more;
Blessings and honor and glory, endless infinite bliss,
Child of His love and His choice, oh! cannot thou wait for this?

What a Fall Was There.

Seldom even in this country of wonderful changes has there been such a fall as that of Franklin J. Moses, who yesterday was sentenced in New York to confinement in the penitentiary for a period of six months for obtaining money by fraudulent representations. On the breaking out of the war of the rebellion no young man in the south had brighter prospects than Moses, who belonged to one of the leading families, was handsome, talented and courted by the beauty of the state. The damnable doctrine of Calhoun was inculcated in the young fellow, and shortly after the Palmetto state voted to recede from the Union he pulled down the American flag and trampled it in the dust. Like all the other fiery young men of South Carolina he entered the Confederate army and fought to the end of the war. When reconstruction commenced he allied himself with the rascally "carpet bag" element, was chosen a member of the legislature, afterward became speaker of the assembly, and finally was made governor. No man's hand was deeper in the pockets of the tax-payers than that of Moses, and although the people knew he was robbing them they did not cast him aside, for he was brilliant, glib of tongue and a hail fellow with everybody. But at last a change came, and the rascals who had it in their power to make Republicanism in the south respectable, but failed and made it odious, were driven from power and from the state they had despoiled, and compelled to seek refuge in the north. South Carolina suffered no more than she should for her murderous blow at the Union, but the infliction should have taken some other form than open daylight robbery such as was practiced by Scott, Moses and Chamberlain. When Moses was compelled to fly, he made his way to Washington, but he met with no favor there and he drifted on to New York, where he squandered his ill-gotten gains and then commenced living "off his wits," as too many men do in this country. If the young fellow had made an effort to reform, and had settled down in earnest to earning a livelihood by his profession, law, he would have found those willing and able to assist him, but he was on the downward grade without brakes and he went from bad to worse until to-day finds him a felon in a penitentiary. There is something peculiarly sad in the downfall of this man, but the lesson it teaches should not be lost upon the young men who strive to gain wealth and power by other than honest means.

A Tale of a Shirt.

A tale of a shirt may not be very sentimental, but one told of the length of time Henry Clay Dean, the great Iowa statesman, wore a garment, is at least characteristic, suggestive and interesting. Gen. Sherman and Dean had been friends for years, and when Sherman became general and Dean happened to be in Washington, the latter, naturally enough felt a desire to renew the acquaintance. So he called at Sherman's house, and was received by the general with open arms. They talked over old times, and nothing would do but Dean must stay to dinner. The chronicle continues in this strain:

"But, general," remonstrated Mrs. Sherman in her husband's ear, "I can't have such a dirty looking fellow at my table; can't you spruce him up a little?" The general said he'd fix that, and so at an opportune moment he hustled Mr. Dean up stairs, ransacked a bureau and produced a clean shirt for him to put on. Mrs Sherman was mollified, and the dinner was really a charming affair, for there is no more delightful, entertaining and instructive conversationalist than Henry Clay Dean. One year after this event General Sherman was at the Lindell hotel, St Louis with his family. A card was brought up bearing Henry Clay Dean's name. Mrs Sherman was very much pleased. "He is such a charming talker, we must have him to dinner. Only you must see that he looks presentable." These were madam's words to the warrior. So Sherman welcomed Dean, and, just before going to dinner, slipped him into a side room and gave him a clean shirt to wear. Dean doffed his coat and vest and, after a brief struggle divested himself of the shirt he had on—a soiled, grimy, black thing that looked as if it had seen long and hard sevice. Then they all went down to dinner, and Mr. Dean was more charming than ever, and Mrs Sherman was in ecstasies. The next day as Mrs Sherman was getting her husband's duds and clothes together, preparatory to packing them for the onward march, she gave a sort of wild, haunted scream. "What is it, my dear?" called the general from the next room. "Just come in here for a minute," replied Mrs Sherman between faint gasps. There stood Mrs Sherman holding in her left hand the begrimed shirt Henry Clay Dean had left. With her right hand she pointed to certain initials on the lower edge of the bosom. The initials read "W. T. S." It was the identical shirt General Sherman had loaned Henry Clay Dean in Washington twelve months before.

LANGUAGE OANNOT DESCRIBE IT.

Mr. Robert Gould, book-keeper for Walker & Maxey, who are lumber dealers, recently said to our representative: "About one year ago I was taken with a genuine sciatica. I employed the best physicians, but they could only relieve me for the moment. Einally I used St. Jacob's Oil, and it effected a complete cure."

In China.

There is one custom in the Celestial Empire that we would like to see turned loose here. Boys in China are not supposed to be responsible until they arrive at about the age of twenty years, and their parents are held accountable for all their crookedness, just the same as the owner of any other dangerous animal is held responsible for damages.

Supposing a boy walks up and throws a stone through your bay window that shatters a fine calla and busts the statue of the Sweet Singer of Michigan, you do not go out and chase him four blocks with an iron rake and club him until he gets out of reach, but you just get an old hoe handle that swings easy and you search out the boy's parents and wear them out with that hoe-handle and mix them up with the sand. Then if the boy don't behave himself you can go to other relatives of his, and gradually enlarge the circle of your acquaintance, until you have mauled the entire relationship, even including the old grandparents of the boy, and if any of these people resist they are subject to imprisonment.

This law, although apparently stringent, is a good one. It makes parents take more interest in their children and look out for them more accurately. It encourages parents to know where their boys are, and to keep their eyes on them more than they do here in Laramie. Why, if that law were to go into force here, some men we know would have to take an arnica bath twice a day and they wouldn't have a whole bone in their body. We like to see a bright, active boy, with good health and sound lungs, but the thriving blossom that will develop into a Jesse James, we have no use for.

If the Chinese law could be enforced here against those parents who are breeding up a squad of hoodlums, we would not weep. It would be pretty active work for the avenger and his hoe handle, but it would institute a reform at least. As it is now, a building cannot be left unoccupied over night before every pane of glass is broken and the walls smashed in. Now, if the owner had the right to climb the male parent of those boys and knock his shoulder blades through his spleen and tangle his works all up so that hereafter his food wouldn't be any benefit to him, it might arouse an interest in his children so that he would make them an ornament to society.

You can't do much with a strange boy, anyhow. If you spank him with an old window shutter, he goes home and tells his father, and the old man tells him to go right back and do the same thing and he will stand by him. Then the boy returns and repeats, and you start after him with the intention of killing him, but as he turns the corner a quarter of a mile away and puts his thumb on his nose and waves his fingers in the air, you control your brutal temper and go home.

That's the reason why in twenty years from now it will be a bitter cold day when the telegraph doesn't give us the particulars of twenty-seven murders and thirteen train robberies.

JUDGE MEN BY THEIR WORKS.

A man is judged in this life by his works, and in this connection it may be inopportune to add, that Dr Swayne has accomplished more good through the medium of his accomplish more good through the medium of his Ointment for skin diseases, than has the entire school of physicians combined. "Its an ill wind that blows nobody good." What the physicians have lost Dr Swayne has gained. 3w4

Fashion Notes.

Terra-cotta color is popular.

Terra-cotta color has come out in many shades.

Gloves a yard long are imported to wear with dresses that have short sleeves.

Strong red is worn in costumes on the street. Acquaintance with it makes it seem handsome.

A dark red parasol for general wear, a white parasol for dress, and a black one for use are the popular choice.

White flannel costumes, trimmed with narrow titan braid, in white, black and colors, are being made up for seaside wear.

Puffed plastrons, with the puffs shirred horizontally, gives stylish finish to dress corsages, but puffed sleeves detract from the effect.

Sateen, in French porcelain designs, is taking the place, to a great extent, of foulard silk in fanciful costumes for the house and watering-place wear.

Superb mantles for church and for visiting are made of black grenadine, with brocaded velvet figures of great size, and silk hand-made Spanish lace for trimming.

The mantelet in highest request for general service, is of modified dolman design, most frequently made of ecru French cloth of light weight, trimmed with chenille fringe.

Square neckerchiefs, of ciel blue or pink mousseline de soie, with scallops and vines wrought in rosebud or violet pattern, are worn with white muslin or with black dresses, and the effect is very pretty.

Stripes of satin alternating with checked stripes are in great favor for the pleated flounces of walking dresses. The overdress is then made of the plain color of the satin stripe, and may be either of satin or cashmere.

Late costumes for young ladies in their teens, have the skirt all around tucked two-thirds its depth, and the tucking continued on the back to the edge of the basque: with a short apron draped in wavy curved upreared folds.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC ENDORSEMENT.
GORHAM, N. H., July 14, 1879.

Gents—Whoever you are, I don't know; but I thank the Lord and feel grateful to you to know that in this world of adulterated medicines there is one compound that proves and does all it advertises to do, and more. Four years ago I had a slight shock of palsy, which unnerved me to such an extent that the least excitement would make me shake like the ague. Last May I was induced to try Hop Bitters. I used one bottle, but did not see any change: another did so change my nerves that they are now as steady as they ever were. It used to take both hands to write, but now my good right hand writes this. Now, if you continue to manufacture as honest and good an article as you do, you will accumulate an honest fortune, and confer the greatest blessing on your fellowmen that was ever conferred on mankind.

Compensation.

BY MISS F. R. HAVIGAL.

Oh! the compensating springs, oh! the balancings of life,
Hidden away in the workings, under the seeming strife;
Knowing the felt and the friction, waiting the whirl of force,
Evolving the truest power, from each unconscious source.

How shall we gauge the whole, who can only guess a part,
How can we read the life, when we cannot spell the heart;
How shall we measure another; we, who can never know,
From the jutting above the surface, the depths of the vein below.

Even our present way, is known to ourselves alone,
Hight and abyss and torrent, flower and thorn and stone;
But we gaze on another's path, as a far off mountain scene,
Scanning the outlined hills, but never the vales between.

Ah! If we knew it all, we should surely understand,
That the balance of joy and sorrow, is held by an even hand;
That the scale of success or loss, shall never overflow,
And that compensation is twined, with the lot of high and low.

The easy path in the low land, hath little of grand or new,
But a toilsome ascent leadeth, to a wide and glorious view;
Peopled and warm is the valley, lonely and chill the hight,
But the path that is nearest the storm cloud, is nearest the stars of light.

Launched on the foaming stream, that bears along like a dart,
There is danger of rapid and rock, there is tension of muscle and heart;
Glide on the easy current, monotonous, calm and slow,
You are spared the quiver and strain, in the safe and quiet flow.

Oh! the sweetness that dwells, in the harp of many strings,
While each all vocal with love, in tuneful harmony rings;
But, oh! the wail and the discord, when one and another is rent,
Tensionless, broken or lost, from the cherished instrument.

For rapture of love is linked, with the pain or fear of loss,
And the hand that takes the crown, must ache with many a cross;
Yet he who hath never a conflict, hath never a victor's palm,
And only the toilers know, the sweetness of rest and calm.

Only between the storms, can the Alpine traveler know,
Transcendent glory of clearness, marvels of gleam and glow;
Had he the brightness unbroken, of cloudless summer days,
This had been dimmed by the dust, and the balm of brooding haze.

Who would dare the choice, neither or both to know,
The finest giver of joy, or the agony-thrill of woe;
Never the exquisite pain, then never the exquisite bliss,
For the heart that is dull to that, can never be strong to this.

Great is the peril or toil, if the glory or gain be great
Never an earthly gift, without responsible weight;
Never a treasure, without a following shade of care,
Never a power, without a lurk of subtle snare.

Then hush, oh! hush, for the Father knows what thou knowest not,
The need of the thorn and the shadow, linked with the fairest lot;
Knows the wisest exemption, from many an unseen snare,
Knows what will keep thee nearest, knows what thou couldst not bear.

Hush, oh! hush, for the Father, portionest as He will,
To all His beloved children, and shall they not be still?
Is not His will the wisest, is not His choice the best,
And in perfect acquiescence, is there not perfect rest?

Hush, oh! hush, for the Father, whose ways are true and just,
Knoweth, and careth, and loveth, and waits for thy perfect trust;
The cup He is slowing filling, will soon be full to the brim,
And infinite compensation, forever be found in Him

Hush, oh! hush, for the Father, hath fullness of joy in store,
Treasures of power and wisdom, and pleasures forever more;
Blessings and honor and glory, endless infinite bliss,
Child of His love and His choice, oh! cannot thou wait for this?

What a Fall Was There.

Seldom even in this country of wonderful changes has there been such a fall as that of Franklin J. Moses, who yesterday was sentenced in New York to confinement in the penitentiary for a period of six months for obtaining money by fraudulent representations. On the breaking out of the war of the rebellion no young man in the south had brighter prospects than Moses, who belonged to one of the leading families, was handsome, talented and courted by the beauty of the state. The damnable doctrine of Calhoun was inculcated in the young fellow, and shortly after the Palmetto state voted to recede from the Union he pulled down the American flag and trampled it in the dust. Like all the other fiery young men of South Carolina he entered the Confederate army and fought to the end of the war. When reconstruction commenced he allied himself with the rascally "carpet bag" element, was chosen a member of the legislature, afterward became speaker of the assembly, and finally was made governor. No man's hand was deeper in the pockets of the tax-payers than that of Moses, and although the people knew he was robbing them they did not cast him aside, for he was brilliant, glib of tongue and a hail fellow with everybody. But at last a change came, and the rascals who had it in their power to make Republicanism in the south respectable, but failed and made it odious, were driven from power and from the state they had despoiled, and compelled to seek refuge in the north. South Carolina suffered no more than she should for her murderous blow at the Union, but the infliction should have taken some other form than open daylight robbery such as was practiced by Scott, Moses and Chamberlain. When Moses was compelled to fly, he made his way to Washington, but he met with no favor there and he drifted on to New York, where he squandered his ill-gotten gains and then commenced living "off his wits," as too many men do in this country. If the young fellow had made an effort to reform, and had settled down in earnest to earning a livelihood by his profession, law, he would have found those willing and able to assist him, but he was on the downward grade without brakes and he went from bad to worse until to-day finds him a felon in a penitentiary. There is something peculiarly sad in the downfall of this man, but the lesson it teaches should not be lost upon the young men who strive to gain wealth and power by other than honest means.

A Tale of a Shirt.

A tale of a shirt may not be very sentimental, but one told of the length of time Henry Clay Dean, the great Iowa statesman, wore a garment, is at least characteristic, suggestive and interesting. Gen. Sherman and Dean had been friends for years, and when Sherman became general and Dean happened to be in Washington, the latter, naturally enough felt a desire to renew the acquaintance. So he called at Sherman's house, and was received by the general with open arms. They talked over old times, and nothing would do but Dean must stay to dinner. The chronicle continues in this strain:

"But, general," remonstrated Mrs. Sherman in her husband's ear, "I can't have such a dirty looking fellow at my table; can't you spruce him up a little?" The general said he'd fix that, and so at an opportune moment he hustled Mr. Dean up stairs, ransacked a bureau and produced a clean shirt for him to put on. Mrs Sherman was modified, and the dinner was really a charming affair, for there is no more delightful, entertaining and instructive conversationalist than Henry Clay Dean. One year after this event General Sherman was at the Lindell hotel, St Louis with his family. A card was brought up bearing Henry Clay Dean's name. Mrs Sherman was very much pleased. "He is such a charming talker, we must have him to dinner. Only you must see that he looks presentable." These were madam's words to the warrior. So Sherman welcomed Dean, and, just before going to dinner, slipped him into a side room and gave him a clean shirt to wear. Dean doffed his coat and vest and, after a brief struggle divested himself of the shirt he had on—a soiled, grimy, black thing that looked as if it had seen long and hard sevice. Then they all went down to dinner, and Mr. Dean was more charming than ever, and Mrs Sherman was in ecstasies. The next day as Mrs Sherman was getting her husband's duds and clothes together, preparatory to packing them for the onward march, she gave a sort of wild, haunted scream. "What is it, my dear?" called the general from the next room. "Just come in here for a minute," replied Mrs Sherman between faint gasps. There stood Mrs Sherman holding in her left hand the begrimed shirt Henry Clay Dean had left. With her right hand she pointed to certain initials on the lower edge of the bosom. The initials read "W. T. S." It was the identical shirt General Sherman had loaned Henry Clay Dean in Washington twelve months before.

LANGUAGE CANNOT DESCRIBE IT.

Mr. Robert Gould, book-keeper for Walker & Maxcy, who are lumber dealers, recently said to our representative: "About one year ago I was taken with a genuine sciatica. I employed the best physicians, but they could only relieve me for the moment. Finally I used St. Jacob's Oil, and it effected a complete cure."

In China.

There is one custom in the Celestial Empire that we would like to see turned loose here. Boys in China are not supposed to be responsible until they arrive at about the age of twenty years, and their parents are held accountable for all their crookedness, just the same as the owner of any other dangerous animal is held responsible for damages.

Supposing a boy walks up and throws a stone through your bay window that shatters a fine calla and busts the statue of the Sweet Singer of Michigan, you do not go out and chase him four blocks with an iron rake and club him until he gets out of reach, but you just get an old hoe handle that swings easy and you search out the boy's parents and wear them out with that hoe-handle [and mix them up with the sand. Then if the boy don't behave himself you can go to other relatives of his, and gradually enlarge the circle of your acquaintance, until you have mauled the entire relationship, even including the old grandparents of the boy, and if any of these people resist they are subject to imprisonment.

This law, although apparently stringent, is a good one. It makes parents take more interest in their children and look out for them more [illegible]. It encourages parents to [illegible] their boys are, and to keep [illegible] more than they do [illegible]. Why, if that law were [illegible] here, some men we know would [illegible] take an arnica bath twice a day and [illegible] wouldn't have a whole bone in [illegible] body. We like to see a bright, active boy, with good health and sound lungs, but the thriving blossom that will develop into a Jesse James, we have no use for.

If the Chinese law could be enforced here against those parents who are breeding up a squad of hoodlums, we would not weep. It would be pretty active work for the avenger and his hoe handle, but it would institute a reform at least. As it is now, a building cannot be left unoccupied over night before every pane of glass is broken and the walls smashed in. Now, if the owner had the right to climb the male parent of those boys and knock his shoulder blades through his spleen and tangle his works all up so that hereafter his food wouldn't be any benefit to him, it might arouse an interest in his children so that he would make them an ornament to society.

You can't do much with a strange boy, anyhow. If you spank him with an old window shutter, he goes home and tells his father, and the old man tells him to go right back and do the same thing and he will stand by him. Then the boy returns and repeats, and you start after him with the intention of killing him, but as he turns the corner a quarter of a mile away and puts his thumb on his nose and waves his fingers in the air, you control your brutal temper and go home.

That's the reason why in twenty years from now it will be a bitter cold day when the telegraph doesn't give us the particulars of twenty-seven murders and thirteen train robberies.

JUDGE MEN BY THEIR WORKS.

A man is judged in this life by his works, and in this connection it may be inopportune to add, that Dr Swayne has accomplished more good through the medium of his accomplish more good through the medium of his Ointment for skin diseases, than has the entire school of physicians combined. "Its an ill wind that blows nobody good." What the physicians have lost Dr Swayne has gained. 3w4

Fashion Notes.

Terra-cotta color is popular.

Terra-cotta color has come out in many shades.

Gloves a yard long are imported to wear with dresses that have short sleeves.

Strong red is worn in costumes on the street. Acquaintance with it makes it seem handsome.

A dark red parasol for general wear, a white parasol for dress, and a black one for use are the popular choice.

White flannel costumes, trimmed with narrow titan braid, in white, black and colors, are being made up for seaside wear.

Puffed plastrons, with the puffs shirred horizontally, gives stylish finish to dress corsages, but puffed sleeves detract from the effect.

Sateen, in French porcelain designs, is taking the place, to a great extent, of foulard silk in fanciful costumes for the house and watering-place wear.

Superb mantles for church and for visiting are made of black grenadine, with brocaded velvet figures of great size, and silk hand-made Spanish lace for trimming.

The mantelet in highest request for general service, is of modified dolman design, most frequently made of ecru French cloth of light weight, trimmed with chenille fringe.

Square neckerchiefs, of ciel blue or pink mousseline de soie, with scallops and vines wrought in rosebud or violet pattern, are worn with white muslin or with black dresses, and the effect is very pretty.

Stripes of satin alternating with checked stripes are in great favor for the pleated flounces of walking dresses. The overdress is then made of the plain color of the satin stripe, and may be either of satin or cashmere.

Late costumes for young ladies in their teens, have the skirt all around tucked two-thirds its depth, and the tucking continued on the back to the edge of the basque; with a short apron draped in wavy curved upreared folds.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC ENDORSEMENT.

GORHAM, N. H., July 14, 1879.

Gents—Whoever you are, I don't know; but I thank the Lord and feel grateful to you to know that in this world of adulterated medicines there is one compound that proves and does all it advertises to do, and more. Four years ago I had a slight shock of palsy, which unnerved me to such an extent that the least excitement would make me shake like the ague. Last May I was induced to try Hop Bitters. I used one bottle, but did not see any change; another did so change my nerves that they are now as steady as they ever were. It used to take both hands to write, but now my good right hand writes this. Now, if you continue to manufacture as honest and good an article as you do, you will accumulate an honest fortune, and confer the greatest blessing on your fellowmen that was ever conferred on mankind.

It is understood Lincoln has approved the opinion of the judge advocate general for the mitigation of the sentence of lieutenant Flipper, the colored officer, who was convicted of mis-appropriating money belonging to the government, and it is supposed the President will restore him to his former position in the army. Whittaker, who was suspected of mutilating his own ears, fared worse than his convicted brother, and had to leave the West Point military school.

Milk is the chief article of diet of 150,000 children, under five years of age, in New York city. Last year 17,000 children died in that city from diseases contracted by the use of impure milk. Several metropolitan journals are battling against the enactment of a law that allows the sale of skimmed milk. The papers are all willing to fight such a mild beverage as milk, but when it comes to something stronger and more murderous they are mute. The dire consequences of a too free use of "skimmed milk" frightens them.

The comet can now be seen between 10 and 11 o'clock, p. m., with the naked eye in the northern heavens, about half way between the horizon and the pole star and a little to the east. It will disappear about the 4th of June, and then reappear about the 15th of June. It passes the perihelion June 11th, at 10 minutes past midnight. The distance from the sun is 5,785,000 miles, and its velocity at that time will be 118 miles per second. Its velocity at present is very nearly thirty-nine miles per second. The anticipations formed of its brilliancy are doomed to disappointment. This is on account of its smallness. It has not enough material to make a display.

The Sprague excise bill has passed both houses and now awaits Gov. Cornell's action. As it passed the assembly it was applicable to the whole state, but an amendment in the senate renders it applicable only in New York and Brooklyn. It abolishes the bed clause of the present law, forbids summary arrests for a violation of license, and requires that charges shall be heard and disposed of at once. This allows anybody to sell liquor who can get a license. It requires a warrant for every arrest, and prevents delay of punishment for violation of the law by the old system of giving bail and having trial postponed. It might have been better to have adhered to the original application of the bill to the whole state. An excise law might then have been enacted that would have been obeyed.

Hubbard's Newspaper and Bank Directory of the World.

The best and most complete work of the kind ever issued is H. P. Hubbard's "Newspaper and bank directory of the world," published in New Haven, Conn. Mr. Hubbard is one of the live advertising agents in this country, and in the preparation of these two great volumes, he has spent years of time and an immense amount of money. The amount of information these books contain is truly wonderful. There are 2600 pages crowded with such an array of statistics in regard to newspapers, banks, histories of states, territories, maps of the various countries and a thousand other items of political, geographical and statistical interest, to be found combined in no other work. It is gotten up in the highest style of the printer's art, and is handsomely bound.

Decoration Day.

By W. H. Longfellow.

Sleep, comrades, sleep and rest
On this field of the grounded arms,
Where foes no more molest,
Nor sentry's shot alarms !

Ye have slept on the ground before,
And started to your feet
At the cannon's sudden roar,
Or the drum's redoubling beat.

But in this camp of death
No sound your slumber breaks ;
Here is no fevered breath,
No wound that bleeds and aches.

All is repose and peace,
Untrampled lies the sod ;
The shouts of battle cease,
It is the truce of God !

Rest, comrades, rest and sleep !
The thoughts of men should be
As sentinels to keep
Your rest from danger free.

Your silent tents of green
We deck with fragrant flowers ;
Yours has the suffering been,
The memory shall be ours

Journalistic Dots.

We have received No. 1, Vol. 1, of the Yonkers Free Press, published by Wm. Shrive. With Shrive its bound to thrive. The first number is sparkling and wide-awake and as its name indicates is a Free Press, being independent and unsectarian.

The Buffalo Daily Telegraph is now publishing brief histories of living and prominent personages, each brief accompanied with a well executed picture of the subject under the hammer. The Telegraph lacks nothing in goaheaditiveness.

Texas Siftings is a weekly visitor at this office and each succeeding number grows in quaint humor and Texan drollery. It has been in existence but one year and enjoys a circulation of about 20,000. Send to Austin, Texas and get a sample copy.

Wilkins continues to make the Whitehall Times a spicy journal. The editor has undertaken the herculean task of nominating Samuel J. Tilden for Governor.

Real Estate Changes.

Following are the deeds recorded at the county clerk's office the past week of local import:

Orson H. Dutton and wife to Grove Dutton, land in Granby May 23, 1882. $600.

Geo M. Case and wife to Wm. G. Gage, land to Fulton, May 11, 1882. $100

RESCUED FROM DEATH

William J. Coughlin of Somerville, Mass, says: In the fall of 1876 I was taken with bleeding of the lungs followed by a severe cough. I lost my appetite and flesh and was confined to my bed. In 1877 I was admitted to the hospital. The doctors said I had a hole in my lung as big as a half dollar. At one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I got a bottle, when to my surprise I began to feel better, and to-day I feel better than for three years past.

I write this hoping every one afflicted with diseased Lungs will take DR WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAM, and be convinced that CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED. I can positively say it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness.

SPIRIT OF THE PRESS.

Topics Social, Political, Moral and Piscatorial.

"ANOTHER POLITICAL WOODCHUCK."

The signing of the Chinese bill and the consequent removal of that issue from politics leads the Stockton (Cal.) Independent to say that "the Democracy must commence digging for another political woodchuck, to procure another red flag to flaunt in the faces of the people."

CALLS IT RIVER ROBBERY.
[Syracuse Journal.]

Prizes are offered for the largest catches of bass in Oswego river. It is an outrage to thus encourage people to kill fish only in the hope of winning a prize. Prizes for protection would accord much better with the general desire to save fish. No true sportsment will ever contend for one of the rewards of river robbery.

TO THE VICTOR BELONG THE SPOILS.
[Buffalo Evening News.]

The "Half-breed" papers which are complaining because President Arthur is occasionally putting a "Stalwart" in office are rank hypocrites. If the "Half-breeds" had the power of removal there would not be a "Stalwart" in office to-morrow morning. The President is simply caring for his friends, and the man who fails to do that is not long blessed with those who support him.

A POOR CHEMIST.
[Cayuga Chief.]

At Rochester the other day, Judge Wheeler decided that cider was not a spirituous liquor. The Judge may be a good lawyer but we can certify that he is a poor chemist, or he would know that alcohol can be readily distilled from cider in very decided quantities. And for an upright, downright, far-reaching drunk, including a general bewilderment of all the intellectual faculties, a hard cider drunk takes the lead.

WARNING TO GHOULS.
[Scranton Republican.]

The fate of the Syracuse grave robber, who was found with a bullet in his brain beside the grave of a pauper whose body he was about to steal, should be a warning to the ghouls who desecrate the resting places of the dead. Of late the stealing of corpses has become too common, and such a grim lesson as this may have its effect in restraining those who incline to such a base business.

THE GOVERNORSHIP.
[Utica Herald, May 24th.]

The air is full of oaths by stalwarts that no candidate presented by Mr. Arthur can be forced down the throats of the republicans of this State; and on the other hand that Gov. Cornell, if he extorts a renomination, must be beaten at the polls. It has ceased to be a secret that the canvass for Mr. Cornell includes some noisy supporters who are willing that he shall receive the compliment of a renomination, but pronounce his re-election impossible. They admit that the odium of the Tammany alliance, the presumptuous dictation of many of his vetoes, his disregard of the opinions of the farmers and his offensive attitude toward the National Guard, and his greedy grasp for power in a railroad commission, render him one of the weakest candidates who could be brought before the people. In some respects, perhaps, the most eligible candidate is Congressman James W. Wadsworth, whose record as comptroller demonstrates his fitness for administrative duties, and his thorough devotion to any tasks imposed upon him.

⁂"Presumption begins in ignorance and ends in ruin." On the other hand, the production of Kidney-Wort began with wise cautions and scientific research and its use ends in restoring shattered constitutions and endowing men and women with health and happiness. "My tormented back," is the exclamation of more than one poor hardworking man and woman ; do you know why it aches? It is because your kidneys are overtasked and need strengthening, and your system needs to be cleansed of bad humors. You need Kidney-Wort.

The Cheese Market.

[From the Utica Herald.]

Utica, N. Y., May 29, 1882.—At no market of this season has the ruling price remained in abeyance so long and so uncertainly as it did to-day. Buyers themselves hardly seemed to know what they were going to pay. Factorymen still claim that the make is running one third short, and where, a year ago, there was quite an amount of grass cheese in market, the offerings to-day were all hay cheese, nor will there be any of grass make until two weeks from the present time.

Transactions for the day are as follows: 100 boxes at 10¼c.; 324 at 10½c.; 80 at 10⅝c.; 1,509 at 10⅞c.; 3,142 at 10¾c.; and 382 at p. t. Sales, 5,537 boxes ; commissions, 1,312 ; total, 6,849 boxes. One year ago transactions amounted to 7,450 boxes the leading price being only 9½c. To-day the ruling was 10¾c.

Little Falls, N. Y., May 29, 1882.—Buyers complained to-day, that there was no margin for profit on their transactions of last week, and salesmen did not argue the point. The average quality of the stock is about the same as that of last week ; whole milk cheese sold at 10¾ and 11c. and "every day" cheese went at 10½c. down. There was sharp competition on some of the finest goods which ran the price up. The range in prices is quite wide, but on the great bulk of the sales it is only one cent. Salesmen talk strong in support of their confidence that prices of cheese must be good for some time. In view of the light yield and the very high price of beef and other staple articles of food, their argument appears well taken. Altho' grass is still backward the late rains are giving it a rapid growth and it must soon tell on the yield of milk.

At Fulton eighteen factories were represented with 737 boxes of cheese which were sold at 10½ cents. One year ago there were 1698 boxes sold at 8½ cts.; two years ago, 12¼ cts., and three years ago, 7½ cts.

NOTICE TO PATRONS.

The Rolling Stock milk dealers of Fulton and Oswego Falls held a meeting this day to consider the propriety of patrons, where they buy milk, in their alternating with their neighbors and then with dealers during the year. It was concluded that cheaper milk could be afforded if the patrons would continue throughout the year to buy of some one instead of different parties. The dealers in milk are at large expense to furnish a supply during the winter and sometimes costs more than is received, and we would like the continuance of winter customers through the summer, Therefore Resolved,

We respectfully and earnestly ask citizens who desire to take milk in the winter to continue during the summer as a condition precedent to dealing with us at all.

It was the custom of the late R. B. O'dell, when the public neglected to observe Decoration Day, to make boquets and place one upon the grave of each sleeping veteran. Mr. O'dell's grave was singled out by the G. A. R. yesterday, and a tribute to his memory and patriotism was placed thereon.

Many complaints reach us of house plants being stolen. This week we are furnished with the name and residence of a woman who has been detected in this nefarious business, the plants being found at her residence. People who are annoyed by flower thieves, and know who they are, should consult Justice Piper. He has a remedy for thieves, and their social condition will not prevent its application. Consult him.

A Singular Accident.

[Oswego Falls Cor. Oswego Times.]

Last Wednesday as a son of Samuel Smith who lives a mile west of this village was fitting a piece of new ground, the drag became fast upon a root and the boy went to raise it. As he did so the team jumped, throwing one-half of the drag bottom up, while the other part remained fast. The team were pulled back upon the upturned teeth of the drag where they lay floundering, badly tangled in the harness. The boy in order to cut the harness was obliged to get between them, and had his legs and hips badly torn. He now lies in a critical condition. The team were terribly hurt, several of the drag teeth having penetrated their bowels. One of the horses has since died.

Is He in the Canal?

Wednesday evening the canal boat D. F. Adkins, of Oswego tied up for the night at the Upper Landing, opposite Hulett's grocery. It was loaded with lumber and bound for Troy. In the morning (Thursday) at 4:30 the driver, a man said to have been about forty-five, was called and ordered to feed and harness the team preparatory to the day's towing. At 5 o'clock the captain went to call the driver to breakfast and found the team unfed, the lantern being on the bow of the boat alongside of which was the feed he had prepared, standing in a pail. The general impression prevails that the man was drowned. The captain said he employed him at Port Jackson and his name was John Wright, that he was sober and contented and his sudden and mysterious disappearance was unaccountable to him The canal opens into the river at the point where his body is supposed to be and consequently the authorities are unable to draw the water out. Parties will give the place a thorough search to-morrow.

Memorial Day in Fulton.

This day was more fully observed in Fulton yesterday than ever before. The genial sunshine and balmy breeze made the day all that could be required and the community seemed bent upon making the day commemorative of those who had fallen for their countay. Business places were generally closed and the principal manufacturing industries were quieted during the afternoon.

At 3 p. m. the procession proceeded to Mt. Adnah in the following order:

Fulton Amateur Band.
Veterans, Fifty Strong.
Veterans in Wagons.
Carriages containing Clergy, Officers etc.
Wagons with Flowers.
Fulton Fire Department.
Citizens in Carriages.

The procession was preceded to Mt. Adnah by a vast crowd and the lawns and hillsides were dotted with a mass of people. The procession marched to the speaker's stand and halted, where a stirring address was delivered by Dr. David Tully of Oswego. Mr. Tully is a pleasant and interesting orator and paid several glowing tributes to the heroes sleeping in Mt. Adnah.

The singing was under the supervision of Mr. J. F. Cooper and was, as it always is, excellent.

G. J. Emeny last evening closed a contract with the Oswego Falls factory company for the construction of a dye house 32x80 feet, to be located at the north end of the present dye house. The company contemplate building a brick store house on the ground between the weave shed and river. Stone is being quarried for the former building.

The bottom of the wheel pit in the Week's pulp mill went out on Saturday upon the first introduction of water into it. The gate was raised and water let in on an experiment to try it. The wheel weighs some four tons, which with a head of some twelve or fifteen feet, it is thought, was a weight too great for the timbers, and the structure gave way. It will delay the running of the mill for a few days only.

A flag was carried by the veterans yesterday that recalls to mind the formation of the first company of volunteers in Fulton. In 1861, Co. "E," 24th N. Y. Infantry, O. J. Jennings, Capt., were assembled on First street, preparatory to leaving for Elmira, when they were presented by the ladies of Fulton with a silk flag. It was the only flag presented to Fulton soldiers. Capt. Jennings is custodian of this flag, and he, in company with the few surviving brave ones of the gallant Twenty-fourth, prize it dearly.

[Yesterday's Palladium.]

Seven members of the Fulton bicycle club left that village in their natty uniforms at 10 o'clock this morning for Oswego, taking the east side of the river. Eight miles out they were met by Mr. W. B. Phelps, jr., and Mr. Burt Chesebro of this city. The party crossed to the west side at Minetto and arrived here about noon, having made a leisurely and pleasant run. They stopped at the Doolittle house, cooled their heated brows and flushed faces at the Deep Rock spring, and then, chaperoned by Mr. Phelps and others, visited the popular points of the town. The party consists of the following, and their wheels are of the size mentioned: Mr. S. B. Mead, captain, 54 in.; Mr. J. F. Willard, 54; Mr. J. J. Wright, 52; Mr. Arvin Rice, 54; Mr. Wm. Pollard, 54; Mr. J. C. Prosser, 52; Mr. E. M. DeRusha, 52.

—Messrs. Mead and Wright returned on their bicycles, the remainder of the party coming by train.

The Season Opened.

Saturday a match game of cricket was played on the fair grounds between fifteen representing the shuttle and a like number representing the spindle, employees in the Oswego Falls factories. Messrs. Geo. E. Smiddy and W. Bramham acted as umpires. At the conclusion of the game the players repaired to the Clark House and were served with supper, the defeated "Shuttles" paying the bill. One of the notable features of the memorial services yesterday was the presence of about sixty members of Zion Sunday School, bearing flowers. As the procession entered Mt. Adnah the little ones formed a line on either side of the gateway, and paid homage to the sturdy veterans. The flowers were donated for decoration. The children were under the supervision of the Rector, E. Moyses.

Summons and complaint have been served on the president of the village in an action for $10,000 damages for the killing of John Sharp Dodgson, brought by his wife. June 27, 1880, Mr. Dodgson was returning from Oswego in the night, and drove into the hydraulic race, near the plaster mill. The village will contest the claim. Read the trustees proceedings of last evening in regard to the matter.

The banquet of the Commercial Club in Chicago Saturday evening was an important event. The New York Herald says over $140,000,000 of capital was represented. Among the guests were Gen. ANDREW LALONDE.

FARMER'S WIVES.

It is an evident fact that farmers' wives are afflicted with many diseases which are the result of overwork. They are constantly on one ceaseless routine of toil from daylight at morning until late at night. No change, no relaxation, no rest! Farmers should note this fact, and be forewarned before it is too late. It is astonishing what an amount of labor the wives of farmers perform. Many of them get up and have breakfast ready before their husbands are out of bed. Then it is work, work, work, until near midnight, their minds during the time being constantly occupied with their duties, and with thinking of how the food is to be supplied, when the washing and ironing is to be done, when time can be spared to scrub the floor, how the children are to be clothed and kept tidy, and innumerable other things not necessary to mention, all of which combine to overwork and break down the strongest woman in the land. In case is it safe to be continuously thinking upon any one thing. And in cases where the brain has been weakened by too great a strain upon it, thereby producing insanity, epilepsy, vertigo, hysterics, female weakness, general debility, ann a multitude of other diseases, the remedy is rest and a few bottles of Dr. S. A. Richmond & Co's Samaritan Nervine. It acts directly upon the nervous centres and invigorates and strengthens the whole system. Many ladies have refrained from using Samaritan Nervine on account of an existing prejudice against advertised medicines. Let us ask a question: are you prdjudiced against sewing machines because you have seen them advertised, or can you doubt the ingenuity and skill required in their invention? Again, would you refuse to insure your house becase the company adqertised that it had paid millions of dollars in losses and yet had a capital of several millions left? Do such advertisements shake your confidence and create predjudice? Then why refuse to credit the testmony of those who have found Samaritan Nervine to be all that is claimed for it in overcoming those ailments peculiar to your sex? The following statement speaks for itself:

Fairfield, Lenawee Co. Mich.
April 25, 1881.

Dr. Richmond—Dear Sir: This is to certify that my wife had fits for thirty-five years. They would last her for about an hour and sometimes longer. I happened to hear of your medicine and sent for some of it. She had no more fits after she took the first dose. She is now permanently cured, and her health is a great deal better than it has been for twenty years or more. You are entirely at liberty to use her picture and this testimony in any manner which you please, and may sign my name to it. We owe you this much at least for woat you have done for her. Yours

SAMARITAN

NERVINE!

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Epileptic Fits, Spasms, Convulsions, St Vitus Dance, Viritigo, Insanity, Apoplexy, Paralysis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all Nervous Diseases. This infallible remedy will positively eradicate every species of Nervous Derangement, and drive them away from whence they came, never to return again. It utterly destroys the germs of disease by neutralizing the hereditary taint or poison in the system, and thoroughly eradicate the disease, and utterly destroys the cause.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Female Weakness, General Debility, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Painful Menstration, Ulceration of the Uterus, Internal Heat, Gravel, Inflamation of the Bladder, Irritability of the Bladder. For Wakefulness at Night, there is no better remedy. During the change of life no Female should be without it. It quiets the Nervous System and gives rest comfort and nature's sweet sleep.

SVMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Alcholism, Drunkenness and the habit of Opium Eating. These degrading habits are by far the worst evils that have ever befallen suffering humanity. Thousands die annually from these noxious drugs. The drunkard drinks liquor not because he likes it but for the pleasure of drinking and treating his friends, little thinking that he is on his road to ruin. Like the Opium Eater, he first uses the drug in small quantities as a harmless antidote. The soothing influence of the drug takes strong hold upon its victim, leading him on to his own destruction. The habits of Opium Eating and Liquor Drinking are precisely what eating is to alimentiveness, as over-eating first inflames the stomach, which redoubles its cravings until it paralyzes both the stomach and appetite. So every drink of liquor or dose of opium, instead of satisfying, only adds to its fierce fires, until it consumes the vital force and then itself. Like the gluttonous tape-worm, it cries "Give, give, give!" but never enough until its own rapacity devours itself. Samariton Nervine gives instant relief in all such cases. It produces sleep, quiets the nerves, builds up the nervous system, and restores body and mind to a healthy condition.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Nervous Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Asthma, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Syphilis, diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases of the urinary organs. Nervous debility, caused by the indiscretions of youth, permanently cured by the use of this valuable remedy. To you, young middle-aged and old men, who are covering your sufferings as with a mantle by silence, look up, you can be saved by timely efforts, and make ornaments to society, and jewels in the crown of your Maker, if you will. Do not keep this a secret longer, until it saps your vitals, and destroys both body and soul. If you are thus afflicted, take DR. RICHMOND'S Samaritan Nervine. It will restore your shattered nerves, arrest premature decay, impart tone and energy to the whole system.

SAMARITAN NERVINE.

Is for sale by druggists everywhere, or may be had direct from us. Those who wish to obtain further evidence of the curative properties of Samaritan Nervine will please enclose a 3 cent postage stamp for a copy of our Illustrated Journal of Health, giving hundreds of testimonials of cure from persons who have used the medicine, and also their pictures photographed after their restoration to perfect health. NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

TO HOLDERS OF [illegible]

[illegible]

—A LUCKY MAN.

It is by no means a strange thing that Dr. Kennedy should have received the following letter. By reading it you will see in one minute why James Andrews was thankful;

TROY, N. Y. April, 6, 1882.

Dr D. Kennedy Rondout N. Y.

DEAR SIR:—Until within a recent date I had for several years suffered greatly from gravel, called by the doctors the brick-dust sediment. For about a year past this sediment has not passed off in the usual quantity, but has accumulated, causing me untold pain. Having heard of "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" I tried it in my case, and after using about one and one-half bottles, I voided a stone from the bladder, of an oval shape, 7-16 of an inch long, and rough on its surface. I send yo the largest piece that you may see of what it is composed. Since then I have felt no pain. I now consider myself cured, and cannot express my thankfullness and gratitude for so signal a deliverance from a terrible a disease. You have my consent to use this letter, should you wish to do so, for the benefit of other sufferers.

Yours Truly,

JAMES ANDREWS.

No 16 Marshal St, Ida Hill.

When we consider that the medicine which did this service for Mr. Andrews cost only one dollar a bottle, it would seem that persons in like fashion can afford the expense of testing its virtues. Get it of your druggist, or address Dr. David Kennedy Rondout, N. Y. "Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" for sale by all druggists.

VAN VALKENBURG'S

RESTAURANT.

—:o:—

A Model Restaurant and Billiard Room Charley have you been to look at Van's place, on the corner of First and Oneida Streets since he has remodeled and enlarged it? His Restaurant! Yes, was the reply, and it certainly is one of the best appointed and most attractive places ever opened in our village. Such is the fact. This ever popular place has been thoroughly Repainted and Remodeled so that it is now more pleasant and attractive than ever before. The partitions have been removed, the Rooms made Larger so that any that may wish to go to a First-Class Restaurant can do so now and can go into a private-entrance to lunch alone, separate and alone. He has also a Billiard & Pool Room attached, entirely separate from Bar or Lunch Room. The Tables are of Babcock's best make, handsomely gotten up and have the Celebrated Magic Double Action Cushion which are so popular with all lovers of Billiard and Pool. All that money can do to make Van's place more popular than ever has been done. Only the best of everything is kept. Call and look at his bill of fare and know for yourselves the Lunch Van gets up and you will be surprised to learn that he keeps on hand everything in the shape of Lunch that could be got at Delmonicos. He is prepared to get up Lunch for Picnicing and Fishing Parties on the shortest notice in Elegant Style and at very reasonable rates. Now I will give you a small list of his lunches that he gets up: Oysters, in every style; Clam Chowder, Sardines, Lobsters, Crabs, Salmon, Mackerel, Anchovey Chicken, Boiled Ham, Pig Feet Stew, Pork and Beans, Sandwiches of all kinds, Pies and Cheese, Tea and Coffee, and other things and all very cheap. Call and get some of his lunches and you will be more than pleased at the price, so much so that you will say to yourself well I did not know before that people could get snch dishes for so small a figure and up here in the country. I have found the place to get my lunch from now out. The prices are what catches me.

You, who my coming could surmise
Ere any hint of me as yet
Warned other ears and other eyes,

[James Russell Lowell in the May Century.

I believe St. Jacobs Oil to be the very best remedy known to mankind," says Mr. Roberts, business manager of this paper. [Milwaukee (Wis.) Sentinel.

Genius, Capital, Money, Foolishness.

Tennyson can take a worthless sheet of paper and by writing a poem on it make it worth $5000. That's genius. Vanderbilt can write a few words on a sheet and make it worth $5,000,000. That's capital. And the United States can take an ounce and a quarter of gold and stamp upon it an "eagle bird" and "twenty dollars." That's money. The mechanic can take the material worth $5 and make it into a watch worth a hundred. That's skill. The merchant can take an article worth 25 cents and sell it to you for a dollar. That's business. A lady can purchase a very comfortable bonnet for $10, but prefers to pay $100 for one. That's foolishness. The ditch digger works ten hours a day and shovels out three or four tons of earth for $1. That's labor.

SICK-HEADACHE.

Mrs. J. C. HENDERSON, of Cleveland, Ohio, writes: "The use of two of Pierces Pleasand Purgative Pellets' a day, for a few weeks, has entirely cured me of sick headache, from which I formerly suffered terribly, as often, on an average, as once in ten days." Of all druggists.

The greatest length of Lake Superior is 355 miles; its greatest breadth is 160 miles; mean depth, 668 feet; elevation 627 feet; area 82,000 square miles.

The greatest length of Lake Michigan is 300 miles; its greatest breadth, 108 miles; mean depth 690 feet; elevation 506 feet; area 23,000 square miles.

The greatest length of Lake Huron is 100 miles; its greatest breadth is 60 miles; mean depth is 600 feet; elevation is 274 feet; area 20,000 square miles.

The greatest length of lake Erie is 250 miles; its breadth is 80 miles; its mean depth is 84 feet; elevation. 261 feet; area 6,000 miles.

The greatest length of Lake Ontario is 180 miles; its greatest breadth is 65 miles; its mean depth is 500 feet; elevation, 261 feet; area, 5,000 square miles.

The length of all five is 1,265 miles, covering an area of upwards of 135,000 square miles.

How to Secure Good Husbands.

Among the Zuni Indians, who have recently come to the front by coming east for ocean water, there is said to be a social custom that might be worth adopting in more civilized circles. In Zuni-land the houses belong to the women instead of the men, so a man can marry without first being obliged to buy or hire a house; marrying men are therefore abundant among the Zunis. On the other hand, a man who marries can occupy his wife's house only during good behavior, the wife having always the right to put an unsatisfactory man out of doors. This is a privilege that would raise many an American wife from abject slavery to the rank of equal partner in the conjugal firm. But, whether for husband or wife, the Zuni plan is an advantageous one; it encourages early marriages, assures every woman a home, so that she need not marry merely to get one, and it keeps husbands in order, for almost any man will behave himself if by so doing he can avoid the onerous duty of paying house rent.

Women everywhere use Parker's Ginger Tonic, because they have learned by experience that it overcomes despondency, indigestion, weakness in the back and kidneys, and other troubles of the sex. [Home Journal. 50t4

A Multiplicity of Afflictions.

On Friday morning last, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Farnum, of this village, received a telegram from New York conveying the sad intelligence that Mr. Farnam's brother Joel, of that city, lay at the point of death. They took the first train for New York and before they had been gone an hour, another telegram was received by the family that Mrs. Farnum's sister, Mrs. Mary LeBart, of Little Falls, could survive buta few hours at the fartherest. A dispatch was sent back which reached Mrs. F. at Little Falls where she stopped, and Mr. Farnum went on to New York. Mrs. Farnum's sister was buried on Saturday afternoon, and Mr. F's brother on the day following. Within an hour after the second telegram had been received by the family in Oneida, a letter arrived from Mrs. Selkregg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Farnum, who resides in North East, Pa., which stated that her husband's mother, a member of her family, was very ill and could in all probability live but a few hours, her sickness being heart disease. [Oneida Union.

If the druggist says he doesn't keep The Peerless Worm Specific, ask him to send for it and don't be put off. He can get it if he chooses to, and will if you insist upon it. Cheap and efficacious. Only 25 and 50 cents. For sale by R. E. Phillips.

A clergyman who had just married a couple felt indignant when the bridegroom gave him a fee of only half a dollar, smiled grimly, and said: "Never mind. You'll have to pay a lawyer $100 for undoing what I have done."

Dated this 13th day of April, 1882.

To Lucy C. Mead, Chauncey B. Fuller, Gazette Fuller, Chauncey Fuller, James Fuller, Beekman Fuller, Nettie Fuller, Nora Fuller and Mable Fuller. The foregoing summons is served upon you by publication, pursuant to an order of Hon. John C. Churchill Justice of the Supreme Court, dated the 14th day of April, 1882, and filed with the complaint in the office of the clerk of the county of Oswego at the clerk's office in the city of Oswego.

GILES S. PIPER,

48w6 Plaintiff's Attorney.

COUNTY COURT COUNTY OF OSWEGO. By virtue of an execution issued out of the county court of the county of Oswego to me directed, in an action wherein Stephen Hinckley was plaintiff and George Simons was defendant against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements of said George Simons I have seized all the right and title which the said George Simons had on the 21st day of April, 1879, or at any time thereafter of in and to the following described lands and premises which I shall expose for sale at public auction at the law office of Giles S. Piper in the village of Fulton in said county of Oswego on the First day of July, 1882, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day to wit: All that tract or parcel of land situate in the town of Palermo, county of Oswego and state of New York described as follows: Beginning at the north-east corner of lands formerly owned by LeRoy Owen and lands formerly owned by Charles Pangburn; thence running westerly sixty (60) rods along the line of lands formerly owned by Charles Pangburn; thence south far enough so that a line drawn parallel with the above mentioned line to contain twenty (20) acres of land said twenty acres of land to be measured off from the north end of lot No. 27, Henderson tract, fourteenth township of Scriba's Patent; also the right to cross and recross from and to said premises from the highway leading from the Jennings mill to the state road across the lands formerly owned by Harry Clark as may be directed by said Clark or his assigns and being the same premises conveyed by Harry Clark and wife to George H. Simons by deed recorded in Oswego county clerk's office in Book 134 of deeds at page 150.

Dated May 15, 1882.

MORTGAGE SALE—Whereas default has been made in the payment of money secured to be paid by a certain mortgage dated the eleventh day of May, 1880, executed by Michael Welch of the town of Owasco, Cayuga county, N. Y., to Samuel S. Woodworth, of Seneca Falls, Seneca county, N. Y., said mortgage being recorded in the office of the clerk of the county of Oswego, N. Y., in liber 125 of mortgages at page 151, on the 20th day of May, 1880, at 12½ o'clock, p. m., and, whereas; said Samuel S. Woodworth on the 24th day of March, 1881 by an instrument in writing under his hand and seal, dated that day, duly assigned said mortgage to Josiah Letchworth, of Owasco, Cayuga county, N. Y., who now owns and holds the same, said assignment being recorded in Oswego county clerk's office, in liber 128 of mortgages page 211, and whereas; the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is the sum of one hundred and sixty-eight dollars which became due April 1st, 1882, and the amount to become due thereon is the sum of two thousand eight hundred dollars and interest thereon from April 1st, 1882, making the whole amount claimed to be unpaid on said mortgage two thousand nine hundred and sixty-eight dollars and interest as aforesaid, and no suit or proceeding at law having been had for the recovery of said money or any part thereof, notice is hereby given; That, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein and hereinafter described at public auction at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Oswego, N. Y., on the 13th day of July, 1882, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day. Said premises are described in said mortgage as follows; All that tract or parcel of land situate in the town of Volney, county of Oswego, and state of New York designated as part of lot number seventy-three (73) in the 13th township of Scriba's Patent, bounded and described as follows to wit: Beginning at the north-east corner of said lot number seventy-three; Thence south 21 deg 20 min west twenty-eight chains and twenty-four links or thereabouts to a cedar stake; Thence north 69 deg west twenty-four chains and seventy-eight links to a stake; Thence north 21 deg 20 min east twenty-eight chains and twenty-four links or thereabouts to the north line of said lot number seventy-three to a stake standing north 69 deg west thirteen links from a beech tree marked "[illegible]"; Thence south 69 deg east twenty-four chains and seventy-eight and one-half links to the place of beginning containing seventy acres of land.

Forever.

By John B. O'Reilly.

Those who love truly never die,
  Though year by year the sad memorial wreath,
  A ring of flowers, types of life and death,
Are laid upon their graves.

For death the pure life saves,
  And life all pure is love, and love can reach
  From heaven to earth and nobler lessons teach,
Than those by mortals read.

Well blessed is he who has a dear one dead;
  A friend he has whose face will never change.
  A dear communion that will not grow changed,
The anchor of a love is death.

The blessed sweetness of a loving breath
  Will reach our cheek all fresh through weary years!
  For her who died long since, ah! waste not tears,
She's thine unto the end.

Thank God for one dead friend,
  With face still radiant with the light of truth,
  Whose love comes laden with the scent of youth,
Through twenty years of death.

FROM THE GREAT METROPOLIS.

New York is to-day one of the world's three wonderful cities. It is a home for twenty nationalities. The architecture lacks uniformity as to classification, but as to monotony, it has no such demerit. The two extremes of the island show to the traveler the difference between the city, proper, as it was fifty years ago and what it is to-day. The thoroughfares that were known to all men visiting New York thirty or forty years ago are deserted and dead, comparatively speaking. For instance, the celebrated Boulevarde, and avenue known as the "Fifth," is no more a residence of millionaires below Twenty-third street. The same residences are to be seen, however, that were built years ago, but the aristocrats have moved "up town." Boarding-houses, clubs, business houses and fashionable eating saloons are in their stead. Far up the magnificent avenue, as many as four miles from Washington Square, stretches the piles of gorgeous dwellings and massive mansions. Central Park, that once charming resort, but of late sadly neglected, stretches along on the west side of Fifth Avenue to One Hundred and Tenth street, affording, in the hot months, a refuge for the hot and wearied sight-seer. Just now the park commissioners are squabbling among themselves in regard to the land-scape, outlines and artistic profiles of the work which ought to have been perfected ten years ago. The rich and the poor meet frequently, alas! too often, in this colossal city. The parks are infested with

TRAMPS, BEGGARS AND POLICEMEN.

Not that the officers of the law are to be classed with the two aforesaid, but the three are always at hand when you do not desire their company. God help the poor, and in this city they are poor. Poverty has no caste here. I think I have never witnessed the depths of poverty before coming here. Being somewhat of a philanthropist, I have endeavored to ascertain to what nationality the majority of beggars spring from, but have not been able to learn with any degree of certainty. One thing is positive, however, and it is that strong drink fathers the great majority. During the warm weather these vagrants find the open air, at night, no foe, and the small parks in and about the city are filled with them. Our municipal authorities are at their wits end, almost, trying to solve the problem of "what to do with the tramps." 'Tis true, the tramp is hated and despised, but so was the Saviour of the world; and I, for one, have an idea that something is wrong with the condition of things, and to blame for the condition of affairs which gives birth to such monstrosities. People are supposed to take an interest in tramps, because they take no interest in themselves. The wealthy denizens, of course, are able to look after number one, so that one does not have any surplus feeling to expend upon their welfare. In fact the rich are, to me, objects of commiseration. When one comes to view the possessions of great wealth from the standpoint of an outsider, it possesses few allurements. This subject is, however, open to much opinion of a various character, therefore I will only add that, although money is what we are all after, yet we can have too much money.

Quite often I meet an old and familiar face on the streets of New York. The writer had a very pleasant chat with Mr. and Mrs. George M. Case one morning in East Fourteenth street. I don't see as either have grown old a day, and they have certainly forgotten none of their old-time pleasant and courteous manner, so agreeable to meet.

M. R. JEFFERDS,

an old Fultonian, ran across me in the Fifth Avenue hotel one evening last week. He is now engaged in railroading in Texas, so he informed me. "Mose" looks as fresh and handsome as he did nine years ago. Age doth not wither, nor custom stale, his infinite variety.

I am located in business somewhat out of the usual line of Fultonians, being pretty well up on Fifth Avenue, but I should be extremely glad to welcome my old friends whenever they are in the city.

SPRING HAS ARRIVED.

[illegible] love-born household [illegible] may be seen hanging from attic and corner windows soon, and other housekeeping effects, which are supposed to indicate the return of house cleaning time. People clean house here about the same as usual. Ash barrels are always turned bottom up, the wrong way of the wind, and, of course, you inwardly say cuss words, and spit out what ashes may have accumulated in behind your back teeth. Another sign of spring is the army of "sidewalk brokers." These men, and women also, paddle and hawk an infinite variety of wares—useful, foolish, silly, absurd, and the Lord only can tell what not. They are a clever, good natured set of people, and are generally able to crack a joke with any facetiously disposed and sell them, too, if they can. When the soft sunbeams kiss the atmosphere and warm the strata of air which is about four or five feet from the earth—then, O! then! look out for the "curb stone vender," for he will be out in full array.

In looking through the city directory I run across a familiar name now and then. I saw the name of Lawrence Johnson, M. D., a while ago. 'Tis he who wrote a flat, contemptible and profane article, endeavoring to cast ridicule upon a little called "Toonka," which was written for, and published in, THE FULTON TIMES years ago, and extensively copied throughout the United States. I have ever felt as if I would enjoy bringing this party to his prayers, as the spirit which prompted his attack upon my story was of a nature parallel to that of any insect made only to be exterminated. Not that any person attached the least importance to his peculiarly paltry and petty scrap of plagiarized billingsgate, but I, who knew the inner consciousness of the motive which led him to adopt a cowardly method of reaching me by an anonymous letter to a public journal, appreciated the deep damnation of it, and leads me ten years after to bring it up in the same columns, as an interesting bit of reading to my friends. Your readers cannot say I was precipitate in my rejoinder, at all events. One thing was plain, Mr. Johnson did not possess astuteness enough to penetrate the veil of satire thrown about the romance. This was a great joy to me, and also a big thing to my intimate friends, who were all in the plot, and to this day he is ridiculed as having sprawled into a pit of his own digging. I advise him to study Martin Chuzzlewit. Let him turn to the scene where Jonas, in his rage at Tom Tinck, prevents the key to the future being given him by that honest man. If he had but waited for Tom's explanation, "why he gave the letter to him, (Jonas,)" the name of Mr. Nadget must have been brought in, as the true cause, and thus Jonas would have saved his own life.

BUSINESS

is progressing and developing into vast proportions. I refer to the piano and organ trade, as the other branches of trade I am not so well acquainted with. New York is the real center for all manufacturing in musical instruments, and buyers are loth to take pianos that are not made here. The curious figures, in regard to the manufacture of pianos shows beyond dispute that all the vast number of pianos made in this country are not sufficient to place an instrument in the house of every family in New York alone. Among forty-two millions of inhabitants, this leaves room for several millions of pianos to be made and sold. People often say, "Why! almost everybody has a piano!" But the saying, although very common, is not in the slightest sense true, as can be seen from my statement above. I will also add that those having a Weber piano may rest assured they have the most celebrated and by all odds the best piano now before the public. The great Weber factory turns out a magnificent new piano

EVERY WORKING HOUR,

ten each day, and a grand total of sixty per week. But before I get into a business form of advertising,—a thing which comes very natural to me, as I had entire charge of the "intellectual" advertising (!) in the western houses with which I was associated,—I will bring this long letter to a culmination.

In my next I shall have some interesting gossip about New York customs, curious sights, Patti and Oscar Wilde.

Yours truly,

Fashion Notes.

The latest London rage is for gray.

Paniers are worn only by full dress.

Black Chantilly lace is again in favor.

Button boots are going out of fashion.

Any neat utility costume will do for a traveling suit.

Flannel costumes, principally, are worn on the streets.

Bangled jet is the novelty for trimming black dresses.

Very small jet bonnets are worn this season by young ladies.

Childrens' shoes are of kid, buttoned high, and without heels.

There is a rage in New York for small jet beaded Fanchon bonnets.

Ulsters are much worn for traveling costume, but are not de rigueur.

The newest veils are real lace with borders all in one piece.

Origin of Memorial Day.

Homage to fallen heroes began with the history of the human race. The chaplet of immortelles was early wreathed by the ancient Athenians and Grecians around the memory of their fallen heroes, which kept alive the fire of patriotism and love of country in the breasts of those who followed after them. The custom of these brave races, whose deeds illumine the pages of history with a lustre which time nor age cannot dim, has descended upon the American people in this land of liberty, and to-day the memory of the honored dead of this country will be perpetuated amid the beautiful groves that surround their final resting places. It is meet that the observance of this memorial day should be conducted by the surviving comrades of the fallen heroes, for to them belongs the honor of first instituting the beautiful custom whereby the memory of our dead soldiers will not be forgotten by the American people. Early in the year 1866 a number of union soldiers met at the State capitol in Springfield, Ill., and formed a nucleus of what has since become the Grand Army of the Republic. Its objects as set forth in a circular sent to all the prominent public men was "To keep alive the fraternal relations existing among old soldiers, and patriotism and devotion to our country."

Immediately following the organization of the Grand Army of the Republic came the desire to perpetuate the memory of their dead comrades, and for that purpose each post set apart a day in the early springtime when they would visit the graves of their dead comrades and decorate them with flowers in a becoming manner. This custom was followed during the years 1866-'67 and at the second national convention of the Grand Army of the Republic, January 15, 16 and 17, 1868, a resolution was adopted setting the 30th of May as a day to be kept sacred to the memory of their fallen comrades, and congress was asked to make that day a legal day so that all classes of American citizens could unite in honoring the graves of our fallen soldiers. Congress then in session immediately enacted the necessary legislation and the following 30th day of May was generally observed throughout the northern states. From that time forward with each succeeding year Decoration Day has continued to grow in popular esteem until it has come to be looked upon as a day of little less interest than the greatest of American days, the day of independence.

How "Injuns" Farm.

A gentleman just up from Standing Rock Agency said the Indians were engaged in planting. In answer to an inquiry as to how the reds were progressing in the peaceful ways of grangering, he smiled and said their manner was odd. Every year they seem to know less about how to farm. This is attributable to the fact that they are learning the ways of the whites too rapidly. They begin to understand that as soon as they can grow crops their rations will be cut off, and hence their growing ignorance of agriculture. If they are given a bushel of beans to plant, they will eat nine-tenths of the amount and plant one-tenth, and the one-tenth will be dumped in three or four holes in the ground. Last Last spring they were furnished with five bushels of onion seed. They couldn't eat them, and consequently planted the whole five bushels in a piece of ground fifty by one hundred feet. They were too lazy to prepare a larger patch; besides it would have been in opposition to their policy of maintaining the ration system. When the onions came up it was a curious sight to see the young shoots crowd each other. The whole dry naked surface of the ground was raised up on top of the sprouting plants. It is our informant's opinion that the present generation of Injuns will not make successful grangers.

Gents—Whoever you are, I don't know; but I thank the Lord and feel grateful to you to know that in this world of adulterated medicines there is one compound that proves and does all it advertises to do, and more. Four years ago I had a slight shock of palsy, which unnerved me to such an extent that the least excitement would make me shake like the ague. Last May I was induced to try Hop Bitters. I used one bottle, but did not see any change; another did so change my nerves that they are now as steady as they ever were. It used to take both hands to write, but now my good right hand writes this. Now, if you continue to manufacture as honest and good an article as you do, you will accumulate an honest fortune, and confer the greatest blessing on your fellowmen that was ever conferred on mankind.

THE FULTON TIMES.

Wednesday, June 7th, 1882.

THE Utica Herald says "We are still looking thro' the state press for a good word for the late legislature.

CROP reports from the western states were never more flattering. The wheat crop in Michigan alone will exceed that of last year by 1,000,000 bushels.

THE Assembly on Wednesday adopted by a vote of 77 to 35, the majority report of the Judiciary Committee exonorating Judge Westbrook from the charges brought against him.

THE following have become laws: Prohibiting the coloring of oleomargarine, butterine and adulterated cheese; regulating the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine or any other form or imitation of butter and lard, or any form or imitation of cheese.

JOHN F. Gray, M. D. LLD., died at the Fifth Avenue Hotel in New York yesterday.

He was the first American physician that abandoned Allopathy and embraced the system of Hahneman known as Homœopathy. He had practiced for over fifty years. His patrons were among the most intelligent and wealthy of that city.

THE national liquor dealers convention at Chicago, has practically confessed the force of prohibition, and will go in for an organized fight against prohibition. This programme, if carried out, will utterly destroy the argument against dragging temperance into politics, and will force upon the average voter an expression for one side or the other of the temperance question.

PROCEEDINGS in the Malley trial have been halted and will remain so until the 18th inst. A juror 72 years of age is in feeble health. Should he die the case would be retried. The Rome Sentinel asks: Has not this Cramer family endured about enough? After the Malleys are acquitted would it be strange if counsel for the defense should learn that Jennie Cramer left a brother?

BISHOP GILMOUR of Cleveland wrote a letter that was read Sunday in all of the Catholic chrches of his diocese excommunicating any lady who hereafter attends meetings of the ladies' land league or becomes a member. The bishop denounces that branch as calculated to make brawling politicians of the women, and holds that membership therein is incompatible with womanly modesty.

CHANCES for a stay of proceedings in the Guiteau case are hopeless. The final decision of the court in banc was rendered Monday, which is adverse to the prisoner. The last card has been played and Guiteau will hang June 30, three weeks from Friday. Following is the decision of the judges: "The judges who listened to the argument in the case have come to the conclusion that they have exhausted their powers upon it. They have heard it patiently, fully, fairly, and a re-argument would bring them to no other conclusion than that which they have already arrived at, and they decline to reopen the case for argument."

The Canal Amendment.

The friends of the constitutional amendment for exempting the canals from State tolls, which is to be submitted to a vote of the people this fall, must be on the alert. Powerful interests are opposed to the adoption of this measure. If ratified at the ballot boxes, it will greatly aid New York in the sharp competition with the Mississippi and St. Lawrence routes for a fair share of the trade of the western states. It will also help the Erie and Oswego canals in their struggle with the railronds for the traffic between the lakes and the Atlantic. It is prudent for the supporters of the amendment to assume that these interests will oppose its adoption. Indeed, it is apparent to those who keep a vigilant eye upon the matter that strong influences are already at work to defeat it.

The danger which the advocates of the amendment have, perhaps, most to fear springs from another source. The exemption of the canals from tolls makes their support by general taxation a necessity, and this is provided for in the amendment. A strong appeal on this ground against the measure will be addressed to those portions of the state which lie remote from the canals, and from the lakes and rivers immediately connected with them. It will be remembered that many members of the legislature from these localities voted against submitting the amendment to the people.

This is not in any sense a party question. The amendment is supported and opposed by prominent men in all parties. It cannot depend for success upon any existing political organization. It must rely upon its merits and the efforts of its friends to carry it through. As a whole, western and central New York are in favor of it. The cities of New York and Brooklyn are vitally interested in having the pending measures prevail. If they want it adopted they must be wide awake and take steps to that end.

"Magnificent promises sometimes end in paltry performances." A magnificent exception to this is found in Kidney-Wort which invariably performs even more cures than it promises. Here is a single instance: "Mother has recovered," wrote an Illinois girl to her eastern relatives. "She took bitters for a long time, but without any good, so when she heard of the virtues of Kidney-Wort she got a box, and it has completely cured her liver complaint."

Real Estate Changes.

Following are the deeds recorded at the county clerk's office the past week of local import:

The board of supervisors to Henry E. Nichols, land in Volney, $277.80. May 5, 1882.

H. R. Woodworth to John Worden, land in Volney, $4,000. January 22, 1879.

Forest G. Weeks to Joseph LaLonde, land in Fulton, $1,500. May 1, 1882.

ITS STAR STILL ASCENDING.

In a recent call upon Mr. W. H. McAllister, 266 Front street, general agent for the sale of the Star Chewing Tobacco, he thus spoke to one of our reporters: "I was tortured with pain from acute rheumatism, and cared not whether I lived or died. I tried St. Jacob's Oil—just two applications of which entirely cured me."

The coroner's jury in Syracuse inquiring into the death of Dr. Kendall, who was found dead in the county house cemetry, have adjourned their labors until Saturday. In the brain, a half inch from where the large pistol ball was imbedded, has been found a wad of paper, which could not have come from either of the weapons found on his person. This, with other circumstances, is believed to wholly overthrow the theory of suicide.

Col. Moses Summers, a post warden in New York city, a former resident in Syracuse and known by many in this section, suffered a terrible accident while attending to his duties Saturday morning. While walking across a beam of a bark he fell a distance of twenty feet into the hold, striking upon his back and completely paralyzing him. Col. Summers was once part owner of the Syracuse Stadard. But little hopes are entertained of his recovery.

The fore part of last week Dr. Carroll was casting the fly in the river near the saw mill when it was taken by a large pickerel which he succeeded in towing to the shore but in the effort to land him he parted the leader and made off with the flies. Tuesday mornihg Will Hart speared a pickerel near the dam, in the gills of which the Dr's flies were found complete and uninjured, where they had been retained for a week. The fish weighed seven and a half pounds.

OSWEGO COUNTY, ss:

Carlon Church being duly sworn, deposes and says that the foregoing statement of account between himself and his brother, Warren Church, is just and true, and in all respects correct, according to his best knowledge and belief up to Jan 1, 1880, since which time he has taken the boat Carrie Herrick and horses, the value of which will apply on said indebtedness. CARLON CHURCH.

LETTER OF CARLON CHURCH TO WARREN CHURCH.

FULTON, Dec., 1876.

WARREN CHURCH, New York City:

I was very much pleased with the account Wilson brought from New York in regard to your drinking and gambling. He says you are not doing either and have five or six hundred dollars in the bank. I had thought that you must have gambled and drank up what you had made as you did not send me any. I do not feel as bad in not getting the money as I should if you had fooled it away. I am glad you are sending your children to school. Libbie says that one of them is smart. I should not feel that the money I have let you have has been lost if I should not receive it back if I knew that your children would grow up and not disgrace the name. That is what I have let you have so much money for is on account of your children. I hope you will keep them in school and learn them to be honest and to do as they agree, let what will come. That is the way I made my money and I never knew a man to prosper any other way. You must be true to your friends and do as you agree. By so doing you will build up friends for yourself and also for your children. If not you and your family will be despised and shunned by all good people. Children always have to stand the disgrace of their parents. What I want is a mortgage on the boat so I can get what the boat makes, as you agreed I should have every dollar that she made. The best guarantee you can have for what I will do for you in the future is what I have done for you in the past.
CARLON CHURCH.

[The above appeared in last week's Patriot.]

Warren Church to Carlon Church.

Editor FULTON TIMES:

I saw in last week's issue of the Fulton Patriot a statement of what purported to be an account as between Warren Church and Carlon Church, and to give it an appearance of fairness and honesty, it was bolstered up by the affidavit of Carlon Church. Now I pronounce the whole statement as false and untrue, and call the attention of a fair-minded people to the following, and ask them to judge who stands in the wrong as to honesty, justice and right:

From 1859 until 1864 I faithfully served the said Carlon Church, and at a fair compensation it amounts to - - -	$1,565 00
1865. To 1-7 interest in a deceased brother's estate, - - -	100 00
1876. To 54 days labor with team, at $3 per day, - - -	162 00
1876. Money paid on mortgage, for which I hold a release in full, - - -	1,319 00
1880. To cash as per vouchers, -	850 00
1881. To 52 days labor with son and team, at $3 per day, -	156 00
	$4,152 00
1864. By 5 years board, washing and cash,	650 00
Balance due Warren,	$3,502 00

"CHATTEL MORTGAGE.

"WARREN CHURCH }
To CARLON CHURCH. }

"Mortgage dated April 10, 1876. Filed in town clerk's office April 25, 1876. Mortgage covers canal boat "Carrie Herrick," and given to secure the payment of the sum of $1,319 00, due one year from date.

"For value received, I hereby release all claims against Warren Church on account of the above described chattel mortgage, and I hereby declare the said mortgage satisfied and cancelled, and also release unto said Warren Church all claims or demands against him, of whatsoever kind, hereby acknowledging myself fully paid and satisfied by him of every and all claims against him: C. CHURCH.
"Dated October 6, 1876."

We have called attention to release of mortgage to me in 1876 by Carlon Church.

Oswego County—ss.:

Warren Church, of said county, being duly sworn, deposes and says that the above account is true and correct according to his own knowledge.
WARREN CHURCH.

Sworn to before me this 6th day of June, 1882.
JOHN E. PARKER,
Justice of the Peace.

Now, as to the letter that Carlon Church presents to the public, and by which he seeks to place himself before the public as a generous, whole-souled man, (and I say here the letter was dated January 7th, 1880, and not December, 1876, as printed in the Patriot, and that abbreviated,) and where he would hold me up to public censure as a gambler and drunkard in a spasm of anxiety, and entertain such a solicitous feeling for the welfare of my children in the next, and finally, as an exhibition of his well-known generosity, he mildly requests a mortgage on my boat that he might have every cent it makes. Now, in 1874, I, and Carlon Church bought the boat Carrie Herrick, for a stipulated price. I have run the said boat and have had it in my possession since that time, and have, during this time, paid Carlon Church every cent earned by the said boat, except what was actually necessary to support myself and family in an economical way. Trusting in the promises made by this man, Carlon Church, to our dead father, and relying upon him as most men would who were dealing with a supposed brother, I was not as careful to keep my receipts and papers as it seems Carlon was. He says he would be glad to have our matter arbitrated by outside parties. This I was willing to do last fall, as can be proven by Simeon Church, and he would not consent, and now it will be arbitrated by a competent court of justice, and I can assure Carlon Church that at the proper time all receipts, and other papers necessary to substantiate my just claims and rights, will be produced, and then probably there will be introduced some things that will tend to throw a very great light as to the reputation of someone who has borne (as they suppose) heretofore a good character for truth and veracity. Not wishing to show an undue anxiety about this matter I patiently await the final settlement of our affair.
Respectfully,
WARREN CHURCH.

NOTICE TO PATRONS.

The Rolling Stock milk dealers of Fulton and Oswego Falls held a meeting this day to consider the propriety of patrons, where they buy milk, in their alternating with their neighbors and then with dealers during the year. It was concluded that cheaper milk could be afforded if the patrons would continue throughout the year to buy of some one instead of different parties. The dealers in milk are at large expense to furnish a supply during the winter and sometimes costs more than is received, and we would like the continuance of winter customers through the summer, Therefore Resolved,

We respectfully and earnestly ask citizens who desire to take milk in the winter to continue during the summer as a condition precedent to dealing with us at all.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF FULTON.

"Patience" Friday evening.

It is said that a man is known by the sidewalk he keeps.

Edgar Briggs and wife of Detroit, Mich., are visiting friends in Fulton.

Mrs. John Maynard leaves to-morrow for a few weeks visit with friends in Canada.

A little daughter has arrived in the household of Mr. Henry Wilcox at South Granby.

WANTED—A competent girl, to cook, wash and iron. Apply to Mrs. D. Ramsden, First street.

On the first page of to-day's issue will be found a letter from a former Fultonian, Fr. Kenyon Jones.

All members of the G. A. R are requested to be present at the Armory next Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock. Fall in.

J. J. Bonney left Monday for Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, where he will employ himself during the summer. His family will join him in a few days.

Prof. W. N. Ferris and family of Pittsfield, Ill., are in Fulton for a short time, guests of Mr. E. C. Whitaker, and J. C. Gillespie, Mrs. Ferris' father.

☞ Will the lady who took the piece of lace from the Boston Bazaar on Monday evening, June 5th, please return the same at once and save exposure.

The Patriot says it is rumored that THE TIMES is threatened with a libel suit, growing out of its statement of the Morse-Smith affair. It is an error.

Levi Montague has returned to Fulton. Levi says he is just from China, and reports C. P. Tucker & Son's tea crop as exceeding any previous season in quantity.

Mr. M. D. French and the family of Barney Ferguson wish THE TIMES to thank their friends for the many kind and appreciable favors tendered them during their recent sad affliction.

W. C. Wheeler, editor of THE TIMES, accompanied by his wife, left Monday to attend the meeting of the New York State Press Association, which convenes in Jamestown to-day.

Mr. G. A. Burtch is a taxidermist of pronounced ability. He exhibited to THE TIMES a Wax-billed Coot that was mounted with rare skill. Mr. Burtch resides at No. 6 Seneca street, and is prepared to do work for the public.

Miss Dora Stewart of Albany, N. Y., was united in marriage, at the residence of her brother, Mr. M. A. Stewart of this village, this afternoon at 2 o'clock by Rev. Father Griffa of Oswego, to Mr. T. D. McNight of New York city.

Mrs. Mary E. Highriter, who has been in Boston attending the New England Conservatory of Music for the past year, returned to Fulton Saturday. It is rumored that she will soon return to Boston to make that city her home.

J. N. Peck, for a long time in the grocery of D. A. Ray & Co., and latterly in the employ of D. C. Skaden, has made a change. Mr. Peck is now in the employ of Robinson & Langdon, and would be pleased to see his friends at his new place.

This section was visited Saturday night by a very heavy rain, accompanied by sharp lightning and incessant and deafening thunder. The water in the river rose four inches before daylight Sunday morning, something unprecedented for the Oswego.

Friday afternoon Messrs. F. J. VanValkenburg and L. T. Richardson went down in the vicinity of VanBuren's Island bass fishing. Mr. Richardson was busied caring for the catches, as in the short space of two hours Van gathered in thirty-four fine specimens. Van is an adept casting a fly.

The Cayuga Chief, published at Weedsport, N. Y., celebrated its fifth anniversary with the last publication. The Chief is able, fearless and independent, and winds up a few remarks regarding its future policy with the following:

> We do not belong to our patrons
> Our paper is wholly our own.
> Whoever may like it, may take it;
> Who don't can just let it alone!

The approach to the lower bridge, between the Genesee mills and store house is being vigorously pushed. One of the trusses underneath has been removed and the earth excavoted to build an abutment. The work is in charge of James N. Clark, and his management of it is gratifying as he has obviated a suspension of travel across the lower bridge while the preliminary work is being done. The bridge will be of iron. W. S. Nelson & Co. pay two hundred dollars towards its construction.

SHINGLES FOR SALE.

A few thousand each of very nice pine, spruce and hemlock shingles will be sold cheap at McCULLY & Co's.

☞ Everything new and fresh at Smith's New Store in the Old Times Building.

☞ G. L. Smith would be pleased to see all his old customers and new ones at his Store in the old Times Building, Oneida street. 46

An Excellent Rendition.

If an audience assembled to witness delineation of character by neighbors, whose ability in any direction they think they are able to fathom, are not arch-critics, they are nothing. The leading characters in "Esmeralda" produced in Nichols Hall Friday evening by the Thespian Society of Zion church, were thoroughly and admirably sustained, and the large audience present highly entertained. The music by Andlefinger's orchestra was inspiring and first-class. The costumes from New York were complete, and the whole entertainment creditably managed. Hazel Conger, as 'Dora Desmond," gave evidence of special dramatic ability, as also of previous experience upon the stage. Miss Gertrude Stephens, as "Esmeralda;" Dora Smiddy, in Lydia Ann, and Phœbe Moyses, as "Kate Desmond," were faultless in their several roles. Messrs. Smiddy, John and H. Bacchus were thorough. The difficult and pleasing character of „Elbert Rogers," the poor old man with a termagant wife, was well depicted by Mr. G. W. Yates, his makeup and quaint dialect eliciting continuous applause. Come again.

"Patience" in Fulton.

The Henderson Comic Opera Company, consisting of twenty-six artists, will produce Gilbert & Sullivan's latest production "Patience," at Nichols Hall, Friday evening. The Johnstown Republican of June 1st, speaking of this company, says: "We have no hesitancy in pronouncing the company first-class in every respect. Mr. Henderson's Bunthorne was simply immense, eliciting the admiration of the entire audience. Mr. Stevens was equally good as the Idyllic Poet. Miss Edith Barton, as Patience, sustained the difficult role with great credit. She is a beautiful soprano, easy in her manner and faultless in vocalization. Her voice is full, round and sweet, and shows evidence of thorough training. Miss Essie Barton, Miss Helen Corlett, Miss Alice Thomas and Mis Rose Beaudet, as rapturous maidens, sustain their characters in a truly excellent and satisfactory manner. The situations of the piece are extremely ludicrous, keeping the audience in the best of humor from the beginning to the end. The company will return on Monday evening next, when they will produce Audran's celebrated comic opera "Olivette."

This is the first time that "Patience" has ever been announced for Fulton, and the indications point to an overflowing house. The company is first-class, and deserving of patronage.

The Detroit Free Press of last Sunday says: THE TIMES, of Fulton, N. Y., began its fifteenth year last week with the best show of live advertisements displayed in any eight column weekly reaching this office. The paper always looks clean, tidy and fresh, and the citizens of Fulton can't help but feel proud of it. Its local department cannot be excelled by any weekly in the Empire State.

They Backed Out.

Rev. Mr Lyon of the Protestant Methodist church, in Oswego Falls, was a disappointed man Sunday. Nine converts had arranged with him to receive the rite of baptism, by immersion. After donning robes and gowns a consultation was held and the whole party backed out much to the chagrin of the minister and would be spectators. It is not clear why they refrained from having the ceremony performed.

John Swan has severed his connection with the hardware firm of Sheridan & Baker.

Many beautiful head stones and monments are being put up in Mount Adnah this spring.

F. M. Baker is in New York as a delegate from Fulton to the Grand Lodge of Masons now in session.

J. W. Streeter, Mrs. Clarence Streeter and Mrs. B. R. Howe are in Penn Yan attending the State Sunday School Association.

Rev. Mr. Riggs will commence next Sunday evening the delivery of a series of sermons on the "Great Characters in Church History."

Monroe Sanford whose mind has been more or less disturbed for the past few years is to be sent to the asylum for the treatment of the insane.

Finley Sinclair and Herbert L. Lake are expected home this week from Cincinnati, Ohio. These gentlemen are in attendance at the Eclectic Medical Instistitute in that city. Mr. Lake graduated yesterday.

The collector for the village of Oswego Falls announces that he has received his warrant, and is ready to collect the taxes.

The O. D. A. club of Syracuse will play their opening game of the season with the Oswego Falls cricket club on the fair grounds next Saturday.

Mr. W. M. Craines, one of our tonsorial artists, will take unto himself a wife about July 1st. The fortunate lady resides in the north end of the village.

Mrs. H. S. Sperry left yesterday for Indianapolis, Ind., to join her daughter Hattie, who received an appointment there as stenographer a short time since.

A native Kerien will lecture at the Baptist church Saturday evening on the manners and customs of his native country, Burmah, at 8 o'clock. Admission 10 and 15 cents.

Pathmasters are required by law to see to it that all noxious weeds are removed from the highway before the first of July. They are to be cut the second time previous to the first of October.

The art rooms in Syracuse will close to-day for the season. They have been under the supervision of Miss Anna Carter of this village during the past winter, and her administration has been marked with success.

Giles Smith of Scranton, Pa., was in Fulton Monday to attend the funeral of his brother, Sidney M. Smith. He was accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. E. L. Oakford and son, Chas. R. Smith, who reside in the same city.

Apropos of the controversy about eel weirs catching black bass the game constable of this town says he has visited the weirs at all times of day and night during the past three years and never saw a black bass in them.

The Young Men's Catholic Association will give an excursion to Syracuse June 20th. A committee are in Syracuse today to perfect arrangements. Their excursions are always managed first class and well patronized.

Indications are that the Congregationalists will have a church in Oswego Falls. Geo. M. Case and B. R. Howe will each give $1,000 and others have pledged sums aggregating about $3,500. Rev. Mr. Kismoth of Seneca Falls will officiate in Howe's hall next Sunday, morning and evening.

Saturday Mrs. A. J. Thayer was preparing the noon day meal and was frying some pork steak. She cut off a small piece to sample it and in attempting to swallow the morsel it lodged in her throat nearly choking her to death before it could be removed. Physicians were summoned and much alarm was manifested. During its lodgment in her throat Mrs. Thayer suffered the most intense pain.

Mrs. Clarice Conger Coby, daughter of Mr. P. F. Conger, has been again admitted to the Paris Spring Salon, in spite of the great competition and critical examination works of art are subjected to. Mrs. C. S. Eggleston called upon Mrs. Coby, while in Paris, and from her we learn of the lady's almost unprecedented success. Mrs. Coby is now painting a full length life size portrait of Mrs. Emma Thursby, the singer.

Word has been received of the death of Norman A. Hubbard in San Francisco, Cal., May 26, of inflammation of the bowels. He was sick but three days. Mr. Hubbard was a son of the late James Hubbard, grandson of Asa Phillips and nephew of Mrs. Jane Broadwell who resides in Oswego Falls. He was 40 years of age. Mr. Hubbard left Fulton about twenty years ago. On the 9th of May he lost a daughter and another one lies at the point of death.

Chancellor Sims will not be present in the evening.

Murder in the First Degree.

Sam Williams (colored) of Auburn, who has been on trial at Lyons, for the murder of Hall at Sodus Point, last fall, has been found guilty of murder in the first degree. Williams was in Fulton a short time before the murder, accompanied by two colored friends, he playing the banjo, the others singing, and will undoubtedly be remembered by many in this loctiaty. He will be sentenced to-day.

Mrs. Cassie French, wife of M. E. French, died of consumption Saturday, at the residence of her father, Barney Ferguson, on Emory street, aged 26 yrs. She had been a sufferer from the dreaded disease for about a year, but so great was her hope in once more enjoying normal health that she did not yield to its steady and undermining march until three weeks prior to death. Mrs. French enjoyed a wide and pleasant acquaintance, and her untimely death is a source of sincere regret to her family and multitude of friends. Conscious until the final spark of life departed, she assured the friends gathered at her side that "all was well." A husband and one child survive her. Funeral was held yesterday, from the house, at 2 p. m., conducted by Rev. J. S. Riggs of the Presbyterian church. The remains were interred in Mt. Adnah.

C. W. Smith successor to Hubbard & Titus has closed out his stock of groceries and will return to his former home the latter part of this week, Cincinnatus, Cortland county. Trade did not meet his expectations.

The cold and wet weather is causing consternation among the farmers. Reports from various localities in neighboring towns show that potatoes are rotting in the ground, and in the immediate vicinity of Fulton wire worms are eating the corn before it scarcely sprouts.

We learn by the Union of Fort Atkinson, Wis., that Dr. H. B. Willard, a former resident of Gilberts Mills and Fulton, is a poet as well as a statesman. The Doctor has served with ability in the legislature of that state, and at the recent dedication of the city hall in Fort Atkinson read a poem that would be creditable even to Longfellow.

Hair Cutting Fifteen Cents.

I have opened a Barber Shop on Cayuga street, in the store vacated by Peter St. Peter. Everything is first-class and new. Hair cutting done in the best style for fifteen cents. Call in.

ANDREW LALONDE.

Mrs. A. P. Morse, the Oneida street confectioner, has instituted proceedings against Geo. L. Smith for slander. She claims $1,000 damages. She accuses Smith of charging her with being unchaste. Mr. Smith denies that he ever uttered a word defamatory to her character, and will fight the case to its end. Mrs. Morse has employed Mr. M. F. Stephens, and Mr. Smith is in the hands of H. C. Howe, Esq.

NOTICE OF DISSOLUTION.

The firm of LaLonde & LaPorte has been dissolved by mutual consent. Mr. Joseph LaLonde has opened a horse shoeing and general jobbing shop in building first door south of engine house First street, where he will be pleased to see his old friends and as many new ones as will find it convenient to call. 1w4

POST DANIEL F. SCHENCK.

AN OLD TIME MEETING OF THE "BOYS IN BLUE."

Post No. 271 Mustered in—A Rousing Camp Fire—Toasts that Warmed the Veterans—Spirit of 61 Still Lives.

Perhaps no town in the state responded more promptly or generously to the first call of President Lincoln for men to assist in subduing the then incipient war. They were asked to lay aside their usual avocations but for a few days as the noise of the guns fired from Fort Sumpter would be quieted and in a few days forgotten. It proved to be but the beginning of one of the most stubborn and prolonged wars of modern times—whose history is familiar to all. Not one-half of the brave men who left Fulton ever returned. Many of the survivors met last evening and formed a post of the Grand Army of the Republic, an organization composed only of those who participated in the war of the rebellion.

Post J. D. O'Brian, of Oswego, accompanied by the city band, and a delegation from post Gould, Phœnix were present and participated in the ceremonies. Post Daniel F. Schenck, No. 271, was mustered in by Major Thomas Matthews, of Oswego, consisting of the following named veterans:

W. J. Pentelow,
D. Hendrick,
N. H. Gilbert,
F. C. Mosher,
E. B. Abbey,
Geo. Ward,

Quartermaster Sergt.—N. H. Gilbert.
Sergt Major—H. H. Kendrick.

SOLDIER'S FARE AND CAMP FIRE.

The assembled posts, with many invited friends, repaired to Nichols hall where coffee and sandwiches, a peaceful soldier's food, was relished. The hall had the appearance of a genuine army mess room, regulation tin dishes and bare tables predominating, while squads of veterans made the building resound with camp fire melodies. Many were the laughable incidents recited, and also many were the unpleasant memories revived as the name of some dead comrade was mentioned.

TOASTS AND SONGS.

Rev. Dr. Tully of Oswego responded to "Our Country," in place of Rev. J. S. Riggs, who was absent on account of sickness. The reverend gentleman was in his happiest mood, and the vast and unlimited resources of "Our Country" was depicted with great vigor and warmth. "Our Flag" was paid a glowing tribute by Rev. E. Moyses of Zion church. Mr. N. H. Gilbert favored the veterans with "Tis Sweet to Be Remembered," followed by Capt. J. S. Palmer, who responded to "Our Fallen Comrades" in a brief and pleasant way, and was lustily cheered. "The Irish in Our Late War," was to have been responded to by Rev. Father Kearney, but owing to his absence T. B. White of Oswego complimented and eulogized them in a creditable manner. "America, the Home of All Nations" was taken in hand by Ex-Mayor M. P. Neal of Oswego, and then Mr. Geo. E. Smiddy, at the urgent request of the "boys," sung the "Hearts of Oak," which was received with such favor that he was forced to appear again to quiet the "vets." "The Press" was responded to by Mr. Fred Bennett, of the Patriot. He recited the dangers the representatives of the press underwent to give accounts of battles, and also the prominent part the press played in fostering sentiment that precipitated the war. His response was well received, and at the conclusion was loudly cheered. The final, "The Grand Army of the Republic," Mr Melvin F. Stephens responded to. Its past, present and future were clearly painted, supplemented with a terse and well delivered address.

Post Schenck thanked Post O'Brien and Gould for their kindness, and the meeting was brought to a close at 12:30. Post Schenck accompanied Post O'Brien to the depot, where a mutual cheering occurred, and the evening's work ended.

Comrade Chas. Wilson furnished bread for the G. A. R. last evening.

Sidney M. Smith died June 2d at 4 p. m., the immediate cause of his death being hemorrhage of an ulcer in the inguinal gland. His death was not unexpected though it came suddenly at last. Mr. Smith was born in Warren, Herkimer Co., in 1816, and when a mere boy removed with his parents to Fulton where he uninterruptedly as boy and man spent over fifty years. He was closely identified with some of our important industries in former years, but lately occupied an important position in the E. W. Ross shops. Mr. Smith was a quiet industrious man, a valuable citizen and kind neighbor. A widow and three daughters survive him and five brothers. The brothers reside, two in New York, one in Scranton, Pa., and one each in Knoxville and Bristol, Tenn.

Funeral was held from his late residence on Third street, Monday, at half past ten and was largely attended. Rev E. C. Bruce of the M. E. church and Rev J. S. Riggs, of the Presbyterian church officiating. His fellow workman from the E. W. Ross shops attended the funeral in a body and accompanied the remains to Mount Adnah. J. G. Benedict, Samuel Green, A. Bristol and James Smith acted as bearers.

SAMARITAN

NERVINE!

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Epileptic Fits, Spasms, Convulsions, St Vitus Dance, Viritigo, Insanity, Apoplexy, Paralysis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all Nervous Diseases. This infallible remedy will positively eradicate every species of Nervous Derangement, and drive them away from whence they came, never to return again. It utterly destroys the germs of disease by neutralizing the hereditary taint or poison in the system, and thoroughly eradicate the disease, and utterly destroys the cause.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Female Weakness, General Debility, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Painful Menstration, Ulceration of the Uterus, Internal Heat, Gravel, Inflamation of the Bladder, Irritability of the Bladder. For Wakefulness at Night, there is no better remedy. During the change of life no Female should be without it. It quiets the Nervous System and gives rest comfort and nature's sweet sleep.

SVMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Alcholism, Drunkenness and the habit of Opium Eating. These degrading habits are by far the worst evils that have ever befallen suffering humanity. Thousands die annually from these noxious drugs. The drunkard drinks liquor not because he likes it but for the pleasure of drinking and treating his friends, little thinking that he is on his road to ruin. Like the Opium Eater, he first uses the drug in small quantities as a harmless antidote. The soothing influence of the drug takes strong hold upon its victim, leading him on to his own destruction. The habits of Opium Eating and Liquor Drinking are precisely what eating is to alimentiveness, as over-eating first inflames the stomach, which redoubles its cravings until it paralyzes both the stomach and appetite. So every drink of liquor or dose of opium, instead of satisfying, only adds to its fierce fires, until it consumes the vital force and then itself. Like the gluttonous tape-worm, it cries "Give, give, give!" but never enough until its own rapacity devours itself. Samariton Nervine gives instant relief in all such cases. It produces sleep, quiets the nerves, builds up the nervous system, and restores body and mind to a healthy condition.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Nervous Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Asthma, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Syphilis, diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases of the urinary organs. Nervous debility, caused by the indiscretions of youth, permanently cured by the use of this valuable remedy. To you, young middle-aged and old men, who are covering your sufferings as with a mantle by silence, look up, you can be saved by timely efforts, and make ornaments to society, and jewels in the crown of your Maker, if you will. Do not keep this a secret longer, until it saps your vitals, and destroys both body and soul. If you are thus afflicted, take DR. RICHMOND'S Samaritan Nervine. It will restore your shattered nerves, arrest premature decay, impart tone and energy to the whole system.

SAMARITAN NERVINE.

Is for sale by druggists everywhere, or may be had direct from us. Those who wish to obtain further evidence of the curative properties of Samaritan Nervine will please enclose a 3 cent postage stamp for a copy of our Illustrated Journal of Health, giving hundreds of testimonials of cure from persons who have used the medicine, and also their pictures photographed after their restoration to perfect health. STONES IN THE KIDNEYS

AND BLADDER EXPELLED—LONG SUFFERING OF ONE OF TROY'S—BEST PEOPLE —A LUCKY MAN.

It is by no means a strange thing that Dr. Kennedy should have received the following letter. By reading it you will see in one minute why James Andrews was thankful;

TROY, N. Y. April, 8, 1882.

Dr D. Kennedy Rondout N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—Until within a recent date I had for several years suffered greatly from gravel, called by the doctors the brick-dust sediment. For about a year past this sediment has not passed off in the usual quantity, but has accumulated, causing me untold pain. Having heard of "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" I tried it in my case, and after using about one and one-half bottles, I voided a stone from the bladder, of an oval shape, 7-16 of an inch long, and rough on its surface. I send yo the largest piece that you may see of what it is composed. since then I have felt no pain. I now consider myself cured, and cannot express my thankfullness and gratitude for so signal a deliverance from a terrible a disease. You have my consent to use this letter, should you wish to do so, for the benefit of other sufferers.

Yours Truly,
JAMES ANDREWS.
No 10 Marshal St, Ida Hill.

When we consider that the medicine which did this service for Mr. Andrews cost only one dollar a bottle, it would seem that persons in like fashion can afford the expense of testing its virtues. Get it of your druggist, or address Dr. David Kennedy Rondout, N. Y. "Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" for sale by all druggists.

A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN.

[From the Boston Globe.]

Messrs. Editors:—

The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," as some of her correspondents love to call her. She is zealously devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass.

For Kidney Complaint of either sex this compound is unsurpassed as abundant testimonials show.

"Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills," says one writer, "are the best in the world for the cure of Constipation, Biliousness and Torpidity of the liver. Her Blood Purifier works wonders in its special line and bids fair to equal the Compound in its popularity.

All must respect her as an Angel of Mercy whose sole ambition is to do good to others.

Yes, was the reply, and it certainly is one of the best appointed and most attractive places ever opened in our village. Such is the fact. This ever popular place has been thoroughly Repainted and Remodeled so that it is now more pleasant and attractive than ever before. The partitions have been removed, the Rooms made Larger so that any that may wish to go to a First-Class Restaurant can do so now and can go into a private entrance to lunch alone, separate and alone. He has also a Billiard & Pool Room attached, entirely separate from Bar or Lunch Room. The Tables are of Babcock's best make, handsomely gotten up and have the Celebrated Magic Double Action Cushion which are so popular with all lovers of Billiard and Pool. All that money can do fo make Van's place more popular than ever has been done. Only the best of everything is kept. Call and look at his bill of fare and know for yourselves the Lunch Van gets up and you will be surprised to learn that he keeps on hand everything in the shape of Lunch that could be got at Delmonicos. He is prepared to get up Lunch for Picnicing and Fishing Parties on the shortest notice in Elegant Style and at very reasonable rates. Now I will give you a small list of his lunches that he gets up: Oysters, in every style; Clam Chowder, Sardines, Lobsters, Crabs, Salmon, Mackerel, Anchovey Chicken, Boiled Ham, Pig Feet Stew, Pork and Beans, Sandwiches of all kinds, Pies and Cheese, Tea and Coffee, and other things and all very cheap. Call and get some of his lunches and you will be more than pleased at the price, so much so that you will say to yourself well I did not know before that people could get such dishes for so small a figure and up here in the country. I have found the place to get my lunch from now out. The prices are what catches me.

Is Crime Hereditary?

The question as to whether crime was hereditary came up in New York police court, and Justice Patterson re-called two instances as follows;

"I knew a gentlemam who was well-to-do in business. He was a church member, and stood high in the community. He had a most excellent wife, one son and a daughter. After the birth of the daughter the father took to drink, left the church and became an inveterate drunkard. He had six children after this—three sons and three daughters. All six turned out bad. The three sons went to State prison, and two of the daughters' husbands were also sent to State prison, and they were bad themselves. The first son and daughter were models of recitude, and the son did all he could for his unfortunate brothers.

"The other day I had 'Red Fogarty' and his wife before me at an examination in Jefferson Market court, about a silk dress which had been stolen from a house and sold by Mrs. Fogarty to the woman who was arrested with the dress on. Well, Mrs. Fogarty carried a bouncing boy with her, a child of about two years—a noisy fellow. He did not cry, but roared, as if angry, and chattered. I was passing through the examination room; Mrs. Fogarty was standing with the boy in her arms. As I passed my diamond stud glistened a little, and the little fellow made a grab at my shirt-front. I caught his hand and put it away, when he grew perfectly ill-natured and mad because I did so. The badness was born in him."

☞ Make your old things look like new by using the Diamond Dyes, and you will be happy. Any of the fashionable colors for 10 cents.

"PRO BONO PUBLICO"

It is a remarkable fact that while thousands of people refuse to read paib puffs of worthless nostrums, none skid over Dr. Swayne's little squib about his Ointment for itching piles that itch so much at night. The people well know that it is published for their benefit, in other words it is pao bono publico. May its far reaching effects be peruated to the end af time. 3w4

The will of the late Cornelius J. Vanderbilt, of New York, who committed suicide a short time ago, is being contested by his sister, Mrs. Mary A. Lebau Berger. He left an estate valued at $750,000, not one penny of which went to any person by the name of Vanderbilt. Mrs. Berger alleges that Cornelius, at the time the will was executed, was a resident of Connecticut, where all his real estate was situated; that the writing was not his last will; that its execution was not his voluntary act, and that he was not of sound mind at the time he signed it. She alleges that the document was procured by fraud practiced on Cornelius by Geo. N. Terry, to whom he left $120,000, and others.

HOW TO GET SICK.—Expose yourself day and night, eat too much without exercise, work too hard without rest, doctor all the time, take all the vile nostrums advertised, and then you will want to know

HOW TO GET WELL.—Which is answered in three words—Take Hop Bitters! 3w2

GENTLEMEN—I have been afflicted with kidney troubles for years, and in October last it culminated in Bright's Disease. I was confined to my bed for several months, and had given up all hopes or desire to recover, when I began the use of Your Remedy. It gave me immediate relief, and I am now, and have been since the 1st of April, constantly engaged at my business, which I owe to your Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. The doctors all thought I was going to die, and when I improved so fast, several of the neighbors called in wonder to see me, and many of my friends are using your remedies.

Edwards, a negro murderer, attempted to escape from the Union county, N. C., jail Saturday. He knocked down the sheriff with a piece of timber, and attacked three men who came to the sheriff's assistance. One had his hand and arm broken by blows from the timber, and Berty Binford was knocked down. The negro sprang upon and attempted to choke him. Binford placed a revolver to the negro's side and fired four shots. The negro then arose and again rushed at Binford with the blood gushing from his wounds. He fell a moment later and died. Compensation.

BY MRS. E. R. HAYDEN.

Oh! the compensating springs, oh! the balancing of life,
Hidden away in the workings under the seeming strife,
Knowing the fret and the friction, waiting the whirl of force,
Evolving the truest power, to each unerring source.

How shall we gauge the whole, who can only guess a part,
How can we read the life, when we can not spell the heart,
How shall we measure another, we who can never know,
From the jutting above the surface, the depths of the vein below.

Even our present way, is known to ourselves alone,
Hight and abyss and torrent, flower and thorn and stone;
But we gaze on another's path as a far-off mountain scene,
Scanning the outlined hills, but never the vales between.

Ah! If we knew it all, we should surely understand,
That the balance of joy and sorrow is held by an even hand,
That the scale of success or loss, shall never overflow,
And that compensation is twined with the lot of high and low.

The easy path in the low land, hath little of grand or new,
But a toilsome ascent leadeth to a wide and glorious view;
Peopled and warm is the valley, lonely and chill the height,
But the path that is nearest the storm-cloud is nearest the stars of light.

Launched on the foaming stream that bears along like a dart,
There is danger of rapid and rock, there is tension of muscle and heart;
Glide on the easy current, monotonous, calm and slow,
You are spared the quiver and strain in the safe and quiet flow.

Oh! the sweetness that dwells in the harp of many strings,
While each all vocal with love, in tuneful harmony rings;
But, oh! the wail and the discord, when one and another is rent,
Tongueless, broken or lost, from the cherished instrument.

For rapture of love is linked with the pain or fear of loss,
And the hand that takes the crown, must ache with many a cross,
Yet he who hath never a conflict, hath never a victor's palm,
And only the toilers know the sweetness of rest and calm.

Only between the storms can the Alpine traveler know,
Transcendent glory of earth, a marvel of gleam and glow;
Had he the brightness unbroken, of cloudless summer days,
This had been dimmed by the dust, and the balm of brooding haze.

Who would dare the choice, neither or both to know,
The finest giver of joy, or the agony-thrill of woe;
Never the exquisite pain, then never the exquisite bliss,
For the heart that is still to that, can never be strong to this.

Great is the peril or toil, if the glory or gain be great,
Never an earthly gift, without responsible weight;
Never a treasure, without a following shade of care,
Never a power, without a lurk of subtle snare.

Then hush, oh! hush, for the Father knows what thou knowest not
The need of the thorn and the shadow, linked with the fairest lot;
Knows the wisest exemption, from many an unseen snare,
Knows what will keep thee nearest, knows what thou couldst not bear.

Hush, oh! hush, for the Father, portionest as He will,
To all His beloved children, and shall they not be still?
Is not His will the wisest, is not His choice the best,
And in perfect acquiescence, is there not perfect rest?

Hush, oh! hush, for the Father, whose ways are true and just,
Knoweth, and careth, and loveth, and waits for thy perfect trust;
The cup He is slowing filling, will soon be full to the brim,
And infinite compensation, forever be found in Him.

Hush, oh! hush, for the Father, hath fullness of joy in store,
Treasures of power and wisdom, and pleasures forever more;
Blessings and honor and glory, endless infinite bliss,
Child of His love and His choice, oh! cannot thou wait for this?

What a Fall Was There.

Seldom even in this country of wonderful changes has there been such a fall as that of Franklin J Moses, who yesterday was sentenced in New York to confinement in the penitentiary for a period of six months for obtaining money by fraudulent representations. On the breaking out of the war of the rebellion no young man in the south had brighter prospects than Moses, who belonged to one of the leading families, was handsome, talented and courted by the beauty of the state. The damnable doctrine of Calhoun was inculcated in the young fellow, and shortly after the Palmetto state voted to recede from the Union he pulled down the American flag and trampled it in the dust. Like all the other fiery young men of South Carolina he entered the Confederate army and fought to the end of the war. When reconstruction commenced he allied himself with the rascally "carpet bag" element, was chosen a member of the legislature, afterward became speaker of the assembly, and finally was made governor. No man's hand was deeper in the pockets of the tax-payers than that of Moses, and although the people knew he was robbing them they did not cast him aside, for he was brilliant, glib of tongue and a hail fellow with everybody. But at last a change came, and the rascals who had it in their power to make Republicanism in the south respectable, but failed and made it odious, were driven from power and from the state they had despoiled, and compelled to seek refuge in the north. South Carolina suffered no more than she should for her murderous blow at the Union, but the infliction should have taken some other form than open daylight robbery such as was practiced by Scott, Moses and Chamberlain. When Moses was compelled to fly, he made his way to Washington, but he met with no favor there and he drifted on to New York, where he squandered his ill-gotten gains and then commenced living "off his wits," as too many men do in this country. If the young fellow had made an effort to reform, and had settled down in earnest to earning a livelihood by his profession, law, he would have found those willing and able to assist him, but he was on the downward grade without brakes and he went from bad to worse until to-day finds him a felon in a penitentiary. There is something peculiarly sad in the downfall of this man, but the lesson it teaches should not be lost upon the young men who strive to gain wealth and power by other than honest means.

A Tale of a Shirt.

A tale of a shirt may not be very sentimental, but one told of the length of time Henry Clay Dean, the great Iowa statesman, wore a garment, is at least characteristic, suggestive and interesting. Gen. Sherman and Dean had been friends for years, and when Sherman became general and Dean happened to be in Washington, the latter, naturally enough felt a desire to renew the acquaintance. So he called at Sherman's house, and was received by the general with open arms. They talked over old times, and nothing would do but Dean must stay to dinner. The chronicle continues in this strain:

"But, general," remonstrated Mrs. Sherman in her husband's ear, "I can't have such a dirty looking fellow at my table; can't you spruce him up a little?" The general said he'd fix that, and so at an opportune moment he hustled Mr. Dean up stairs, ransacked a bureau and produced a clean shirt for him to put on. Mrs Sherman was mollified, and the dinner was really a charming affair, for there is no more delightful, entertaining and instructive conversationalist than Henry Clay Dean. One year after this event General Sherman was at the Lindell hotel, St Louis with his family. A card was brought up bearing Henry Clay Dean's name. Mrs Sherman was very much pleased. "He is such a charming talker, we must have him to dinner. Only you must see that he looks presentable." These were madam's words to the warrior. So Sherman welcomed Dean, and, just before going to dinner, slipped him into a side room and gave him a clean shirt to wear. Dean doffed his coat and vest and, after a brief struggle divested himself of the shirt he had on—a soiled, grimy, black thing that looked as if it had seen long and hard sevice. Then they all went down to dinner, and Mr. Dean was more charming than ever, and Mrs Sherman was in ecstasies. The next day as Mrs Sherman was getting her husband's duds and clothes together, preparatory to packing them for the onward march, she gave a sort of wild, haunted scream. "What is it, my dear?" called the general from the next room. "Just come in here for a minute," replied Mrs Sherman between faint gasps. There stood Mrs Sherman holding in her left hand the begrimed shirt Henry Clay Dean had left. With her right hand she pointed to certain initials on the lower edge of the bosom. The initials read "W. T. S." It was the identical shirt General Sherman had loaned Henry Clay Dean in Washington twelve months before.

LANGUAGE OANNOT DESCRIBE IT.

Mr. Robert Gould, book-keeper for Walker & Maxey, who are lumber dealers, recently said to our representative: "About one year ago I was taken with a genuine sciatica. I employed the best physicians, but they could only relieve me for the moment. Einally I used St. Jacob's Oil, and it effected a complete cure."

[Kennebec Reporter, Gardiner, Me.

In China.

There is one custom in the Celestial Empire that we would like to see turned loose here. Boys in China are not supposed to be responsible until they arrive at about the age of twenty years, and their parents are held accountable for all their crookedness, just the same as the owner of any other dangerous animal is held responsible for damages.

Supposing a boy walks up and throws a stone through your bay window that shatters a fine calla and busts the statue of the Sweet Singer of Michigan, you do not go out and chase him four blocks with an iron rake and club him until he gets out of reach, but you just get an old hoe handle that swings easy and you search out the boy's parents and wear them out with that hoe-handle and mix them up with the sand. Then if the boy don't behave himself you can go to other relatives of his, and gradually enlarge the circle of your acquaintance, until you have mauled the entire relationship, even including the old grandparents of the boy, and if any of these people resist they are subject to imprisonment.

This law, although apparently stringent, is a good one. It makes parents take more interest in their children and look out for them more accurately. It encourages parents to know where their boys are, and to keep their eyes on them more than they do here, in Laramie. Why, if that law were to go into force here, some men we know would have to take an arnica bath twice a day and they wouldn't have a whole bone in their body. We like to see a bright, active boy, with good health and sound lungs, but the thriving blossom that will develop into a Jesse James, we have no use for.

If the Chinese law could be enforced here against those parents who are breeding up a squad of hoodlums, we would not weep. It would be pretty active work for the avenger and his hoe handle, but it would institute a reform at least. As it is now, a building cannot be left unoccupied over night before every pane of glass is broken and the walls smashed in. Now, if the owner had the right to climb the male parent of those boys and knock his shoulder blades through his spleen and tangle his works all up so that hereafter his food wouldn't be any benefit to him, it might arouse an interest in his children so that he would make them an ornament to society.

You can't do much with a strange boy, anyhow. If you spank him with an old window shutter, he goes home and tells his father, and the old man tells him to go right back and do the same thing and he will stand by him. Then the boy returns and repeats, and you start after him with the intention of killing him, but as he turns the corner a quarter of a mile away and puts his thumb on his nose and waves his fingers in the air, you control your brutal temper and go home.

That's the reason why in twenty years from now it will be a bitter cold day when the telegraph doesn't give us the particulars of twenty-seven murders and thirteen train robberies.

JUDGE MEN BY THEIR WORKS.

A man is judged in this life by his works, and in this connection it may be inopportune to add, that Dr Swayne has accomplished more good through the medium of his accomplish more good through the medium of his Ointment for skin diseases, than has the entire school of physicians combined. "Its an ill wind that blows nobody good." What the physicians have lost Dr Swayne has gained. 3w4

Fashion Notes.

Terra cotta color is popular.

Terra cotta color has come out in many shades.

Gloves a yard long are imported to wear with dresses that have short sleeves.

Strong red is worn in costumes on the street. Acquaintance with it makes it seem handsome.

A dark red parasol for general wear, a white parasol for dress, and a black one for use are the popular choice.

White flannel costumes, trimmed with narrow titan braid, in white, black and colors, are being made up for seaside wear.

Puffed plastrons, with the puffs shirred horizontally, give stylish finish to dress corsages, but puffed sleeves detract from the effect.

Sateen, in French porcelain designs, is taking the place, to a great extent, of foulard silk in fanciful costumes for the house and watering-place wear.

Superb mantles for church and for visiting are made of black grenadine, with brocaded velvet figures of great size, and silk hand-made Spanish lace for trimming.

The mantelet in highest request for general service, is of modified dolman design, most frequently made of ecru French cloth of light weight, trimmed with chenille fringe.

Square neckerchiefs, of ciel blue or pink mousseline de soie, with scallops and vines wrought in rosebud or violet pattern, are worn with white muslin or with black dresses, and the effect is very pretty.

Stripes of satin alternating with checked stripes are in great favor for the pleated flounces of walking dresses. The overdress is then made of the plain color of the satin stripe, and may be either of satin or cashmere.

Late costumes for young ladies in their teens, have the skirt all around tucked two-thirds its depth, and the tucking continued on the back to the edge of the basque; with a short apron draped in wavy curved upreared folds.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC ENDORSEMENT.
GORHAM, N. H., July 14, 1879.

Gents—Whoever you are, I don't know; but I thank the Lord and feel grateful to you to know that in this world of adulterated medicines there is one compound that proves and does all it advertises to do, and more. Four years ago I had a slight shock of palsy, which unnerved me to such an extent that the least excitement would make me shake like the ague. Last May I was induced to try Hop Bitters. I used one bottle, but did not see any change; another did so change my nerves that they are now as steady as they ever were. It used to take both hands to write, but now my good right hand writes this. Now, if you continue to manufacture as honest and good an article as you do, you will accumulate an honest fortune, and confer the greatest blessing on your fellow-men that was ever conferred on mankind.

WEAVERS in the Aarmony mills at Cohoes refuse to go to work under the per cent reduction. Three thousand operatives are idle.

THERE is a probability of letter postage being reduced to two cents. The postmaster-general favors it and there is a growing sentiment in its favor in Congress.

JOHN H. STARIN wants the nomination for governor on the republican ticket. He has started a boom for himself by giving 10,000 members of the G. A. R. in New York city a free excursion.

THE Northern Mutual telegraph and telephone company, incorporated Saturday, will connect New York city with Syracuse, Oswego, Ogdensburg Buffalo, Elmira Binghamton and Albany.

THE Utica Herald says Superintendent of Public Works Dutcher is down on Long Island looking for canal breaks. More likely in the interest of Cornell to prevent political breaks for the multitude of gubernatorial candidates.

THE Utica Observer says the bronze medals are ready to be distributed to the forty-two faithful from New York state who stood by Grant at Chicago. Barnum offers any delegate one hundred dollars per day to ride Jumbo in the street procession with a "306" medal dangling from his neck.

STRIKES appear to be the order of the day. The high price of provisions, fuel, clothes and rent and the failure of wages to voluntarily advance to meet the increased cost of living, is causing the mechanics and laborers in many places to force an increase by a total suspension of work for a few days. While strikes are generally to be deplored they are oftentimes necessary to teach successful corporations to respect the cause of their prosperity.

A SAD story of destitution, owing to the failure of the crops last year, comes from Patrick county, which is in a remote and mountainous part of Virginia. It is reported that 5,000 people are starving. A number of women and children have already died, and there are 300 at Patrick court house who have not had hardly anything to eat for two or three days at a time. The citizens of Dansville have organized a relief expedition, and will forward supplies at once.

THE United States Senate has passed a bill amending the homestead act so as to require but three years actual residence instead of five as it now is to perfect title to the land in the occupant.

A FIFTEEN year old boy named John Tribbett was lynched in Red Eye, Minn., Friday for the murder of two surveyors a week previous. He followed them into the woods and concealing himself attacked them with a gun. He then robbed his victims and started for Montana. He was arrested in Bismark, Dak. returned to the scene of his crime and lynched. His taste for murder was cultivated by reading trashy literature and the height of his ambition was to go west and join the cow boys. He's gone.

JOHN I. DAVENPORT is reported to have abandoned the search for the author of the Morey letter, a letter purporting to have been written by the late president, when in congress, to a manufacturer in Massachusetts regarding Chinese labor, and which was made public a few days prior to the late presidential election and pronounced a base forgery. It was a cleverly executed bit of rascalty. It is hoped the perpetrator may eventually be brought to light. The national republican committee have spent $20,000 up to date in "hunting the rascal down."

In Syracuse Monday the common council passed a $10,000 school appropriation over the veto of the mayor.

Mr. M. H. Brando will sever his connection with the Syracuse house he has represented for many years, to accept a more responsible and lucrative position with a firm of tea importers in New York city. He will be resident salesman for New England, and will enter upon his duties about July 1st. Mr. Brando has resided in Fulton for many years, and is a valuable and honorable citizen. His family will not remove from town at present.

Prompt Payment.

MR. GEO. H. BROWN, Sup't Prudential Ins. Co. of America—Dear Sir: Please convey my thanks to the president and directors of your company for their prompt payment of the amount insured by the policy on the life of my son, Chas. A. Hoffman, who died yesterday morning. Your agent, Mr. William Georgeson, was only notified at 2:15 p. m. to-day. Yours respectfully,

ALBERT HOFFMAN,

Mr. H. Gwyn is fairly settled in his New Grocery Store, next to Dr. Bacon's office. His Goods are Fresh, First-Class and Cheap. He invites his friends to visit him and inspect his stock feeling he will be able to suit the most exacting as to quality and price. Fresh vegetables every day. 52t7

Mrs Blanchard is quite low.

Master George Ney is slowly convalescing.

J. J. Keller of Syracuse spent Sunday in Fulton.

Grapes in this locality are said to be nearly all winter killed.

Mrs. W. W. Hall is spending a few days with her daughter in Jordan.

Water is being pumped out of the lower quary. Work will commence as soon as practicable.

A birth day surprise was given by Mrs. H. C. Beals last evening in honor of her sister Miss Kate Flint.

Hon. Neil Gilmour, superintendent of public instruction will make his official visit to Oswego to-morrow.

Moses Summers, who was injured in New York, is reported this morning to be no better. But little hopes are entertained for his recovery.

A poem on the first page of to-day's issue from the pen of a Fulton lady is worthy of perusal, and THE TIMES would be pleased to hear from her again

Mrs. Zenas Emory has sold the Burlington, (N. J.) Enterprise, a paper she has conducted since the death of her husband. She will make Fulton friends a visit.

Miss Ida Perault returned to San Francisco, Cal., yesterday. A party was given in her honor at the residence of Mr. Jno. H. Case Friday evening, where she was a guest while in Fulton.

The trustees of the Dempster grove camp meeting have changed the time for holding the meeting from the 19th of August to the 23d. It will continue one week. Gates will be open on Sunday.

The rendition of the opera of "Olivette" at Nichols hall last evening by the Henderson Opera Company was listened to by a comparatively small but appreciative audience. The company merits much better support than they received.

The collector of Oswego Falls will be at Draper's grocery, upper Oswego Falls, Saturday from 1 p. m., to 4 p. m., for the purpose of receiving taxes; and at the store of E. J. Cronyn, lower Oswego Falls Friday of this week between the same hours.

Miss Addie Ball has returned from Jordan and Weedsport where she has had a class in art embroidery. She will instruct people in this locality who wish to learn the art besides doing all kinds of stamping and needle work. She resides at No. 55 Oneida street.

In speaking of the rendition of "Esmeralda" last week THE TIMES inadvertently omitted mention of the part taken by Mr. O. P. Conger. His delineation of character was faultless, and the conception, management and highly satisfactory result of the entertainment is solely due to his indomitable perseverance and good judgment.

NEIGHBORING NEWS.

Sixty cents to Syracuse and return next Tuesday.

Visit The Famous 2 & 3 Wieting Blk. Syracuse if in need of clothing; it will pay you

Wm Teller, of Syracuse, who shot Nellie Tart, has been released from the penitentiary upon $4,000 bail. Nellie Tart is in Oswego.

The Free Methodists of central New York hold their annual camp meeting in the Grove of Wm. H. Folts, one mile east of Herkimer, for a week, commencing June 21.

James Harvey, the recently deposed chief of police in Syracuse, has been appointed on the force to fill the place of officer Brothers who was set aside for drunkenness.

An attempt was made a few nights since to burn the Cody school house at South Granby. Kerosene oil had been poured on some books and ignited. The motive is unknown.

Friday Richard Bradley was drowned in the river at Phœnix while trying to cross the river with a skiff load of wood. The body was recovered after being in the water about three hours. He was 21 years of age and unmarried. His father met his death by drowning about five years ago.

Seven liquor dealers were tried in Clyde, Wayne Co., last week for violating the excise law, and in every case the verdict was "no cause for action." Circumstantial evidence is generally sufficient to convict a person on trial for murder but proof positive is to weak for the average jury to convict a violator of the excise laws.

About 5 o'clock Friday morning a fire broke out in Bard's livery stable Mexico, which was totally destroyed, together with a blacksmith and shoe shop and two buildings in the rear of the livery stable. Loss about $15,000. The burned buildings were generally well insured. The day before the citizens voted down a proposition to purchase a steam fire engine.

Cramer E. Mattison walked into a farmer's yard in Scriba one day last week and placing a halter about a horse's neck started to walk off with it. For supreme audacity Mattison takes the medal. He was arrested and is in jail in Oswego awaiting judicial action. He is a stranger in these parts and has only been out of Auburn prison a few weeks where he served a sentence for horse stealing.

Pulling a chair from under a person about to attempt to occupy it is not only a foolish pastime, but a dangerous trick. The eight year old daughter of George Cook of Oswego, was about to sit in a chair in the stocking factory where she was employed, about four weeks ago, when a companion pulled it from beneath her and she fell to the floor. Blood vessels in the lungs and stomach seem to be ruptured and the girl is seriously hurt. Great fears are entertained for her recovery.

Francis Earl Bryant.

The Amsterdam, N. Y., Recorder has found what it calls "a being who is a combination of the sexes in form and dress, wearing the hat, vest, coat and boots of a man, with the skirt of a woman, and her hair cut short and parted on one side. Her name is Earl Bryant. She came to Amsterdam from Fulton a short time ago, and found employment in the Greene knitting mill, where she is at present working. Her form and figure are in the main masculine, but her voice is so soft and womanly and her hands are small as those of a female. Her features are coarse and resemble those of a male. She states that she adopts the style of apparel that she wears in order that no one may be deceived by her, and that she may not appear as a woman or a man, as would be the case if she attired herself entirely in the dress worn by either sex. She is very quiet in demeanor, and is well educated and refined. She seems to regret her unfortunate condition, but makes the best of it, being compelled to work for a living."

The Cheese Market.

[From the Utica Herald.]

UTICA, June 12.—To-days sales pretty much used up the fodder cheese, and probably two-thirds of the stock sold is of the grass make. Some factories sold down to May 28 and some to June 1. Transactions were as follows: 119 boxes at 10⅝c.; 660 boxes at 10¾c.; 1,375 boxes at 11c.; 4,255 boxes at 11¼c.; and 394 boxes at private terms. Sales, 6,957 boxes; commissions, 1,636; total, 8,593 boxes. Ruling price 11¼c.; Transactions of corresponding date last year amounted to 10,604 boxes, with a leading price of 9c. In 1880, the leading price was 11½c.

LITTLE FALLS, June 12, 1882—Prices to-day, fully one-half cent better than last week. Following are the transactions:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price
3	132	9¾ cents.
8	455	10¼ "
15	588	10½ "
10	492	10¾ "
21	876	11 "
65	4,013	11¼ "
12	587	commission
134	7,143
Farm dairies	771
Total	7,914

FARM DAIRIES.—There were 771 boxes farm cheese sold at 7½ and 11c.; the bulk at 10 and 11c., four or five lots at the latter figure.

BUTTER.—Seventy-eight packages of butter sold at 24 and 26½c. Three or four lots creamery sold at 25½ and 26½c. the farm dairy butter going at 24 and 25c.

FULTON, June 12—Seventeen factories on register. About 1,000 boxes offered, only about half of which sold at 11c, the balance being not yet properly cured. J. Hoose of Mexico and S. Osborn and Wm G. Gage of Fulton were the purchasers.

☞ J. Cooley Tucker has received a fresh invoice of Tea and Coffee and a new coffee mill. Call in and see him. 3tf

A Tragedy in an Insane Asylum.

David Poulton will be recollected by many of our readers as a refractory prisoner in the Onondaga county penitentiary at Syracuse. He escaped from that institution and was recaptured. He was severely—brutally it is said—punished for making an escape, and soon after attacked a keeper who fired several shots at him, inflicting serious wounds. He was examined by a commission, pronounced insane, and February 9, 1882, was removed to the insane asylum at Utica.

He was very gloomy; thought there were conspiracies against him; that people were trying to poison him, and that a gang of horse thieves were trying to get him out of the way. He was never violent, except on one occasion when out walking. He then tried to run away, resisted attempts to take him back to the asylum, and attacked the attendants after they had succeeded in getting him into the house. Afterwards he said he did not wish to hurt anyone, but expressed apprehensions of personal danger, giving utterances to some delusion regarding poison, etc. On Sunday, May 7, he wrenched a leg from a table and walking up behind another patient struck him a terrible blow, from which he died in a short time. The patient was named Brown, and has a son employed in the N. Y. Central ticket office in Utica. Coroner Hunt was notified and viewed the body. The murder was kept from the public until last Sunday, when the Syracuse Sunday Herald made it known. Its suppression by the coroner and asylum authorities cause much unfavorable comment.

NOTICE TO PATRONS.

The Rolling Stock milk dealers of Fulton and Oswego Falls held a meeting this day to consider the propriety of patrons, where they buy milk, in their alternating with their neighbors and then with dealers during the year. It was concluded that cheaper milk could be afforded if the patrons would continue throughout the year to buy of some one instead of different parties. The dealers in milk are at large expense to furnish a supply during the winter and sometimes costs more than is received, and we would like the continuance of winter customers through the summer, Therefore Resolved,

We respectfully and earnestly ask citizens who desire to take milk in the winter to continue during the summer as a condition precedent to dealing with us at all.

John Harvey is taking down a portion of the old foundation wall on his property, corner First street and Broadway. Time has weakened it in many places. It will be rebuilt and a two-story brick block erected during the summer.

Finley P. Sinclair graduated last week from the Eclectic Medical Institute in Cincinnati, Ohio, and returned to his home, in Oswego Falls, Friday, where he will locate for the practice of medicine. Dr. Sinclair is well-known in this vicinity, and will undoubtedly enjoy a large practice.

A business men's organization has been formed in Oswego and a committee are now waiting upon the governor to induce him to veto the railroad commission bill. It is claimed to have no political significance, but the fact that the majority of the officers are republicans, and their great concern lest the railroad commission bill become a law would seem to indicate otherwise.

The Omaha Daily Republican of June 7 contains the following:

REES—In this city, June 5, 1882, Victor Laforge, only son of Samuel and Hettie McKoon Rees, aged 23 months and 18 days.

Funeral from the residence of the parents, 1911 Cass street, at 10 o'clock, June 7 1882. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Rees will sympathize deeply with them in this sad bereavement. The little boy was the pride of their hearts, unusually bright and winning and admired by all who saw him. His death was from pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Rees have many friends in Fulton who sympathize with them in their sad loss. Mrs. Rees is a sister of Mrs. Henry D. Wells.

The Presbyterian Church.

A meeting of the members of the Presbyterian society was called Monday evening for the purpose of listening to the report of the finance committee, and to take action upon building the new edifice.

The finance committee reported $31,500 had been raised, leaving a deficiency of $451.19 to complete the structure. In the estimate made there was $500 for unthought of expenses, and by striking out this, there will be a surplus of $48.81.

On motion of Mr. Laycock, the building committee were instructed to proceed as to original plans of the church and session room.

Mr. D. W. Gardner has worked faithfully to secure a sufficient sum of money to warrant the society in building a church to accord with the original plans. The society do not wish to have a heavy debt hanging over their church after it is completed and the caution and surefooted way they have proceeded is commendable and should be imitated by all church societies. Work was resumed yesterday morning and will be prosecuted vigorously to the finish.

Children's Day.

Sunday was known as Children's day and celebrated by Methodists all over the country. In this village it was observed as never before. The auditorium of the church was decorated and festooned in a profuse and artistic manner with arches and wreaths of evergreens, while flowers beautifully arranged about the pulpit and altar. In the morning Prof. J. D. Phelps, of Cazenovia Seminary preached. In the evening the children went through a service prepared expressly for them in which part was taken by Profs. Boothby, Adams and Phelps; Misses Emens, Patterson, Foster, George and Master Freddie Lasher. In the evening cages of canaries hung in every available place and it was the most successful children's day ever held in Fulton. The decorations were superintended by Mr. D. Hendrick.

Monday a photograph of the interior of the church with the decorations were taken.

The endowment fund for the Gardner Baker professorship in the Syracuse University received $550 at the M. E. church Sunday.

Visit The Famous 2 & 3 Wieting Blk., Syracuse if in need of clothing it will pay you.

The Famous Opera Clothing House, 2 & 3 Wieting Blk., messrs Von Frankenburg & Co., proprietors, is one of the few houses that has not been afflicted by the general bad business this season. While other houses complain of dull times and absence of country orders, the famous is taxed to the utmost to satisfy the demand of their customers. The quality of clothing they produce and sell is known to be superior to others and are recommended to all buyers of perfect fitting clothes. A large invoice of new styles of clothing bought for spot cash, as announced in their advertisement in another part of the paper, and sold at such unheard of low figures has had the desired effect of bringing customers to their store by the hundreds all anxious to avail themselves of the great bargins. Cash is the acknowledged basis of the advantages of such institutions and the student of economical law should not omit an opportunity to call prominent attention to the loss of revenue sustained by cash buyers in stores where the credit system prevails.

The Buffalo Evening News made its appearance Monday in a new dress. The News has become an important factor in Buffalo journalism and is a wide-awake, ably conducted paper, and deserves the success that attends it.

At the 62d annual meeting of the Oswego county medical society held at the Doolittle house in Oswego yesterday the following officers were elected:

J. K. Stockwell, president; G. P. Johnson, vice-president; P. M. Dowd, recording secretary; J. E. Hamill, corresponding secretary; C. G. Bacon, treasurer; censors, D. Pardee, J. W. Eddy, C. Macfarlane, T. J. Green, D. T. Whyborn; delegates to state society, J. W. Eddy, J. B. Todd.

Sam Williams, convicted of the murder of Hall, was sentenced to be hung Thursday, July 27th. A number of Auburn people are donating money to procure Hall a new trial.

LADIES, ATTENTION!

Having suffered severe losses by fire, twice in four months, and my place of business destroyed, I am yet able and ready to begin again. I shall endeavor to keep a well selected stock of goods and all the latest styles in hats, bonnets, feathers, flowers and trimmings. I have secured the services of a young lady of experience as trimmer, and feel confident that we can suit you in styles and prices. Dress making is also carried on by experienced help, cutting and fitting, best of satisfaction given. Remember the place, over the Bee Hive in rooms adjoining Dr. Hall's office, opposite the Lewis house.

45 MRS. A. CLARK.

Notice.

People desirous of my services during the night will find me at my office in the Townsend block, by ringing the night bell attached to office door.

A Cheap Excursion.

The Young Men's Catholic Association will give an excursion to Syracuse next Tuesday. There will be a game of ball between the "Stars" of Syracuse and the "Fultons" of Fulton, and a game of cricket between the Oswego Falls team and the O. D. A. club. Fare for the round trip is only sixty cents. Train will leave lower D., L. & W. depot at 9 a. m., and upper depot at 9:30. Train will leave Syracuse, to return, at 6:30 p. m. The Fulton Band will accompany the excursion. This will also be a cheap and convenient mode for people to visit Syracuse who have business to transact.

Cricket at Oswego Falls.

The Syracuse Out Door Amusement club and the Oswego Falls cricket club engaged in cricket at Oswego Falls Saturday and the former scored a victory. The Oswego Falls club will visit Syracuse on Tuesday the 20th inst., to play the Onondaga club. The Onondagas will play a return game at Oswego Falls on Friday, the 23d inst. The score of Saturday's game is as follows:

Marrying A Million.

Thomas Roach for many years a resident of Oswego Falls and Fulton now about twenty-seven years of age is reported to have married a wealthy and aristocratic New York lady. Mr. Roach is a stone cutter by trade and was employed upon the capitol at Albany

The Fulton cor. of the Oswego Times says:

Among the visitors at Albany during the winter was a wealthy widow from New York who bore the aristocratic name of Stuyvesant, a member of the family in whose veins runs the bluest of the blue blood in this country. She saw Roach and it was a case of love at first sight, at least on the widow's part. The sequel shows that her affection was reciprocated for a short time ago Roach married her and gave up his humble quarters in Albany for a palatial mansion in Madison avenue, New York. To-day Mr. and Mrs. Roach leave for New Mexico, accompanied by Mrs. Roach's two accomplished daughters. Mrs. Roach's only son is one of the heaviest dealers in stock in the United States, and lives in the southwest.

TRUTH AND COMMON SENSE.

"There is sense in truth, and truth in virtue." [Measure for Measure.

That is a wonderful step-ladder the poet has given us—sense—truth—virtue—it always takes us upwards. Strange that so many people will pass it by that they may descend into the cellar-ways and dens of vice and crime. Rather than mount the ladder they will descend the rickety stairs—folly—error—depravity. It is hard work to be uprooting noxious weeds. It is an endless task to be refuting error. Now it is truth says one, and error will pine away. Now it is truth that Kent & Miller, the clothiers, have a stock of Cloths and Ready-Made Clothing for Men, Youths and Boys, that cannot be surpassed for beauty, elegance of style, substantial making, fine trimmings, or low prices. In this transition period between Spring and Summer Goods, there is virtue in this truth of which sensible people will avail themselves. Life is an action—not a thought and he will show the most common sense who will verify this truth and test its virtue, by going to

IMPROVE YOUR LOOKS.

Be beautiful! O, be beautiful! for beauty captivates monarchs and conquers kingdoms. Almost every one knows that that celebrated lady and accomplished writer, by title Countess of Blessington, retained her personal charms to an advanced period of her life, and that all the most distinguished statesmen, authors and poets of her time were never tired of eulogizing the peculiar fascination, and the blended pearly purity of her complexion, melted the heart of Lord Byron, captivated Count D'Orsay and brougt N. P. Willis to his knees before her. The great secret of all her successful conquests lay in the fact of her ladyship's habitual use of Princess Louise Toilet Cream. This beautiful gem is for sale at Mrs. J. E. Miller's, Milliner, Cayuga St. 45

STATE PRESS ASSOCIATION.

How the Members were Greeted—A Large Number in Attendance.

A meeting of the State Press Association was held in Jamestown Wednesday and Thursday of last week, and the attendance was so large that the hotels had not sufficient capacity for accommodating those present. The weather was all that could be wished for, winds and tides both working in glorious harmony to assist in the universal gratification of all and disappointment to none.

On Wednesday the members and their families were tendered a drive through the village, visiting many of the manufacturing interests. In the evening Judge Tourgee delivered an able address to the members, which was elevated in tone, straightforward, and a manly utterance of wholesome truth. Also a very interesting poem was rendered by Will Carlton.

On Thursday the Press was invited to an excursion over Chautauqua lake, stopping at Long Point, where a banquet was tendered the members, and while there a brief and able address of welcome was given by the Rev. John H. Vincent. In the evening ex-Gov. R. E. Fenton tendered the visitors a grand reception, giving them all a cordial welcome, and hoping to see us all there again in some future day.

A FRIEND TO THE FRIENDLESS.

Sorrow and sickness is the too common heritage of humanity, and when we see how little is done to alleviate the miseries of the great mass of humanity we are almost out of patience with life. Even where the intentions are best, ignorance is prone to bid the afflicted "suffer and be strong," instead of "ministering to the mind diseased," or laying a hand of healing on the poor tortured body.

Ah! when science and philanthropy, with love and sympathy and skill, come to the aid of the sufferers, they feel as if the angel of annunciation had drawn near.

Samaritan Nervine really is salvation to thousands. I speak from a full heart when I say it, for friends very near and dear to me have been restored to health and happiness by means of it.

"God bless Dr. Richmond," said one of them to me the other day. "I feel as I know the man mentioned in Scripture must have felt when he went from Jerusalem to Jericho and fell among thieves, and when robbed and at the point of death, was befriended and restored to health by the Good Samaritan."

"Yes," he continued, "that was exactly my condition. I had spent a fortune in doctor's bills and patent medicines. Everything I could hear of I tried, so desperate was my situation, but I grew worse steadily, until some kind friend told me of the Samaritan Nervine. Since taking it I am, as you see, restored to perfect health."

With such incontrovertible proof of the beneficent nature of the remedy, it is not strange that an editor, always solicitous for an accurate knowledge of what could benefit the world in general, should take the earliest opportunity of visiting the inventor and proprietors of the medicine at the World's Epileptic Institute.

We found the doctor in his elegant private office busily engaged in superintending the gentleman whose business it is to attend to the details of the immense correspondence which is a natural result of his wide-spread reputation.

On making known our wishes, he very kindly accompanied us in our tour of inspection through the magnificent building and grounds.

Almost as soon as we entered the office our attention was arrested by a wonderful collection of photographs, numbering somewhere in the thousands. All nations, ages and stations were represented. The elegant carte of the society leader was side by side with the picture of the humble artisan; innocent childhood and withered old age showed in their counterfeit presentments the gratitude they could not speak; doctors, lawyers, ministers of the gospel, soldiers, laborers, plain mothers of families, haughty children of wealth, rich and poor, high and low, black and white, all were represented. It reminded me of the miracle cures of Europe, only instead of the crutches, bandages, gold, silver and wax images of the recuperated pilgrims, left before the shrine of the miracle worker, Dr. Richmond has as testimonials the pictures of his deeply grateful patients.

"You must feel very happy, doctor, when you look at this collection," we said.

"Ah! yes," said the doctor pleasantly, "but if you like my art gallery, what would you say to my library?"

He led the way to the next apartment, and we followed, expecting only to see perhaps one bookcase filled with dusty tombs of abstract science. Instead, the walls were lined with very handsome bookcases, containing over one hundred thousand unsolicited testimonials from those whom the Nervine had cured.

"How wonderfully fortunate as well as talented you are," we exclaimed in amazement. "The Nervine has proved a perfect gold mine."

The doctor looked at us reproachfully.

"I am not one who underestimates wealth," he answered, "for I have known what it is to be without it, but what is the most collossal fortune that was ever in the grasp of mortal man in comparision to the good my remedy is doing? Picture to yourself, if you can, what must be the feeling of an epileptic. Think of him with his dreadful disease so long pronounced incurable. He cannot take part in the studies, duties, employments, recreations or amusements of an ordinary fellow being. He is an object of horror rather than of pity to his friends. His malady never stands still; it is constantly growing worse and more dreadful in all its phases. Last and most dreadful before him stands the awsul phantom of insanity. Sleeping or waking he feels that it is there, and that sooner or later it will clutch him; and it does. An epileptic must be, like Job, tempted to curse Heaven and die. Why, it would bring tears to your eyes to read a letter I received from a gentleman at Potsdam, New York, telling how he had two thousand dreadful fits in eighteen months, and is now, thanks to the Nervine, entirely cured. That poor fellow can scarcely find words strong enough to express his feelings. That's the kind of a thing to make a man feel happy."

RESCUED FROM DEATH.
William J. Coughlin of Somerville, Mass, says: In the fall of 1876 I was taken with bleeding of the lungs followed by a severe cough. I lost my appetite and flesh and was confined to my bed. In 1877 I was admitted to the hospital. The doctors said I had a hole in my lung as big as a half dollar. At one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR. WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I got a bottle, when to my surprise I commenced to feel better, and to-day I feel better than for three years past. I write this hoping every one afflicted with diseased Lungs will take DR. WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAM, and be convinced that CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED. I can positively say it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness.

SAMARITAN

NERVINE!

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Epileptic Fits, Spasms, Convulsions, St Vitus Dance, Viritigo, Insanity, Apoplexy, Paralysis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all Nervous Diseases. This infallible remedy will positively eradicate every species of Nervous Derangement, and drive them away from whence they came, never to return again. It utterly destroys the germs of disease by neutralizing the hereditary taint or poison in the system, and thoroughly eradicate the disease, and utterly destroys the cause.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Female Weakness, General Debility, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Painful Menstration, Ulceration of the Uterus, Internal Heat, Gravel, Inflamation of the Bladder, Irritability of the Bladder. For Wakefulness at Night, there is no better remedy. During the change of life no Female should be without it. It quiets the Nervous System and gives rest comfort and nature's sweet sleep.

SVMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Alcholism, Drunkenness and the habit of Opium Eating. These degrading habits are by far the worst evils that have ever befallen suffering humanity. Thousands die annually from these noxious drugs. The drunkard drinks liquor not because he likes it but for the pleasure of drinking and treating his friends, little thinking that he is on his road to ruin. Like the Opium Eater, he first uses the drug in small quantities as a harmless antidote. The soothing influence of the drug takes strong hold upon its victim, leading him on to his own destruction. The habits of Opium Eating and Liquor Drinking are precisely what eating is to alimentiveness, as over-eating first inflames the stomach, which redoubles its cravings until it paralyzes both the stomach and appetite. So every drink of liquor or dose of opium, instead of satisfying, only adds to its fierce fires, until it consumes the vital force and then itself Like the gluttonous tape-worm, it cries "Give, give, give!" but never enough until its own rapacity devours itself. Samariton Nervine gives instant relief in all such cases. It produces sleep, quiets the nerves, builds up the nervous system, and restores body and mind to a healthy condition.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Nervous Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Asthma, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Syplitis, diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases of the urinary organs. Nervous debility, caused by the indiscretions of youth, permanently cured by the use of this valuable remedy. To you, young middle-aged and old men, who are covering your sufferings as with a mantle by silence, look up, you can be saved by timely efforts, and make ornaments to society, and jewels in the crown of your Maker, if you will. Do not keep this a secret longer, until it saps your vitals, and destroys both body and soul. If you are thus afflicted, take DR. RICHMOND's Samaritan Nervine. It will restore your shattered nerves, arrest premature decay, impart tone and energy to the whole system.

SAMARITAN NERVINE.

Is for sale by druggists everywhere, or may be had direct from us. Those who wish to obtain furthes evidence of the curative properties of Samaritan Nervine will please enclose a 3 cent postage stamp for a copy of our Illustrated Journal of Health, giving hundreds of testimonials of cure from persons who have used the medicine, and also their pictures photographed after their restoration to perfect health. STONES IN THE KIDNEYS

AND BLADDER EXPELLED—LONG SUFFERING OF ONE OF TROY'S—BEST PEOPLE —A LUCKY MAN.

It is by no means a strange thing that Dr. Kennedy should have received the following letter. By reading it you will see in one minute why James Andrews was thankful;

TROY, N. Y. April, 8, 1882.

Dr D. Kennedy Rondout N. Y.

DEAR SIR :—Until within a recent date I had for several years suffered greatly from gravel, called by the doctors the brick-dust sediment. For about a year past this sediment has not passed off in the usual quantity, but has accumulated, causing me untold pain. Having heard of "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" I tried it in my case, and after using about one and one-half bottles, I voided a stone from the bladder, of an oval shape, 7-16 of an inch long, and rough on its surface. I send yo the largest piece that you may see of what it is composed. since then I have felt no pain. I now consider myself cured, and cannot express my thankfullness and gratitude for so signal a deliverance from a terrible a disease. You have my consent to use this letter, should you wish to do so, for the benefit of other sufferers.

Yours Truly,

JAMES ANDREWS.

No 10 Marshal St, Ida Hill.

When we consider that the medicine which did this service for Mr. Andrews cost only one dollar a bottle, it would seem that persons in like fashion can afford the expense of testing its virtues. Get it of your druggist, or address Dr. David Kennedy Rondout, N. Y. "Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" for sale by all druggists.

A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN.

[From the Boston Globe.]

Messrs. Editors :—

The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," as some of her correspondents love to call her. She is zealously devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass.

For Kidney Complaint of either sex this compound is unsurpassed as abundant testimonials show.

"Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills," says one writer, "are the best in the world for the cure of Constipation, Biliousness and Torpidity of the liver. Her Blood Purifier works wonders in its special line and bids fair to equal the Compound in its popularity.

All must respect her as an Angel of Mercy whose sole ambition is to do good to others.

VAN VALKENBURG'S

RESTAURANT.

—:o:—

A Model Restaurant and Billiard Room Charley have you been to look at Van's place, on the corner of First and Oneida Streets since he has remodeled and enlarged it? His Restaurant ! Yes, was the reply, and it certainly is one of the best appointed and most attractive places ever opened in our village. Such is the fact. This ever popular place has been thoroughly Repainted and Remodeled so that it is now more pleasant and attractive than ever before. The partitions have been removed, the Rooms made Larger so that any that may wish to go to a First-Class Restaurant can do so now and can go into a private entrance to lunch alone, separate and alone. He has also a Billiard & Pool Room attached, entirely separate from Bar or Lunch Room. The Tables are of Babcock's best make, handsomely gotten up and have the Celebrated Magic Double Action Cushion which are so popular with all lovers of Billiard and Pool. All that money can do to make Van's place more popular than ever has been done. Only the best of everything is kept. Call and look at his bill of fare and know for yourselves the Lunch Van gets up and you will be surprised to learn that he keeps on hand everything in the shape of Lunch that could be got at Delmonicos. He is prepared to get up Lunch for Picnicing and Fishing Parties on the shortest notice in Elegant Style and at very reasonable rates. Now I will give you a small list of his lunches that be gets up: Oysters, in every style; Clam Chowder, Sardines, Lobsters, Crabs, Salmon, Mackerel, Anchovey Chicken, Boiled Ham, Pig Feet Stew, Pork and Beans, Sandwiches of all kinds, Pies and Cheese, Tea and Coffee, and other things and all very cheap. Call and get some of his lunches and you will be more than pleased at the price, so much so that you will say to yourself well I did not know before that people could get snch dishes for so small a figure and up here in the country. I have found the place to get my lunch from now out. The prices are what catches me.

F. D. VAN VALKENBURG,
Proprietor of the Restaurant.

Back Bone.

When you see a fellow mortal
  Without fixed and fearless views,
Hanging on the skirts of others
  Walking in their cast-off shoes,
Bowing low to wealth or favor,
  With abject uncovered head,
Ready to retract or waver,
  Willing to be drove or led;
Walk yourself, with firmer bearing,
  Throw your moral shoulders back,
Show your spine has nerve and marrow—
  Just the thing which his must lack.
    A stronger word
    Was never heard
    In sense or tone,
    Than this: Back-bone.

When you see a theologian
  Hugging close some ugly creed,
Fearing to reject or question
  Dogmas which his priest may read,
Holding back all noble feeling,
  Choking down each manly view,
Caring more for forms and symbols
  Than to know the good and true;
Walk, yourself, with firmer bearing,
  Throw your moral shoulders back,
Show your spine has nerve and marrow—
  Just the things which his must lack.
    A stronger word
    Was never heard
    In sense or tone,
    Than this: Back-bone.

When you see a politician
  Crawling through contracted holes,
Begging for some fat position,
  In the ring or at the polls,
With no sterling manhood in him,
  Nothing stable, broad or sound,
Destitute of pluck or ballast,
  Double-sided, all around;
Walk, yourself, with firmer bearing,
  Throw your moral shoulders back,
Show your spine has pluck and morrow—
  Just the things which his must lack.
    A stronger word
    Was never heard
    In sense or tone,
    Than this; Back bone.

A modest song and plainly told—
The text is worth a mine of gold;
For many men most sadly lack
A noble stiffness in the back.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead
Who never to his God hath said;
"Give us this day our daily bread,"

In the Spring of the year, great care should be exercised in eating fruit and vegetables brought from a distance. An invaluable extra precaution is to have a 25 ct. bottle of Cobb's Little Podophyllin Pills always in the house. One pill to a dose. For sale by R. E. Phillips.

A Funeral Disaster.

At a recent funeral in St. Louis, while the procession was going to the cemetery, the pin of one of the single trees of the hearse broke, causing it to strike against the hind legs of the nearest horse. The animals were frightened so that they ran away. The driver, believing that a serious catastrophe would ensue if the horses were allowed to run straight ahead and having lost control of them, took the lines and endeavored to run the animals into a fence. In doing this, one of the horses slipped on a plank walk and fell down. This completely upset the hearse and scattered the coffin and its contents around the immediate neighborhood. The hearse was almost totally demolished, the coffin broken and body bruised. The undertaker immediately telephoned for a another hearse. Meanwhile the coffin was taken out of the wreck, the body was laid back in it carefully covered, placed in the new hearse and the funeral once more proceeded on its way.

"Little thanks are due to him who only gives away what is of no use to himself." The thanks of invalids the world over are being showered on the inventor of Kidney-Wort, for it is giving health to all. Kidney-Wort moves the bowels regularly, cleanses the blood, and radically cures kidney disease, gravel, piles, bilious headache and pains which are caused by disordered liver and kidneys. Thousands have been cured—why should you not try.

His First Blush.

At the marriage of John Russell Young to Miss Coleman, at Hartford, recently, General Grant was a guest and when the ceremony was over the company waited for the general to take precedence in extending congratulations. The general went forward, leading his little granddaughter, Fred Grant's child, by the hand, and after shaking hands with the bride said to his grandchild: "Won't you kiss the lady?" The bride caught the child in her arms, kissed it, and then looking up blushingly, said: "I would like to kiss the grandfather if I dared." The veteran warrior, who had faced a blazing battery, all at once became a trembling coward. He flushed up, looked sheepish, but concious that the bride was peeping at him from behind drooping eyelids and was waiting for him to say or do something, mechanically extends his head, and the next moment a fair face was in his beard, imprinting a kiss upon the line that marked his mouth. He seemed to be in a tremor as he grasped his grandchild's hand and backed away. All the young gallants were surprised at the cowardice of an old soldier before a pair of fresh inviting lips.

"PRO BONO PUBLICO"

It is a remarkable fact that while thousands of people refuse to read paib puffs of worthless nostrums, none skid over Dr. Swayne's little squib about his Ointment for itching piles that itch so much at night. The people well know that it is published for their benefit, in other words it is pro bono publico. May its far reaching effects be peruated to the end af time. 3w4

A Woman's Influence.

The comfort of the average home depends entirely upon the woman who is mistress of it. Whether sunshine shall enter the rooms, whether the parlor shall be used and enjoyed, whether the table shall be invitingly spread, whether bright lights and bright fires shall give warmth and cheer on winter nights—whether, in brief the home shall be an agreeable or a disagreeable place, is usually what the woman determines. Men are powerless in the matter.

Mr. Gail B. Johnson, business manager of the Houston (Texas) Post, has used St. Jacob's Oil with the greatest benefit for rheumatism, says the Galveston (Texas) News.

The man who obtained tick for a dose of medicine, took an eme-tick.

A woman's features are less disfigured by her age at 60, than by her rage at 20.

*Bloating, headaches, nervous prostration and spinal weakness cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

HOW TO GET SICK.—Expose yourself day and night, eat too much without exercise, work too hard without rest, doctor all the time, take all the vile nostrums advertised, and then you will want to know

HOW TO GET WELL.—Which is answered in three words—Take Hop Bitters! 3w2

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., June 18, 1881.

Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co.:

GENTLEMEN—I have been afflicted with kidney troubles for years, and in October last it culminated in Bright's Disease. I was confined to my bed for several months, and had given up all hopes of desire to recover, when I began the use of Your Remedy. It gave me immediate relief, and I am now, and have been since the 1st of April, constantly engaged at my business, which I owe to your Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. The doctors all thought I was going to die, and when I improved so that, several of the neighbors called in wonder to see me, and many of my friends are using your remedies.

An Adirondack guide has christened himself experience, because experience is the best guide.

"Never take a leap in the dark," is an old adage. Many a man, if he takes it at all. is obliged to take his sleep in the dark.

Every day is "decoration day" to our neighbor's pretty wife. [New York News.

Guiteau wept when a band of revivalists went into his cell and sang for him. There are some revivalists whose singing would make anybody cry. Still, Guiteau is a dreadfully bad man, and we think he deserves all he is getting.

[Jersey City Journal.

If you experience bad taste in mouth, sallowness or yellow color of skin, feel stupid and drowsy, appetite unsteady, frequent headache or dizziness, you are "bilious," and nothing will arouse your liver to action and strengthen up your system equal to Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Sold by druggists.

"Is this the front of the Captiol?" asked a newly arrived stranger of an Austin darkey. "No, sah; dis heah side in front am the rear. Ef yer wants to see the front, yer must go around dar behine on de odder side."

"What is the matter, old fellow? You seem worried." "Well, I am being dunned up hill and down dale by my infernal creditors." Oh, you owe a large sum of money?" "No but a great many small sums, and debts are like children —the smaller they are the more bother they are." [N. Y. Tribune.

DELAYS ARE DANGEROUS.—Don't think that a complaint is trifling because it does not necessitate confinement to bed. Many a sturdy little constitution has been ruined by putting off and putting off attention to the so-called trifling complaints. Worms in children is a case in point, and nature's remedy, the Peerless Worm Specific, should be promply applied. For sale by R. E. Phillips.

The crank who sends on anonymous communications and searches the paper day after day in vain should also be mentioned and also that mean specimen who can not get rid of the impression that a newspaper exists solely for the purpose of settling his personal grudges. If we could skim the public pot of bubbling seeking humanity and remove the scum of crankiness how much better the residum would be for the operation! [Rochester Express.

A BONANZA MINE

of health is to be found in Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," to the merits of which as a remedy for female weakness and kindred affections thousands testify.

"So you are looking for work, yet?" said a busy man to Pete Loafer, who strolled in. "How long ago was it you said you was offered eight dollars a week?" "Bout three week," drawled out Pete, in a discouraged tone. "Well, you'd been twenty-four dollars better off if you had taken the job, wouldn't you?" "No, I wouldn't," as he shifted his tobacco to the no'theast corner of his mouth. "Shouldn't had a chance to look for any other job." When you come to logic a lazy man is running over with it. [New Haven Register.

"ENJOY YOUR LIFE"

is good philosophy, but to do so you must have health. If bilious and constipated, or blood is out of order, use Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets," which are mild, yet certain in their operation. Of all druggists.

Keep doing, always doing. Wishing, dreaming, intending, murmuring, talking, sighing and repining, are idle and profitless employments.

ADDRESS

OF JUDGE TOURGEE TO THE NEW YORK STATE PRESS ASSOCIATION.

"The Relations of the Newspaper Press to Public Virtue and Private Morals."

Mr. President: Gentlemen of the New York State Press Association:

I do not know that the two terms which I have used in the subject announced ought to be separated. The root of public virtue is in private morals and perhaps when the statement had been made that I proposed to discuss briefly the relations of the newspaper press to private morals, the whole question had been stated. We are accustomed, especially we who are wont to sit at the feather end of the quill, sometimes to speak of the press as a grand but vague indefinite power. The eagle sometimes screams with rapturous delight in the contemplation of this vast indefinite force which we vaguely term the press. And then, upon the other hand, those who do not so well perhaps, appreciate the beauties of that term as we, are accustomed also to attribute to this indefinite personality, the press, various and sundry lapses from virtue which are not always complimentary. It is not unfrequent that we hear the statement uttered, often with a sneer, "That must be true because I read it in a newspaper." Sometimes even further than that the incredulous carry their doubt so far as to intimate that the newspaper is devised by powers of darkness for purposes of evil. I believe that we have gone too far in this abstraction with regard to what we term the press. We have become so accustomed to speak of it as a force that our worthy divine, in imploring the Throne of Grace to-night, ask God's blessing on the press, as if it were an animate being! As if it were, as we fondly say, "a power!" It is not a power any more than an electric wire or a lamp post, not a bit. It is merely a lever, an instrumentality, a means which lends itself to the Lord's hands or the devil's, with equal readiness. [Laughter and applause.] It is just that means of communication which the electric wire represents in another sense, that puts my mind into your heart, that allows me to make new that old fable of "One that is possessed of another's spirit, that enters into his frame, writes his thought upon the original possessor's brain." Makes his heart do its bidding, throb with its desire, his hands do its will; and his feet to follow in the path it designates. It is only the power of putting—the means of putting—one man before a thousand, a million, a million million minds. That is all. Just a dead, dull instrumentality. It means nothing. It is nothing except a man in disguise. Emerson tells us that the value of an idea depends upon the man who stands behind it. The value of the press depends upon the man who has his hand on the lever. A newspaper is nothing but a man with a calendered rag and straw dress done up in bourgeois and brevier figure, that comes into the house without knocking. That is all. [Laughter and applause.] He may be an angel whom you entertain unawares and are blessed abundantly in consequence. Or he may be that very devil that was found "squat at the ear of Eve" in the Garden of Eden.

We speak of the press as a benign instrumentality. It is as benign in its power as dynamite, just exactly. It is as safe to handle as a torch in a powder magazine. It is as sure a supporter of liberty as a volcano. It may mean liberty; it may mean righteousness, or it may mean depravity. It may mean the utmost possible degradation.

Every newspaper has one great animus—it is printed for the advantage of some man; it is printed to promote some desire, purpose or inclination of some individual. I do not care what the character of a newspaper may be. It may be printed merely that this man may gain sustenance thereby, and it is an honorable thing that a newspaper should be printed for that purpose. There is no way that a man can make an honest living better. [Laughter.] It may be printed because the man who stands at the helm desires power, and it is a good way to get power, as many a small man has found out. It may be printed merely to promote the spread of some dogma to which some man, or set of men, have committed themselves. And it is a good way to disseminate dogma, as the churches that do not publish papers find out. It may be printed to establish the interest of some class or clique in trade. All the same, whatever may be its purpose it comes back to this: that it is printed and published for the advantage of somebody that stands behind it. Where it is printed merely for the benefit of the publisher; where it is printed that it may gain circulation and bring him ducats; where it is printed that he may receive his livelihood thereby, then he says to himself that his object and purpose is to please his readers. It is only a few weeks ago that I heard an eminent divine say that the character of the press of any community was an excellent gauge of the character of that community. He is right, because the editor who publishes in that method is usually a man of long nose and keen senses. He knows his market and prints for it. [Laughter and applause.] Where it is printed for any other of the purposes which I have named, the news in it, or the amusement, the entertainment which is sought to be conveyed in it is merely the colorless menstrum in which the originator mixes the dose which he desires to commend to the public palate. It is the sweetening that goes with the dry and bitter doctrine. All these may be combined in one purpose. A man may publish a newspaper for the sake of making money; for the sake of advancing dogma or opinion, or for the sake of promoting the interest of a class to whom he may be attached. But whatever may be the motive, it comes back in its last analysis to the man who stands with his hand on the lever. So far as his responsibility to us, to the world, to God, is concerned, in the dissemination of doctrine or establishment of dogma, he stands exactly on the level of the man who talks; the man who preaches, or the man who writes a book. So far as he seeks by that means to obtain power, he stands on the same platform as the [illegible] of trade by the entertainment of his auditory he stands precisely on the level of the man who goes about the country mending tinware, or any other honorable calling. It is a simple, honest, square-toed business. There is nothing highfalutin, nothing mystic, nothing miraculous about it. It does not reach up into the missionary realm at all. It comes right down to the honest relation of man to business and to his neighbors. What is the effect of a newspaper upon a community, upon the world itself, depends entirely upon the character of the man who wields it. If he is a good man, it will do good. I do not mean good in any goody-goody sense. I don't mean to say that prayers and provender cannot be mixed up. I do not mean to say that it shall be constantly volunteering advice in regard to manners and morals. But I mean to say that it is the control of a good moral man, an earnest, honest man that makes a newspaper fit to come into a decent man's house. [Applause.] This responsibility cannot be avoided, brethren, by putting to our hearts the unction, "I merely supply my market; I furnish the wares that are in demand." The question of how far a man has a right to help his neighbors along the road to damnation is a very delicate one, I admit. The rumseller declares that he has the inalienable right not to cast out evil, but to pour it in. But the rumseller upon the most eligible street corner in the world cannot do half the harm in a year that a bad man at the long end of the press lever can do in a week; not nearly as much.

Did you ever think how close is the inter-communion between the writer and the reader? Between the editor and the customer? The newspaper comes to us in the morning with the sunrise; it sits with us at table; it goes with us upon the street, in the omnibus, in the car, everywhere that we are. Ah! that man, good or bad, is crumpled into the pocket and comes out with every weary moment and puts his stamp on your heart or mine. He wears your coat; he is in our breast, and writes upon our brains when we imagine we are only thinking ourselves. He comes into our parlor; sir, perhaps a man that you would no more admit there than he that came from the dusky dungeons below—comes, nay, did I say he comes into your parlor, comes into your young daughter's heart before it knows the throb of womanhood. He enters into it to elevate it or to degrade. [Applause.] He comes into your boy's hands before he has got his first boots well worn. That man has come, good or bad, and he has put manhood or evil into that boy's heart; goes to school with him; he takes him along the road; he hides him in the desk; he slips him in between his books; he cheats the teacher with him; teaches him to cheat the teachers, perhaps; he is in every heart a constant presence that cannot be exorcised, that cannot be distinguished or known. There is no one man here who reaching back into the past of his own life cannot pick out some particular periodicals which he read when he was a boy, perhaps, and say "that did me infinite good or infinite harm." Not because it was the press, but because the man behind the thought came into the unconscious heart. "Ah," but we say, "there is no fear, there is no danger, the press is the beacon light of liberty. The free press is that which lifts us up and bears us on." Thank God it is true. Not because it is a free press, but because honest hearted men in the main have stood behind it, because the manhood that has stamped it has been a manhood that meant good to its fellows, light to the earth and liberty to the world. There is one thing true. Perhaps that first mention of the press, (our worthy divine would excuse me if it seems a little light,) perhaps the first mention of the press which we have in history is not far from correct, in the inference that may be drawn from it when punningly read: "And many sought to come unto Him, but could not for the press." [Laughter and great applause.] Many a good man has been transformed into a fiend by the power of the press of to-day. Many a good woman's life has been turned to shame by that same power. There is no question, brethren, and you and I who look through our exchanges know it, that the press—the newspaper press of to-day—in its influence upon private morals is separated by a world-wide distance from that scraggly, rude affair of a hundred years ago. If Franklin's little press moved the world, it moved it always for good. I looked not long since through the copies that have been preserved of his paper in the library at Philadelphia, with some care on the subject. There was not a word in them that B. Franklin, Esq., might not have gone into the finest parlor and uttered to the most modest and delicate lady in the land. It is very rarely, I am afraid, that a real newspaper of to-day is printed, that the editor would exactly like to read all the way through at his supper table. "Ah, but," we say, "the people want it, and I have a right to furnish what they want." Have we? The news-gatherer of to-day is the institution rather than the press. The idea of gathering up news and pouring it out before the world. The idea of meeting all the world at your breakfast table, of hearing all the world's life and taking it into your being before you get a cup of coffee well down. That is new. That is the great instrumentality which distinguishes the press of to-day from that of yesterday. But that gatherer of the news alone—is there no responsibility with him? Not long since, looking over a pile of exchanges, a fair-haired girl stood at my side looking over my shoulder as I ran through one and another, as we all do, gathering a little here and a little there, taking a thought or a hint. She looked over one after another with me, and presently inquired, "Pa, papa, don't people do any good things now-a-days?" "Why, yes, child. Why?" "Well," she said, "the story books all tell us about good people and good things, but in the newspapers I don't find anything but bad things. I am afraid the people," she said, "don't do any good things now." Did you ever think, my brothers, that the man you send out to gather news may have a nose for——scandal? [Laughter.] There is a Haytian proverb that I have sometimes thought might well apply to our news-gather. It is a rather harsh one—almost coarse. It says: "If you send the buzzard to market, you will have carrion for dinner." [Applause.] I am afraid we have become in the habit sometimes of sending the buzzard to market. I remember many years ago my first association with the public press. A man situated at the head of the newspaper with which I was connected; a man eminent in his community; a man of high standing in his church, of immaculate private relations. He had this one maxim which he gave to his reporters, which he pressed upon them. "Miss anything which happens in the city except a bit of social scandal; that I want. You may leave everything else out if you give me that; that makes my circulation." I have a thousand times put beside him a great, rough-worded and rough-hewn printer boy, who rose to be an editor, with whom I was once associated. He always said: "Never put a word of dirt in my columns." [Applause.] "If you must tell," he would say with an oath, "if you must tell a mean fact, tell it just as briefly as you can. Don't let me have any of the dirt, because," he said, "I do not mean [illegible] should come to be parcelled out in that upper and better land, the man who spoke his notions with an oath would stand better than the man of whom the community thought so highly. [Applause.]

It is the man at the long end of the lever; it is that man all the time who is responsible, and we cannot shift the blame off on the community because we ourselves are the creators of the public taste. The appetite grows with what it feeds upon.

I do not mean by these remarks simply the publication of bad matter—the publication of blood curdling and thrilling light literature. I do not mean by this so much one of these sheets that fly by the tens of thousands through our city streets on a Sunday morning which are simply the guides and forerunners of depravity and in league with it. I do not mean that class of journals. They are professedly the devil's servants. [Applause.] They are the evil end of the press, and glory in the fact. They are blackbirds that none of us care to flock with. But I mean to call attention in this connection, to that matter—to that portion of the ordinary matter of the paper which is called news. What is news? What is news, that you and I and all of us have the right to lay before our readers? I do not happen to be a dealer in news, but the same principle applies to me. What is the matter that you and I have the right to take into this man's home circle? Have I a right to tell his wife what he dare not whisper to her? Have I a right to go unbidden and in disguise into his house and corrupt his daughter's heart by parading the infamies that may come into my evil knowledge? Have I a right to encourage an appetite that shall gloat over these vile infamies? Did you ever see a woman at a public hanging? Did you ever see women thronging the roads from far and near, perhaps to look upon a human creature in the last agony of life? If you did, I know it was with the utmost terror and abhorrence. Why? Why? You recognize the righteousness of the law's sentence, you recognize that fact as a harsh one, but one that must be executed. Why should not a woman gaze upon it? Ah! you feel that when she looked upon that scene of horror a home would be corrupted through her heart. You knew she would be made worse, dragged down from her high pedestal of virtue and modesty and purity by gazing on that horrid spectacle. And yet how few there are who do not put into their columns day after day, and week after week, accounts of executions that reek with horror, that the fact never began to equal. It is not one poor woman that is corrupted, but it is a million young hearts torn, agonized, worn and made weak by the spectacle of sin and suffering. Have you a right to do that? News is news. The obligation upon the editor to tell what happens is immense. He is bound to keep abreast of the times, but is it necessary that he should send a buzzard to market? Yesterday as I came here I read the concluding passages of that most exquisite work of Marion Harland's "Eve's Daughters" a work which, allow me to say, ladies, no daughter of Eve should be without—and upon the last page I found these pathetic words. "My heart is wrung," she says, "with woe to think that domestic infelicity, that domestic infidelity is growing in this day to be looked upon as a mere peccadillo." I wonder how far the newspaper press of the United States is responsible for that fact that no man in his senses dare deny. If Mistress A. B. elopes with her husband's coachman, in the name of God haven't you done your duty to your neighbors, to your fellows and your pocket when you say so and stop with a big round period; or is it necessary to our manhood, to our idea of duty to ourselves as tradesmen, that we should get a mud brush and daub in the colors? And because these colors are painted, and painted so highly and painted so frequently the young daughter we strain to our hearts with foreboding love, grows up with the thought that her mother's virtue is an old-fashioned thing. The influence of the press then is the influence of the man that stands behind it, unless that man has permitted himself to be blinded by the fact that he is hidden under the anonymous. Ten thousand things that are written are printed for the neighbor's children; for the neighbor's wife, for the neighbor himself, would never be printed if that man was obliged to carry them himself and offer them to the neighbor. The danger from our press is not that the men themselves will be so much corrupted as that they will be blinded as to their personal responsibility in this matter. "Ah! but," we say, "people do like gossip; people will read gossip; people must have gossip." Ah! sadly abused word—God's sib, God's brightness. Sadly abused word this "gossip." Is it true that the newspaper press is a simple gossip? Is it true that it has a right to excuse itself for any shortcomings merely on the plea that A, B, and C like to hear it? I suppose you would hardly justify the bedizened creature that fluttered herself in and out of your house and goes with a tale of shame to the neighbors. Gossip, when it comes in the human form divine, is not pleasing; but gossip, when it comes on the white page blackened by shame, that gossip read in secret, brooded over in silence when the blushes are hid and the very eye of God is forgotten, that gossip rises into the dignity of a lawful and legitimate matter of trade. Is it so? Is it so? That most honored of our profession, Dr. Holland, tells us among his very latest words that the cure for gossip is culture. [Applause.] The cure for the gossip of a newspaper is the honesty of the man who stands behind it, and the cultivation of a better taste thereby. I don't think an editor is worse than any other man, as a rule. I do not think he is any more greedy. I do not think he is any more reckless of his obligations to his fellows, but I do think because he stands behind this impersonal engine he sometimes forgets himself, and that it is he who is going into the reader's heart; I do not believe in any of these methods that are taken to cure this. I think you might just as well try to batter down Gibraltar with green peas as to try to make the press better by legal enactments. Just exactly. I haven't a particle of sympathy with those meddling with the divine right of the editor to take passes that the recent Ohio statute contemplates. [Laughter and applause.] I don't think there is any possible difference between the relations of man to man as effects the editor and reader and between the man who speaks to a hearer. The relation is exactly the same, and that legislature which pretends to limit the method in which a man shall market his wares is an instrument of tyranny. A man has a right to publish a newspaper if it be a clean one, if it be a deserving one, and subserve the interest of this man or that man, just exactly as much right as he has to dig a ditch for him or to preach the gospel for him at so much a month, or anything else. Neither do I believe that this matter is to be effected by [illegible] ing a newspaper press what is termed in another profession, the theatrical profession, preaching. I have as little use for the [illegible] body. You remember George Eliot defines him to be the fellow, that has not only an opinion, but is always wanting you a present of it. I have no desire that the press of our country shall be [illegible] than it [illegible] shall be the freedom that a man has in the bosom of his own family. I know that there is a very great difficulty when an editor contemplates this demand upon his humanity. I know that it is a very great temptation that a man should make the white page before him dark indeed. But it will be done—it will be done. Your children, if not you, will live to see the time when newspapers with such accounts as now pass unchallenged in almost all our columns, will be tabooed as a thing of horror in every community. [Applause.]

The time comes when by some mysterious law the tendency of such a thing curbs itself. It must come. The rebellion is so great upon the part of the right minded editor, who abhors himself so when he bows to what is, perhaps, a very dire necessity, that little by little and more and more, it will come to be the fact that news will not mean infamy. But what bearing has this on public [illegible]? What bearing has this on public integrity? It has this bearing, that out of the boy comes the man; that out of the household grows the state; out of the community comes the nation; and as the boy is fed in youth, as his mind is colored and stamped in boyhood such will he be in manhood. If he is taught to regard infamy as a right thing, if he gathers the idea that the just life is only the boundary of outrageous crime and sin, the boy is likely to be a bad man in public or in private. Put him where you will his nature is perverted. The man is crushed down and the evil is lifted up. I do not mean to endorse that cry which goes forth deploring the license of the press with regard to the individual reputation and the standing of public parties. I know it is a hard thing, it is a bad thing that when a man is nominated for your representative in any capacity—executive, judicial or legislative, that thereby he is stamped with a dozen M quads as a scoundrel. That from one to another all over the land, goes the cry and the whisper of half expressed and dimly hinted infamy, until by and by the man becomes so changed in the eyes of his fellow citizens that his dog barks at him when he comes home. [Laughter.] We are accustomed to say—it is the universal charge almost of our press, that there was never such a terribly degraded and depraved age as our own. An Englishman, an English nobleman, said to me a few months ago: "If I am to believe your press, sir, I must believe that the scoundrels in high positions are equaled only by a number of fools." And yet there is hardly a solitary one of those who have assisted by their constant decrying of men of position and selected as candidates for position in the establishment of that very dogma, who believes a word of it. We know that there never has been a day or year since the foundation of the government, when the public conscience was so acute as it is to-day, the public integrity or ability as good as it is to-day. [Great Applause.] The average of intelligence and uprightness of the men who have held the lever of the press has been good, and the fruits of it have in the main been good. But the tendencies in many respects are bad. The tendency even in that respect is not unfrequently very bad. It is rough on the man even for the public good, that he should be lied about, and it is rougher still when he is denied by the sentiment thus created even such a thing as redress in the eyes of the people.

A few weeks ago a Philadelphia court administered a very just rebuke to the "Buzzard" that went to market. A Senator of the United States, on the word of a convicted felon, convicted of perjury, as well as well as other crimes, if not convicted pro forma, at least convicted in the knowledge of every man who read the testimony or heard a word of it. I say a United States Senator, on the word of such a man gathered by a "buzzard" who went to state's prison cell to get it, was impeached with a tale of the utmost infamy and dishonor. He applied to a court for redress and the court promptly granted it as it ought to have done, and fined the "buzzard" $1,000, and I hope the court before whom the other portion of the question shall go will mulct the "buzzard's" employer $25,000. Why? Why? Because no man has a right to pursue another man to his destruction merely that he may make a tasty bit of scandal for his readers. That is the limit of it. Go just as far as you can with a belief in truth. Go just as far as your manhood will go in stamping every public man if you believe that you are stamping evil. But if you put out a hint that you do not believe, may the swift vengeance of an outraged community fall upon you. That is the limit of your responsibility to man and your responsibility to God. you have no right to express what you believe without reasonable care and investigation to be the truth in regard to any public man, and you have still less right to hint at what you believe to be not true. The right or freedom of the press means that you may hunt down the wild beasts of the world. The freedom of the press means that you may carry the sword of truth, that you may carry the spear of enquiry, and thrust it through the joints of every armor into the secrets of every heart where evil is, and where you honestly believe it to be. But when you point it at a breast which you believe to be innocent, simply that you may crush another that you may create public sentiment that you may sell a few more copies, then you do a deed that would make a demon blush. (Applause.)

I would not for my life, depreciate by one iota, the grandeur of this position which you occupy as the users of this great instrumentality. I have no sympathy with those who declare that all of the evil of to-day comes from that source, or that it is a weakness to any good cause. I do not believe it. It is not yet perfected; it is new; it is almost untried. Only a few years—ah, even the youngest of us can reach back to the real establishment of the modern newspaper; can reach back to the real organization of the wonderful chain of news-gatherers about the world. I do not believe that its destiny is to do evil. I believe those men that have held as well as well as those that will hold this power hereafter, will be good men in the main, and I believe that we shall learn our duty better, as we shall recognize our personal responsibility more clearly we shall perform it more righteously. It is easy to decry the press. It is easy to speak of its license as being a thing that makes many a household unhappy—that depraves many a life, but ah, when the time comes any great thought needs a voice—when any great cause needs an advocate, then our hearts throb with the rumbling cylinders in the night time. And when the millions of fresh copies fly over the earth with the morning sun, we thank God that good men, true men, honest men speak bravely to the world's heart. Our American press is a brave press. It is the voice of to-day uttered [illegible] upon any great subject. [illegible] time to become unanimous but sooner or later it voices the will of God; sooner or later it puts in its veto upon the act of [illegible]; sooner or later it endorses the life of righteousness.

It is a [illegible] honest press, but it [illegible] that yet has eliminated from itself all the elements of evil. If we study our responsibility more carefully, I believe that the day is not far [illegible] and the [illegible]

THE FULTON TIMES

Wednesday, June 21st, 1882.

SHALLOW men believe in luck; strong men believe in cause and effect.

THOUSANDS of seventeen year old locusts have appeared in Livingston unty.

ANOTHER halt in the Malley trial. One of the jurors had a death in his family.

FROM five to one hundred dollars have been offered Warden Crocker for tickets to the Guiteau hanging which is to occur one week from Friday.

THE Commission in Lunacy have been at the Utica Asylum investigating the killing of a patient by Poulton. They do not approve of the reticence observed by the asylum authorities regarding the affair.

THE President has approved the sentence in the case of Second Lieutenant Henry O. Flipper [colored], Tenth Cavalry, tried by court martial on charges of embezzlement and conduct unbecoming an officer, and sentenced to dismissal from the service.

THE mill owners of Patterson, N. J., tried locking their doors on circus days, but the girls climbed out of the windows. This year the city authorities, instigated by the same wily capitalists, charged a license fee of $1,000. The circus came just the same, and 20,000 mill girls attended, and the mills had to close. The circus is a power, and so are the girls.

THIS has been a season of disastrous storms of wind and rain. Grinell, Iowa was visited Saturday evening by a tornado and the telegraph reports half the town in ruins and forty lives lost, about 150 people wounded and 140 buildings destroyed. Other towns suffered but no lives sacrificed. Leavenworth, Kansas, was struck at a later period the same night demolishing many of the finest buildings in the city, the aggregate damages being estimated at $500,000. St. Mary's academy was wrecked and four female students were killed by falling walls. Kansas City was also struck, roofs and unfinished buildings falling an easy prey to the terrible wind. The storm is reported general in the country surrounding the latter city and the damage is great.

The farm house at Dexterville, formerly owned by Rev. John Cox, burned last Wednesday. The origin of the fire is unknown though supposed to have caught from the kitchen stove. The insurance was small.

Moses Summers, of Syracuse, who was injured by falling into the hold of a boat in New York harbor, died Thursday and was buried Sunday in Syracuse. He was one of the founders of the Syracuse Standard. He learned his trade, printer, with Richard Oliphant in Oswego and subsequently was a compositor in the office of the Oswego Palladium. He was four years in the late war.

Grand Army posts in this state are passing the following resolution:

Resolved, That the bill now pending before the senate of the United States, granting to all soldiers of the late war who lost a leg or arm in the service an increase of pension to the amount of $40 per month, is equitable and just, and we are in favor of the passage of the same, and do request the senators from this state to support the said senate bill, No. 1695.

TROUBLE SAVED.

It is a remarkable fact that THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL is as good for internal as external use. For diseases of the lungs and throat and for rheumatism, neuralgia crick in the back, wounds and sores it is the best known remedy, and much trouble is saved by having it always on hand.

NEIGHBORING NEWS.

N. M. Shattuck has been appointed postmaster at South Hannibal.

Oswego is making preparations to celebrate the Fourth of July on a grand scale.

William Vandevere of North Volney last week received a pension, the back pay amounting to $1,000

The members of St. Mary's Church of Syracuse held a picnic on the Oswego Falls fair grounds Monday.

Frederick Pitcher and Lydia Pitcher of Palermo, were married in Phœnix the 11th inst, by N. C. Alvord, Esq.

Rev. E. Huntly of Phœnix has accepted a call from the M. E. church at Brewerton and will remove to that place.

An excursion will go to Syracuse tomorrow from Oswego stopping at the upper D. L. & W. depot at 9:30 a. m. Fare for round trip 75 cents.

Hiram Baker of Mexico, Oswego Co. attempted to commit suicide in Rome Friday evening by taking laudanum. He was placed in the station house until he recovered and was then sent on his journey.

Thursday afternoon, Josie Cook of Oswego, the young lady who was reported to have received injury through a practical joke of a companion who pulled a chair from under her, was relieved from her sufferings by death.

The abundant rains of the last few weeks have revived the strawberry plants in this vicinity that from those which survived the winter an abundant yield is now expected. The commission men are making their contracts at from 6 to 6½ cents. [Oswego Times.

The Oswego Times says the Hon. Charles Spencer, the noted criminal lawyer of New York, is attending court at Pulaski with George K. Fox, proprietor of the Police Gazette, to defend the latter in an action brought by R. Y. Allen of that city, claiming damages for libel.

The investigation into the Onondaga county penitentiary has resulted in the removal of Supt. Spaulding and the appointment of ex-supervisor Ambrose L. Sadler in his place. The change appears to be acceptable to the people of that county. Mr. Spaulding goes to Rochester to manage the Osborn house.

The state teachers' association will meet in Yonkers July 5, 6 and 7. Prof. Straight of Oswego will make the report of the industrial committee on the first day. The D. L. & W. and the R. W. & O. R. Rs. will allow half fare, and there will also be a free excursion to Coney island and an excursion to the Catskills.

Last fall the vilage of Pulaski suffered an almost irreparable loss by fire. Their limited and ancient fire apparatus was powerless in staying the flames and Oswego furnished a steamer and men that did. Now Pulaski has voted down a proposition to purchase a steamer. If Oswego has use for its department the next time Pulaski is threatened with destruction what then?

Just before noon on Saturday the Baldwinsville fire alarm was sounded, but inquiry disclosed the fact that the second floor in the rear of J. Amos & Son's large flouring mills had fallen with its overload of shorts, and had carried with it into the raceway underneath, the first floor, and one Samuel Peckham who had been at work in the rear room. Half an hour later the poor man was taken from the race dead, undoubtedly suffocated by the shorts which enveloped him. Peckham was an industrious young man and leaves a young wife. Messrs. Amos suffered a loss of between $2,000 and $3,000, besides giving the unfortunate widow of Mr. Peckham a comfortable sum.

PARISH, June 15th, '82—The prospects of the farmers appear to be unfavorable at this season of the year. Grass is generally light, and less than last year. Old meadows will be mere nothing and they are being plowed up for the purpose of sowing corn for fodder, and for raising buckwheat. Wireworms are making havoc with the oats. There is less butter and cheese made than last year. On account of wet weather farmers have not finished planting corn and potatoes. Winter wheat is badly killed, some pieces will not yield a quarter of a crop. Trees blossomed very full. Eggs bring 20 cents per dozen at the farmers houses.

The Methodists observed childrens' day. The floral display was beautiful, and the mottoes good. OCCASIONAL.

PROBABILITIES.

The probabilities are that during the next two weeks there will be some weather a great deal of which will be in the question, "What is it?" In and about Syracuse the amount of snow will not equalize the volume of clothiug paper used every day by the "FAMOUS" in doing up bundles. There will be several snow-falls, and many would-be merchants require stimulants as a recompense for the low ebb. It is probable that there will be high winds in the neighborhood of the Globe and Vanderbilt, probably caused by drummers blowing about the quantity of goods they sold, to "THE FAMOUS," 2 and 3 Wieting Block. The most severe blows will be observed when Bradstreet and Dun report several Maculahs. Low pressure and extreme sultriness will be occasioned when the credit dealers hand in their bills. After the 28th, saloon-keepers will more than ever use convincing arguments against Syracuse water. Ice will form on the bars. It will be lumpy, but will not prevent the passage of vessels containing sour mash. An increased depression in the financial temperature of $12-a-week salesmen every Monday morning. Trade winds promise to be warm and strong, cheap for cash, all blowing towards "THE FAMOUS."

Low Prices, an Exceedingly Large Assortment.

The best of goods in the city continue to be the attraction at

HIS ACCOUNTS CORRECT.

Ex-Supervisor Vedder of Granby Explains—A Legitimate Business Transaction—The Reported Defalcation Groundless.

A report has been current upon the streets for some days that John Vedder ex-supervisor of the town of Granby was short in his accounts with the town some $800; that in turning over the town's accounts to his successor Thos. R. Wright it was discovered.

The facts are these as we learn them from Mr. Vedder: In April he had an accounting with Mr. Wright and paid over to him all monies and mortgages and valuable papers belonging to the town, with the exception of one mortgage for $81.82, which he was fortunate enough to convert into money by waiting a short time for it. The money has been received and paid to Mr. Wright and Mr. Vedder holds the former gentleman's receipt for it.

Mr. Vedder has been supervisor of the town of Granby for the three years last past and during his varied public and private life he has enjoyed the fullest confidence of the community.

An attempt has been made by some to place Mr. Vedder before the public as a defaulter, etc. which is as ungenerous as it is foolish. He is abundantly able to meet any obligation he may incur and the thougnt of his appropriating a few dollars is absurd.

Seminary Musicale.

Faithful, honest work deserves recognition. Therefore it is with pleasure that we call especial attention to the musicale to be given this evening at the Seminary. Let all who can, by their presence give testimony to their appreciation of an endeavor to form a correct musical taste. The admission, fifteen cents, is merely nominal, while the programme is such as will, without question, give satisfaction to all. Such recitals are a vigorous stimulant to the pupil to work earnestly and carefully, as well as an opportunity for the teacher to acquaint the public with the aims, nature and results of her teaching. We heartily commend them to attention and trust Miss Gilmour will be encouraged in such manner as her labor would justify her in anticipating.

AFTER EIGHT LONG YEARS

C. C. Jacobs, 78 Folsom Street, Buffalo, writes that for eight long years he had tried every known remedy to cure him of piles, also had been treated by physicians without success, when he was ultimately cured by Thomas' Electric Oil.

Early and Late Seasons.

It is a remarkable fact that when we have a cold or wet spring people will say "this is the most backward spring we ever knew." This spring has undoubtedly by its lateness called forth the same remark. If so it comes very near the truth, as there is but one exception. Since 1848 the most backward spring was 1867, when apple trees were not in full blossom until the 7th of June. Next to that in lateness was 1850, when it was June 4th. In 1857, 1869, 1874 and 1875 the 2d of June. In 1858 and 1861, June 1st. All other seasons except the present, apple trees have blossomed in May. The earliest season in over forty years was in 1878, apple trees in blossom as early as May 6th. The nearest to that was in 1860, May 18th, then followed 1859 with the date of May 20th. In 1834 cherry trees were in blossom May 13th, when there came a snow fall of one foot, breaking the trees down badly. We don't very often have snow falls in May, and then scarcely enough to measure. The spring of 1850 was very nearly with this in comparison, as apple trees are now what you may call in full bloom. Although this season is late it has been remarkably good for grass. Bobolinks always make their appearance in the month of May, and generally about the middle of the month. In 1870 as early as the 6th, and in 1867 as late as the 22d.

The Young Men's Catholic association of Oswego will hold their third annual excursion at Syracuse, N. Y., Wednesday, July 26, 1882.

VISIBLE IMPROVEMENT.

Mr. Noah Bates, Elmira, N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I had an attack of bilious fever, and never fully recovered. My digestive organs were weakened and I would be completely prostrated for days. After using two bottles of your Burdock Blood Bitters the improvement was so visible that I was astonished. I can now, though 61 years of age, do a fair and reasonable day's work." Price $1.00.

In Memoriam.

She is not dead,—
* * * * * * *
In that great cloister's stillness and seclusion,
By guardian angels led,
Safe from temptation, safe from sin's pollution,
She lives—whom we call dead."

Mrs. Louise Blanchard died June 17, 1882, aged 55 years. She had been an invalid for several years, but only until within three months had she given up her household cares. She was a great lover of her home and made it beautiful with flowers. Her illness was painful, but she struggled courageously with all that came to her lot to bear. Warmly attached to kindred and friends, she pronounced upon them her benedictions and longed to join the friends that had already gone to the other shore. Death came to her as a friendly release; peacefully she met him and no tormenting fears disturbed her calm repose.

She disposed to children and friends mementoes and indicated the hymns that should be sung at her funeral. She was ever ready to make sacrifices for others, and her home and its care and happiness was uppermost in her thoughts; she strove to make it beautiful.

With loving hands her daughter ministered to her wants, and friends tenderly did all that watchfulness and affection could suggest. She said a few days before her death: "Everything is so lovely! It is best that I go in this month of beautiful flowers." Not that she forgot her family, but she felt that her usefulness was ended and looked forward with an abiding faith and strong heart to the supreme moment when she should "lay her burdens down." She bade all her friends a cheerful and loving adieu as one that was going upon a pleasant journey and patiently waited the hour of her mortal release. She was a member of Zion church and was always interested in its prosperity, and and in her last sickness received much consolation and strength from the kind words and prayers of her rector. She was born in this town and for the last twenty-five years resided in the house, from where but yesterday kind friends tenderly carried her to the spot she had selected in Mt. Adnah, and laid her beneath the green turf and placed beautiful flowers she loved so well above her peaceful resting place.

She was married June 30th 1847 to Edward F. Blanchard and excepting a short residence in Oneida county following her marriage she has resided in this village.

She was a lady well known and much esteemed and her social qualities commended her to a large circle of friends. How changed the home! Too sacred are the sad thoughts that come to the sorrowing family and friends as the light of that home grew dim and has now gone out forever, to find expression in words; in silent subdued sympathy and love, children, sisters and friends gathered around her dying bed:—

We watched her breathing through the night,
Her breathing soft and low,
As in her breast the wave of life
Went heaving to and fro.

So silently we seemed to speak,
So slowly moved about,
As we had lent her half our powers
To eke her living out.

Our very hopes belied our fears,
Our fears our hopes belied;
We thought her dying when she slept,
And sleeping when she died.

For when the morn came dim and sad,
And chill with early showers,
Her quiet eyelids closed; she had
Another morn than ours. —[Hood.

Funeral was held from the late residence Monday afternoon at four o'clock and was attended by many friends and neighbors. Rev. E. Moyses of Zion church officiated. The choir sang "Jesus, lover of my soul" and "I would not live always," hymns selected by the deceased to be rendered at her funeral. W. S. Nelson, J. H. Woodin, Willard Johnson and J. W. Pratt acted as bearers.

Mrs Mary Kelly wife of Joseph P. Kelly died Thursday at her home corner Seward and Seventh streets of paralysis of which she suffered a severe shock the 12th, inst. Funeral was held from the house Sunday at 1:30 o'clock p. m. Rev. J. S. Riggs of the Presbyterian church officiating. The remains were interred in Mt. Adnah. Mrs Kelly formerly resided in Scriba and New Haven and was a lady possessing many noble qualities and her sudden death causes regret among the many who had learned to love her. A husband and one child survive her.

Anyone with an eye to the beautiful can not help but notice the change that has come over some of our Fulton ladies of late. The entire absence of former imperfections and the present clear and pleasant appearance of the face makes it evident that they have called upon Mr. Keenan and that his Toilet Cream has found its way to their dressing cases. Its effect is decidedly creditable and his goods are destined to becom every popular. 4t1

The collector of the village of Oswego Falls will be at E. J. Cronyn's grocery Friday afternoon from 1 to 5 p. m., and at D. C. Draper's grocery friday evening from 7 to 9.

The only change in the new time table of the D. L. & W. road is the running of the noon train to Syracuse. Instead of 12:33 it is 12:40. No change in the Fulton 'bus time.

One week from to-night the ladies of the M. E. church will give a Strawberry and Ice Cream Festival in Nichols hall. As this will be the first of the season it will undoubtedly be well patronized.

Leave your orders for the Syracuse Sunday Herald with the McIntyre boys or at Tucker's grocery. It is full of desirable reading and will be delivered at your residence for five cents a copy.

The village collector Ed. F. DeGraw, has received the warrant for the collection of taxes, and Willis Ney will receive the same at the News Room, commencing to-day. Read collector's notice. The collector's bondsmen are A. Howe, Geo. M. Case and Willard Johnson.

Fred. A. Gage and wife celebrated the 10th anniversary of their marriage last evening. It is reported as a very pleasant and enjoyable affair. Music from Oswego gave an opportunity to indulge in the mazy dance. Refreshments were served and every body seemed happy.

Geo. Garlock of this village has formed a business connection with J. C. Waterbury at No. 53 North Salina street, Syracuse, for wholesaling and retailing Canandaigua ales, wines, liquors, cigars, etc. His goods are first-class and people from this section wishing anything in his line will do well to give him a call when in the city.

The Y. M. C. A. excursion to Syracuse yesterday filled five coaches. The game of ball between the "Stars" of Syracuse and the home team was a one sided affair. The Stars scored twenty-five runs to nothing for the Fulton team. The Fulton club was improvised for the occasion and none of them are professional base-ballists.

Supervisor Thomas R. Wright of Granby was injured in his sawmill at Oswego Falls Monday afternoon by a truck load of lumber falling against him and striking him with full force in his back. He was carried to his residence and Drs. Hall and Pardee summoned. He is quite sore from the accident but nothing serious is likely to result from it.

MONDAY'S FURIOUS STORMS.

A Girl Killed by Lightning—An Oswego Man Prostrated—Trees Torn Down at Seneca Hill—No Damage in Fulton. Heavy Rain storm.

A severe storm passed over Utica, Rome and Syracuse Monday forenoon. Buildings were struck by lightning in Utica, New Hartford and Waterville. In New Hartford eighteen head of cattle were injured by lightning. In Syracuse the rain fell in torrents but no damage to buildings is reported. At Liverpool before the approach of the storm Mrs. Patrick Meade and her daughter, aged 14 years and six months, left the house, which is situated in the Highland Salt yard, and in which the husband is employed, to go to a field to search for potato bugs. They had reached the field when it was discovered that they had forgotten a pail, and the mother sent the girl back to the house for one. Soon after the girl Maggie left her, the storm burst upon the locality, and the mother knowing that the child would be afraid of the thunder and lightning, started after her. She had not proceeded many rods when a blinding flash of lightning occurred, which partially dazed Mrs. Mead. She looked to see where the girl was. She discovered her lying on the ground, and on hastening to her found she was dead. An examination showed that the lightning had struck the child at the chin, splitting the flesh open, and passing thence to the chest, the fluid had traversed the entire body of the unfortunate girl, burning her under clothes to cinders.

In Oswego county the storm was active. An employe in the D. L. & W. shops in Oswego was prostrated by lightning, and the telephone wires suffered somewhat. Minnetto was visited by a hail storm accompanied by heavy wind which did much damage. At Seneca Hill nine trees were blown down and a few telegraph poles prostrated. Thunder, lightning and rain were plenty in the vicinity of Fulton but no damage is reported.

A rumor is current that the Oswego Falls Observer is to be removed to Phoenix. Mr. Bradt, the editor, says it is a mistake. He is doing well in Oswego Falls and will remain there.

A Legal Conundrum.

A farmer of Oswego Town named Arroway some time since placed a horse in Lewis Otmann's pasture. The horse was drowned in a swamp about a week ago and now Arroway brings suit for the value of the horse. [Palladium.

The question for the jury to decide will be whether Mr. Otmann is more to blame for owning a pasture with a swamp on a portion of it, or Mr. Arroway for owning a horse fool enough to walk into it and get drowned. [Express

The value of Mr. Arroway's horse and a slice of Mr. Otmann's farm will be consumed by lawyers in convincing the jury whether the swamp swallowed the horse or the horse swallowed a portion of the swamp. Very interesting question! Very.

The Cheese Market.

(From the Utica Herald.)

UTICA, June 19.—Sales to-day were 2,093 boxes at 10½c, and 537 at 10¼c making 2,630 boxes sold; which with 1,043 consigned makes a total of only 3,678 boxes. Ruling price 10½c. A year ago the leading price was 10c, and two years ago it was 9¼c.

LITTLE FALLS, June 19.—Little cheese is now brought in on market days, it being the practice of most buyers to visit the factories during the week and inspect the cheese upon the shelves. The heavy rains and warm weather are putting grass in good shape, altho' there are complaints of light bottom and many roots killed by last winter's frosts. Cows are yielding better in milk, but still considerably below last year.

Following are the transactians:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price
6	235	10 cents
7	455	10 1-4 "
63	3644	10½ "
41	3045	10¾ "
2	133	p. t. "
14	1066	commission
133	8,522
Farm dairies	750
Total	9,272

AT FULTON

Sixteen factories were on register. Number of boxes offered: 1,205; Smith's Fulton factory, 80; total, 1,285. A few lots were sold at 10 to 10¼ but most of the cheese was taken by Mr. Osborne.

To those intending to travel this summer, we would say "take with you and keep supplied with Cobb's Little Podophyllin Pills, as a preventive of the bad effects of diet, water, &c. which so often spoil all the pleasure of a trip. Only 25 cents. For sale by R. E. Phillips.

CONTENTMENT GREAT GAIN.

"I Swear 'tis better to be lowly born,
And range with humble livers in content,
Than to be perk'd up in a glistening grief,
And wear a golden sorrow."

[Henry VIII.

It is common to talk of the humble poor man and of the proud rich man, but says one, let not these ideas be inseparably blended. There is many a man who sits down to a meal of bread and milk on a wooden table whose heart is as proud as the proudest whose birth is royal. And there is many a man who sits down to daily pomp, to whom gold and silver are but brass and tin. It is not the unjeweled finger, nor the affection of an almost Quakerish simplicity of attire, nor the scanty meal that constitute humility. Humility is the simple inner life of real greatness which bears all the circumstances of life silently and self sacrificingly in the heart of hearts, and where this is found, in high or low estate, with contentment, there is great gain. It is the antipodes of the proud heart that boasts itself in joy or sorrow, and seeks either to hide its woes beneath a gilded exterior, or to parade them in rags in order to gain symathy. Contentment is great gain; and so is it great gain to any man who purchases his clothing at Kent & Miller's. Their large and varied stock, just now being changed from spring light woolen to thinner things for summer wear; their new styles; their handsome patterns; and their low prices are matters not only of gain to their patrons, but well calculated to make all purchasers content, in the assurance that no where else could they be so well served as at

RESCUED FROM DEATH

William J. Coughlin of Somerville, Mass. says: In the fall of 1876 I was taken with bleeding of the lungs followed by a severe cough. I lost my appetite and flesh and was confined to my bed. In 1877 I was admitted to the hospital. The doctors said I had a hole in my lung as big as a half dollar. A one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I got a bottle, when to my surprise I began to feel better and to-day I feel better than for three years past.

I write this hoping every one afflicted with diseased Lungs will take DR WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAM and be convinced that CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED. I can positively say it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness.

SAMARITAN NERVINE!

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Epileptic Fits, Spasms, Convulsions, St Vitus Dance, Vertigo, Insanity, Apoplexy, Paralysis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all Nervous Diseases. This infallible remedy will positively eradicate every species of Nervous Derangement, and drive them away from whence they came, never to return again. It utterly destroys the germs of disease by neutralizing the hereditary taint or poison in the system, and thoroughly eradicate the disease, and utterly destroys the cause.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Female Weakness, General Debility, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Painful Menstruation, Ulceration of the Uterus, Internal Heat, Gravel, Inflammation of the Bladder, Irritability of the Bladder. For Wakefulness at Night, there is no better remedy. During the change of life no Female should be without it. It quiets the Nervous System and gives rest comfort and nature's sweet sleep.

SVMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Alcholism, Drunkenness and the habit of Opium Eating. These degrading habits are by far the worst evils that have ever befallen suffering humanity. Thousands die annually from these noxious drugs. The drunkard drinks liquor not because he likes it but for the pleasure of drinking and treating his friends, little thinking that he is on his road to ruin. Like the Opium Eater, he first uses the drug in small quantities as a harmless antidote. The soothing influence of the drug takes strong hold upon its victim, leading him on to his own destruction. The habits of Opium Eating and Liquor Drinking are precisely what eating is to alimentiveness, as over-eating first inflames the stomach, which redoubles its cravings until it paralyzes both the stomach and appetite. So every drink of liquor or dose of opium, instead of satisfying, only adds to its fierce fires, until it consumes the vital force and then itself. Like the gluttonous tape-worm, it cries "Give, give, give!" but never enough until its own rapacity devours itself. Samaritan Nervine gives instant relief in all such cases. It produces sleep, quiets the nerves, builds up the nervous system, and restores body and mind to a healthy condition.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Nervous Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Asthma, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Syphilis, diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases of the urinary organs. Nervous debility, caused by the indiscretions of youth, permanently cured by the use of this valuable remedy. To you, young middle aged and old men, who are covering your sufferings as with a mantle by silence, look up, you can be saved by timely efforts, and make ornaments to society, and jewels in the crown of your Maker, if you will. Do not keep this a secret longer, until it saps your vitals, and destroys both body and soul. If you are thus afflicted, take DR. RICHMOND'S Samaritan Nervine. It will restore your shattered nerves, arrest premature decay, impart tone and energy to the whole system.

SAMARITAN NERVINE.

Is for sale by druggists everywhere, or may be had direct from us. Those who wish to obtain further evidence of the curative properties of Samaritan Nervine will please enclose a 3 cent postage stamp for a copy of our Illustrated Journal of Health, giving hundreds of testimonials of cure from persons who have used the medicine, and also their pictures photographed after their restoration to perfect health. STONES IN THE KIDNEYS

AND BLADDER EXPELLED—LONG SUFFERING OF ONE OF TROY'S—BEST PEOPLE —A LUCKY MAN.

It is by no means a strange thing that Dr. Kennedy should have received the following letter. By reading it you will see in one minute why James Andrews was thankful;

TROY, N. Y. April, 8, 1882.

Dr D. Kennedy Rondout N. Y.

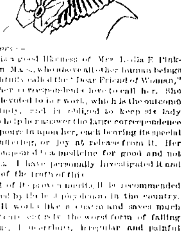
DEAR SIR:—Until within a recent date I had for several years suffered greatly from gravel, called by the doctors the brick-dust sediment. For about a year past this sediment has not passed off in the usual quantity, but has accumulated, causing me untold pain. Having heard of "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" I tried it in my case, and after using about one and one-half bottles, I voided a stone from the bladder, of an oval shape, 7-16 of an inch long, and rough on its surface. I send yo the largest piece that you may see of what it is composed, since then I have felt no pain. I now consider myself cured, and cannot express my thankfullness and gratitude for so signal a deliverance from a terrible a disease. You have my consent to use this letter, should you wish to do so, for the benefit of other sufferers.

Yours Truly,
JAMES ANDREWS.
No 10 Marshal St, Ida Hill.

When we consider that the medicine which did this service for Mr. Andrews cost only one dollar a bottle, it would seem that persons in like fashion can afford the expence of testing its virtues. Get it of your druggist, or address Dr. David Kennedy Rondout, N. Y. "Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" for sale by all druggists.

A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN.

[From the Boston Globe.]



Messrs. Editors:—

The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," as some of her correspondents love to call her. She is zealously devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times and under all circumstances act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass.

For Kidney Complaint of either sex this compound is unsurpassed as abundant testimonials show.

"Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills," says one writer, "are the best in the world for the cure of Constipation, Biliousness and Torpidity of the liver. Her Blood Purifier works wonders in its special line and bids fair to equal the Compound in its popularity."

All must respect her as an Angel of Mercy whose sole ambition is to do good to others.

VAN VALKENBURG'S RESTAURANT.

—:o:—

A Model Restaurant and Billiard Room Charley have you been to look at Van's place, on the corner of First and Oneida Streets since he has remodeled and enlarged it? His Restaurant! Yes, was the reply, and it certainly is one of the best appointed and most attractive places ever opened in our village. Such is the fact. This ever popular place has been thoroughly Repainted and Remodeled so that it is now more pleasant and attractive than ever before. The partitions have been removed, the Rooms made Larger so that any that may wish to go to a First-Class Restaurant can do so now and can go into a private entrance to lunch alone, separate and alone. He has also a Billiard & Pool Room attached, entirely separate from Bar or Lunch Room. The Tables are of Babcock's best make, handsomely gotten up and have the Celebrated Magic Double Action Cushion which are so popular with all lovers of Billiard and Pool. All that money can do to make Van's place more popular than ever has been done. Only the best of everything is kept. Call and look at his bill of fare and know for yourselves the Lunch Van gets up and you will be surprised to learn that he keeps on hand everything in the shape of Lunch that could be got at Delmonicos. He is prepared to get up Lunch for Picnicing and Fishing Parties on the shortest notice in Elegant Style and at very reasonable rates. Now I will give you a small list of his lunches that he gets up: Oysters, in every style; Clam Chowder, Sardines, Lobsters, Crabs, Salmon, Mackerel, Anchovey Chicken, Boiled Ham, Pig Feet Stew, Pork and Beans, Sandwiches of all kinds, Pies and Cheese, Tea and Coffee, and other things and all very cheap. Call and get some of his lunches and you will be more than pleased at the price, so much so that you will say to yourself well I did not know before that people could get such dishes for so small a figure and up here in the country. I have found the place to get my lunch from now out. The prices are what catches me.

Fashion Notes.

Dark surah is worn for street dresses.

All conspicious jewelery is avoided by young ladies.

The draped polonaise is much used for white mull over-dresses.

The shirred basques of last summer are worn with white dresses.

Simple white dresses for young girls are made of sprigged or dotted muslin. Summer surah dresses are often made up with the short round polka basque.

White is almost universally worn by young ladies at afternoon weddings in June.

Imported dresses are made of mull muslin, nainsook and other sheer lawns that contain no starch.

Slender bracelets and valuable rings are about the only fashionable pieces of jewelry worn with white costumes.

A pretty and inexpensive trimming for white dresses is a puff sheer mull around the neck and wrists, with ribbon run in it.

Imported white dresses are trimmed with embroidery, to which is often added some inexpensive lace, or perhaps some real Mechlin or Valenciennes in the new design.

The twilled surahs with or without satin finish are in great favor for street suits, and these take the place of the summer taffeta silks so long used, and rival the popular foulards.

The Bazar says: "The over-dress of white muslin is made without lining, but is worn over a high corset cover, the sleeves being the only transparent part of the corsage. The neck is cut in a low point in front, or it may be finished high at the throat with a standing ruffle of embroidery, and inside this two standing frills of lace.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC ENDORSEMENT

GORHAM, N. H., July 14, 1879.

Gents—Whoever you are, I don't know; but I thank the Lord and feel grateful to you to know that in this world of adulterated medicines there is one compound that proves and does all it advertises to do, and more. Four years ago I had a slight shock of palsy, which unnerved me to such an extent that the least excitement would make me shake like the ague. Last May I was induced to try Hop Bitters. I used one bottle, but did not see any change; another did so change my nerves that they are now as steady as they ever were. It used to take both hands to write, but now my good right hand writes this. Now, if you continue to manufacture as honest and good an article as you do, you will accumulate an honest fortune, and confer the greatest blessing on your fellowmen that was ever conferred on mankind.

3w2 TIM BURCH.

Good Nature.

Good nature is a gem which shines brightly wherever it is found. It cheers the darkness of misfortune and warms the heart that is callous and cold. In social life who has not seen and felt its influence? Don't let little matters ruffle you; nobody gains anything by being cross and crabbed. If a friend has injured you, if the world goes hard if you want employment and can't get it, or can't get your honest dues, or fire has consumed or water swallowed up the fruits of many years toil, or your faults are magnified, or enemies have traduced or friends deceived, never mind; don't get mad at anybody, don't abuse the world or any of its creatures.

Keep good natured, and our word for it, it will come right. The soft south wind and the gentle sun are not more effectual in clothing the earth with verdure and sweet flowers than is good nature in adorning the hearts of men and women with blossoms of kindness, happiness and affection, those flowers the fragrance of which ascends to heaven.

A TALENTED LADY'S VIEWS.

Mrs. C. P. Flemming, State Lecturer of Missouri, and also an artist of rare merit, whose picture of Adelaide Neilson is pronounced by the press to be the most beautiful portrait in the United States, in a recent letter said: "I have been troubled with kidney disease since my childhood, and it finally culminated in chronic catarrh of the bladder. It would be impossible for me to describe how much I have suffered, and I had abandoned all hope of ever being cured. I was, however, recommended to try Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, and it has done me more good than the combined skill of all the physcians I have ever tried during my entire life." Such testimony is beyond question, and proves the value to all ladies of the remedy it advocates.

PICQUOISEAU and his doctor: "And you say you still suffer from indigestion?"

"Constantly."

"Then you have not followed my directions."

"Oh, yes, doctor; just as you directed. I only smoke after meals."

"That is to say."

"That is to say, from noon till seven in the evening, and from eight in the evening till midnight."

"PRO BONO PUBLICO"

It is a remarkable fact that while thousands of people refuse to read paib puffs of worthless nostrums, none skid over Dr. Swayne's little squib about his Ointment for itching piles that itch so much at night. The people well know that it is published for their benefit, in other words it is puo bono publico. May its far reaching effects be peruated to the end af time. 3w4

Young ladies usually wear the casaquen jacket on the street; or the postillion waist, made with a short point in front; military trimming, in strips of plain braid, placed an inch apart, or of large silk or worsted cord and frog buttons, is the most fashionable finish for cloth or flannel costumes.

How often persons have been annoyed by burrs clinging to their dress or clothing, and how seldom have they when cleaning them, given it a thought that Burdock Root is the most valuable blood cleaner and purfiier known, and is sold by every druggist under the name of Burdock Blood Bitters. Price $1.00

"The term hydra may be used to represent any manifold evil. If you would battle successfully with this many-headed monster of disease you will find it expedient to keep Mrs Pinkham's Vegetable Compound always at hand.—Dr. Banning.

TRUTH ATTESTED:

Some Important Statements of Well-Known People Wholly Verified.

In order that the public may fully realize the genuineness of the statements, as well as the power and value of the article of which they speak, we publish herewith the facsimile signatures of parties whose sincerity is beyond question. The truth of these testimonials is absolute, nor can the facts they announce be ignored.

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., June 28, 1881.

Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co.:

GENTLEMEN—I have been afflicted with kidney troubles for years, and in October last it culminated in Bright's Disease. I was confined to my bed for several months, and had given up all hopes or desire to recover, when I began the use of Your Remedy. I have immediate relief, and I am now, and have been since the 1st of April, constantly engaged at my business, which I owe to your Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. The doctors all thought I was going to die, and when I improved so fast, several of the neighbors called in wonder to see me, and many of my friends are using your remedies.

A YORKER IN YANKEELAND.

Visiting Scenes of Boyhood—Description of Hoosac Tunnel.

To the Editor of The Times:

First I visited Williamstown, Mass., where I resided for several years and where I went to school and the place where I was converted and where I commenced to hold meetings. Here I preached my first sermon. The Sabbath evening after my arrival I was permitted to hold forth the word of life in a more beautiful and commodious structure than the one occupied when I worshipped with the people here in former times.

Great improvements have been made here. Cyrus W. Field of New York gave about $12,000 to improve the streets and sidewalks. Memorial hall is a fine piece of workmanship. It is built of stone and cost $25,000. The show cases cost $5000. Another building is now being erected which will cost when completed about $100,000. It is called Morgan Hall, in honor of ex-governor Morgan of New York who has already donated $75,000 and probably give more if they should need it. An iron observatory has also been built which is a beautiful structure. Some benevolent man gave them a $3000 telescope, said to be one of the best in the United States. Many other beautiful improvements have been made and travellers on the Boston & Hoosac tunnel route will find this a delightful place to visit in the summer months.

North Adams is nestled in a beautiful valley a short distance from the west end of the Hoosac Tunnel and is one of the most thrifty towns in the state. Adams six miles distant is ditto. There are about thirty manufactories in both villages.

Some facts in relation to the Hoosac tunnel may be of interest to your readers. It was first proposed in 1819, chartered in 1848, commenced in 1851; headings met Nov. 27th, 1874 and completed in 1875; total length, 25,031 feet; east end central shaft 12,837 feet; central shaft to west shaft 9,694 feet; west shaft to end, 2,500 feet; depth of central shaft, 1,028 feet, west shaft, 318 feet; size of central shaft, 15x27 feet, west shaft, 10x14 feet; height of eastern summit, 1,429 feet; western summit, 1,718; grade per mile, 2,640; error in lines at points of meeting 9-16ths of an inch. Tons of rock excavated, 1,900,000; height 20 feet; width 24 feet; men employed 800 to 900; miles from Boston, 136; first train through Feb. 9th, 1875; freight April 5th, 1875, passenger, Oct. 13th, 1875; above tide at east portal, 755 feet; total length of brick arching 7,573 feet; No. of brick used 20,000,000; cost $14,000,000; lives lost, 195; contractors, F. & W. Shanly, Montreal.

Two of the through trains connect at North Adams with trains for west, thus giving the northern tier of towns in the state the same facilities for through travel as are afforded by Boston & Albany railroad along its line. The time allowed for running through the tunnel is eighteen minutes for passenger trains and thirty for freight. The combination known as the Hoosac tunnel line embraces eighteen railroads from Maine to Mississippi, and keeps from six to eight thousand cars in motion.

"The world moves." Business is thriving in this part of the state. I think this place is an extra town for laborers and mechanics. Their morals must be better than those of most places for I have been in Williamstown, Adams and North Adams for several days past and have not seen a drunken man. There are few arrests for drunkenness and crime. Banish whiskey and peace will come in greater measure than we now enjoy.

Last Sabbath morning I preached in the M. E. church at Adams. I have enjoyed my visit among my friends of other years but I am not forgetful of those I leave behind. May the Lord bless you in every good word and work.

A HALF DOLLAR TRIAL.

Mr. Earnest King, editor of the Fall River, (Mass.) Sun, thus discourses upon the merits of St. Jacobs Oil: "Suffering with rheumatic pains I was Didymus as to remedies. I read of St. Jacobs Oil and said here goes for a half dollar trial. I bought a bottle and before it was half used the screw-wrench pains had gone and troubled me no longer."

Lawyer Brown is a Sabbath school teacher. He was endeavoring to inculcate into the pupils' minds the necessity of a firm belief in things spiritual, when one of the class with open, eyed astonishment exclaimed: "Why, Mr. Brown, I heard you tell a witness in court the other day that you didn't care what he believed. All you cared about was what he knew."

"Every truth has two sides; look at both before committing yourself to either." Kidney-Wort challenges the closest scrutiny of its ingredients and its grand results. It has nothing to fear from truth. Doctors may disagree as to the best methods and remedies, for the cure of constipation and disordered liver and kidneys. But those that have used Kidney-Wort, agree that it is by far the best medicine known. Its action is prompt, thorough and lasting.

SNOW BANKS IN MID-SUMMER.

Doing Colorado and Wyoming—Indians Receiving Rations—Meeting a Fulton Boy.

LARIMER CITY, Wyom'g T'y, June 9, '82.
Editor Fulton Times:

May 29th in the midst of a terrific snow storm we left Breckenridge scaled the divide and were soon whirling toward the Queen City of the plains.

Those unacquainted with the fact it may seem almost incredible that snow still lies at a depth of from four to six feet and falls every month in the year upon every mountain range in the rockies. But to one who has experienced the reality as I did not long since the belief is forced home with a stern positiveness not easily to be forgotten. The road bed over the South Park between Como and Denver is without doubt the crookedest piece of work in the English language. It would seem to a tender foot as if in laying out the line the engineers had become lost and bewildered as people sometimes do on the broad prairies, and had wandered around in circles until suddenly coming upon the old trail, had again started out to become confused and uncertain and commence describing semi-circles, horseshoes and other eccentric diagrams upon the mountain sides.

Denver the mountain metropolis has grown mightily since we were there last and in the electric light of to-night the wild border town of ten years ago would not be recognized. We had the pleasure decoration day of getting a glimpse of Ned Buntline's famous protege Buffalo Bill, who was shaking his wild and savage locks in the most approved manner. One of the most sensational affairs of the day was the robbery of the much lionized Indian fighter of $8500 in notes, jewelry and cash. Years ago Bill Cody gave up the life of a scout and turned to the less dangerous and more profitable business of cattle raising in the northern part of Colorado, at which he has accumulated a handsome fortune. A few days ago we called upon and spent a pleasant evening with Johnny Ward an old time Fulton boy who for several years has been living in Denver.

To the north about fifty miles Greely, the most beautiful and picturesque town in Colorado, is located. Led by various reports to have great faith in the fertility of the Castle Pudse valley, I had pictured Greeley as the grand glittering diamond shirt thereof, and it was. Lying embowered in the shade of umbrageous trees, surrounded by the softest and most velvety of lawns, were snug white cottages, stores and busines houses, while the whole betokened that air of happiness and prosperity for which a New England village has so long been proverbial. Greeley was colonized in 1870 by the illustrious author whose name it bears, with emigrants from the middle and eastern states. It has a population of two thousand five hundred and has long been noted for the efficiency with which its prohibitory liquor laws are enforced, and the industry and thrift of its people, who are nearly all engaged in farming and gardening. When settled, Greeley was quite generally condemned for bringing poor people out here and turning them adrift to starve upon an arid sandy desert, but irrigation has done its work successfully. In one respect at least the Colorado farmer has the advantage of the eastern one. Instead of trusting to fortune for an occasional rainfall, whenever his crops are in need of water he avails himself of the irrigating ditch, and lets in as much or as little as may suit his convenience. Thus if his land can be irrigated he is always reasonably sure of a fair crop, while every pound of produce thrown upon the market is worth treble what it will bring in the east.

Cheyenne, at one time during the Black Hills excitement the liveliest town in the north-west, is at present unquestionably dull. Too many vacant buildings bearing the ominous sign to rent, stares one in the face. Still its people like those of every other town in the west have plenty of faith in its success, and probably with good and sufficient reason. Like too many towns in the north-west it has overgrown itself and become as one might say bow legged. Still with careful nursing it will come out all right and become not only the pride of the cattle kings, but of the entire territory. It has about five thousand population. The cattle business being paramount, many thousand head of cattle, sheep, horses and mules being shipped annually to points in the east.

Larimie city sixty miles to the west, has nearly three thousand inhabitants, and is one of the oldest and most historic towns in the entire west. It is upon the old over land route to California and was one of Fremont and Kit Carson's stopping places in early days.

A few miles from here are gold washings that are said to have been very rich many years ago, but the cabins are deserted and the musical voice of the 49er can no longer be heard in the gulch.

Here in Larimie city is also an agency of one of the little bands of Indians. As it was ration day the afternoon of our arrival, and being compelled to wait for several hours, we were afforded the opportunity to witness the extraordinary sight of the child like wards of the government receiving their weekly chuck at the hand of the benignant agent. Here the squaws scramble for their soap and coffee, sugar, tobacco, salt, rice etc., which is apportioned out to each family, and the bucks for their blankets, ammunition, beef and whatever else may be due them. A few guns were also dealt out with which to kill settlers and prospectors, I suppose. After the receipt of the provisions it is put into a sack of many apartments loaded on a pony, upon which is placed a large hunk of bloody agency beef and the whole surmounted by a hideous old squaw and the circus starts for lodge or camp situated about fifteen miles to the north in the Wasatch hills. I dont think they ever heard Oscar Wilde on the "Decorative Art." Some of the bucks did a thriving trade selling feather trimmed and steel pointed arrows at twenty-five cents each. But the train will be here in a few moments and we must be off.

A BLIND MANUFACTURER.

How a Sightless Man Dispenses with a Guide and is Making His Fortune.

Moses Schwartz, a trunk manufacturer of Brooklyn, is totally blind, yet he is proprietor of several trunk stores, and is a prosperous business man, and does business with many customers who do not detect his misfortune. When he was a boy he ruined his eyes by putting a match in a pan of gunpowder, and although his sight was ruined for life, and he was advised to spend his life in an asylum for the blind, he resented such expressions of sympathy and said that he intended to make his way in the world by means of his remaining senses. He was passing St. Paul's churchyard one day and being attracted by the noise made by the "fakirs" who stood by the iron fence to sell their wares, he halted and opened a conversation with one of them. "I am blind," he said, "and am not going to beg or steal. I think I can stand here and earn my living as you do. Now, tell me where I can buy a stock."

The next day he was at the churchyard fence with a lot of goods, and he at once found that, though his sight was gone, he could cry his wares with a good pair of lungs, and make his fingers serve him in assorting money and making change. For years he remained a familiar figure in Broadway. He found that his sense of hearing became most acute, and he acquired a sensitive touch. Having a mechanical turn, he began the manufacture of trunks in a small way, and now he runs a factory. He can make a trunk as well as any of his workmen. He has devised several things in trunk making, and he avers that one patented article now yielding a good income to another was originated by him.

In walking the streets Mr. Schwartz uses no guide. He holds his head erect, and carries a cane with which he deftly feels his way. His pace is slow and he seems to have no difficulty in getting along. His firmness of manner and dignified bearing create a space about him, and persons who know not his blindness instinctively turn aside to let him pass. If by chance he strikes against any one he politely begs pardon, touches his hat, if the collision chances to be with a lady, and passes on. "It is foolish" he says, "for a blind man to have a boy or dog to lead him. It teaches him dependence, and from what I can learn, men who have guides do not get along as well as I do."

"Are you ever run over by vehicles?"

"I have been once or twice. I was knocked down by a lady's phaeton in Schermerhorn street once because I miscalculated the distance of the vehicle on account of the far pavement which deadened the sound of the wheels. But I have a trick for saving myself when I'm knocked down."

"What is that?"

"I roll over and over just as fast as I can, sideways, until I'm sure I'm out of danger of being crushed. Then I jump to my feet, call out I'm all right and go on my way."

"Few persons know that you are blind?"

"Yes, that's true. My present wife did not know it until after we got in love with each other. I go into company as much as I can, and as I can talk and sing I get along pretty well. I had, however, to tell my wife of my infirmity on one occasion before we were married to excuse my awkwardness in a dance. I bumped against some of the others in the figure so often that they became angry, and I had to confess my blindness. I go to the theatre very often, and nearly always have a front seat in the balcony. I'm very fond of the music, and I like comedy very much."

"How do you decide upon your stock of leather goods?"

"By the sense of touch and by the sense of smell. I can tell you all the different kinds of leather by sample—by the oily feeling and smell. I never was deceived yet. In fact, I get along so well that some of my rivals have started the story that I am not blind—that I only pretend to be. [N. Y. Sun

THE FULTON TIMES

Wednesday, June 28th 1882.

YELLOW FEVER has made its appearance in New Orleans.

THE great Malley trial is being summed up preparatory to going to the jury.

JAMES G. BLAINE telegraphed $1,000 to the cyclone suffers in Iowa. Blaine is out of politics.

THE great water cure hotel, "Our Home" at Dansville, Livingston Co., burned Sunday evening.

FRIDAY, between the hours of 12, noon and 2 o'clock p. m., Charles J. Guiteau will be hung at Washington, D. C.

COURTNEY has accepted a challenge from Elliot the English ex-champion and will row him at an early day for $1000.

SATURDAY was a warm day. In New York the thermometer registered 102 in the shade. It was oppressive in this locality.

THE noted Irish agitator and land leaguer, Michael Dovitt, of Ireland, will deliver a lecture in Syracuse Friday evening of this week.

ON Monday one hundred deaths occurred in New York city, twenty-three of which are ascribed to the effects of the intense warm weather.

BEECHER in his Sunday sermon said the present great strike in New York city was justifiable, and that working men's unions, leagues, etc, were popular educators.

IOWA, Nebraska and Minnesota were visited by a cyclone Saturday. A number of lives are reported lost and irreparable damage was done to crops and houses. This is a season of tornadoes, etc., in the western country.

A FIRE in the Pacific Mills, at Lawrence, Mass., Friday, destroyed the store house and contents valued at $450,000. The Pacific Mills are among the largest in the country carrying an insurance of $4,000,000, in 119 companies.

THE number of wool manufacturing establishments in the United States at the end of May, 1880, was 2,684. The capital invested $159,644,000; hands employed, 161,000; wool consumed [pounds] 296,192,000; value of products, $267,699,000.

THE latest bulletin from the census office shows the number of males in the United States over 11 years to be 12,880,349, of whom 8,270,078 are native and 3,072,487 of foreign birth. The number of colored men is 1,487,344. The number of farms is 88,406.

GOV CORNELL has appointed a committee, pursuant to an act of the legislature, to examine the new capitol to determine its safety. It is becoming really a serious question whether the building is safe or not. It has cost up to date over $16,000,000 and the end is not yet.

THE greenbackers think that the outlook is more favorable to them in Pennsylvania than to either of the other parties. With two republican tickets in the field, and the democrats bickering over local affairs, they are inclined to think their opportunity for power has come.

A STATE convention of representatives of the National Greenback Labor party of the State of New York will be held in the city of Albany at noon, on Tuesday July 18,1882, to nominate candidates for governer lieutenant-governor, and chief judge of the court of appeals. Oswego county is entitled to eight delegates to this convention.

JUDGE N. W. Nutting, of Oswego, it seems of late is said to have been seeking the office of Congressman, which he most emphatically denies. He says he has not been looking for the office, or does not care for it. But, if he be chosen by the people as a candidate and the nomination is tendered him he will accept, providing the Republicans harmonize, otherwise he will not. Mr. Nutting has always been a straightforward republican and has worked for the interests of the party, and should he receive the nomination the choice could not be improved.

THE printers employed in several offices in Buffalo made a peremptory demand for an advance in the price of composition—type setting—and being refused struck. The publishers thereupon employed new men paying them the advance asked by the strikers, but refusing to employ them. The printers have issued a circular asking tradesmen to withdraw their advertising patronage from these journals and the public to refrain from patronizing them, introducing a petty system of boycotting. The journals present a solid front against any attempt to be coerced into paying a specified amount of wages or employing certain men.

THE cabinet consideration of Guiteau's case leave no hope for official interference and Friday he will expiate upon the gallows for his brutal crime. The history of his crime and trial are familiar to all readers and a repitition is unnecessary.

His spiritual adviser is Rev. W. W. Hicks, an itinerant preacher and republican stump speaker who addressed the republicans of Fulton in 1880 in Nichols hall. At that time he was heralded by flaming posters as the "Hon. W. W. Hicks of Florida," while the man whose pathway to everlasting life he is laboring to make clear was in another part of the country laboring for the same cause only labelled the "Hon. Chas. J. Giteau, the Little Giant of the West."

AT CLEVELAND, Ohio, Friday a freak of nature asserted itself for which no satisfactory explanation is yet given. A soft, balmy breeze was blowing across Lake Erie but so mild as to scarcely ruffle the surface of the water, when the wind suddenly shifted, clouds appeared and a huge mountain wave was seen approaching the harbor. Immediately on it came with constantly increasing momentum, and with a great crash struck the shore, tearing everything to pieces and covering the ground with debris. The most damage was done when the wave receded, for the undertow washed out the bank and carried stones weighing many tons into the lake. After the wave receded there was no further disturbance. The wind changed to the south, and the surface of the lake was again unruffled, but was covered with timbers, railroad ties, boards and broken [illegible]. The estimated loss to shipping and buildings along the lake front is placed at $50,000.

NEIGHBORING NEWS.

The democrats of Pennsylvania are holding their convention in Harrisburg to-day.

Ira Pierce of Phoenix, of Pierce & Breed, millers, died last Wednesday morning.

Rev Francis D. McGuire, a Catholic priest at Cleveland, has been assigned to the Fonda mission and will assume duties there July 9.

Fred Ingersoll of Mexico, who last winter struck a lad named Levalley a blow on the head with a chair, from which the boy died, was indicted in Pulaski last week for murder.

The Oswego Palladium says: some time ago a dying woman in another town requested Rev. Dr. Tully of this city to preach her funeral sermon. He did so and has been notified of a bequest of $1,000 in her will.

Sam Williams, who is in jail at Lyons under sentence of death for the murder of Hall, sent word to his father in Utica to come and see him. The old man sent his regrets. He is serving a five days sentence for drunkenness.

The Hannibal News says: "The circus at Fulton Thursday, made a light draught from this vicinity. Those that went from here gave various reasons. One said he was going to see his sister, one to see an uncle that he had not seen in several years,all gave a good reason for visiting Fulton, but none went to the circus. Oh no!

George Bristol a former resident of Bristol Hill, Volney, writes from his home in Wisconsin that his son was shot with a pistol last week, the ball entering his neck one inch back and one inch below the ear. The surgeon put the probe into the wound four and one half inches but did not find the ball. A boy was fussing with the lock and accidentally discharged the weapon with bad results.

The graduating exercises of Phoenix academy will take place at Windsor hall Friday, June 30, at 8 p. m. Officer Reed of Oswego entered the refreshment house of Andrew Hirshholz, in Oswego Sunday and saw four men seated at a table with partially emptied mugs, containing a few drops of liquid of an amber hue surmounted by a heavy coating of foam. Officer Reed swore out a warrant for Mr. Hirshholz' arrest for violating the Sunday liquor law. He was examined, pleaded not guilty and the case was adjourned until this evening.

Oswego is to have a balloon ascension the Fourth of July. Some of the Oswego reporters have expressed a desire to accompany the balloonist and explore the mysteries of the upper kingdom. The reporter that occupied a bed with Dr. Slade in the Doolittle house and was hurled by invisible agencies about the room, would make an excellent etherial messenger. His imagination is so abnormal that he would encounter angels before reaching the zenith of the court house.

Wednesday, forty employees in the Midland shops in Oswego were peremptorily discharged on the ground that there was no work for them. The Oswego Times says the men are very much excited over the unfortunate event. They are nearly all men who have property in Oswego and the blow comes heavily to them. They insist that their discharge is due to the fact that the common council refused the right of way to certain points in the city that the Midland may compete with rival roads.

On Saturday afternoon two little girls, daughters of Jerome Root and Thomas Quick, while coming from Monroe's woods near Baldwinsville, were brutally assaulted by a farm laborer named Humphreys, who threatened to blow out Miss Root's brains if she did not submit to his demands. She fought her assailant with all the strength she had, while Miss Quick fled screaming toward the nearest house. The Root girl succeeded in getting away before Humphreys accomplished his purpose. The brute was promptly arrested and held to await the action of the grand jury.

An accident occurred at Cazenovia, Thursday night during an entertainment by two trapeze performers connected with Hillard's circus. While both of the performers were hanging by their feet with their heads downward, one of the main ropes supporting the canvass broke, precipitating them to the ground, striking upon their heads, breaking the neck of one, who expired instantly, and injuring the spine and brain of the other who was removed to St Joseph's hospital in Syracuse. The young men were aged respectively 22 and 21 and lived in Canton, Ohio. They traveled under the name of the Thoma brothers, one being named Thoma and the other Horbuck.

"How do you manage," said a lady to her friend, "to appear so happy all the time?" "I always have Parker's Ginger Tonic handy," was the reply, "and thus keep myself and family in good health and spirits. See adv. 6w4

MISS MINNIE L. WOOD.

An Humble Retraction By Men Who Circulated Stories Injuring Her Good Name.

We have received the following from Rev. Geo. W. Wood, (formerly of Gilberts Mills) with a note stating that it was obtained with the understanding that it would be published.

We the undersigned, hereby certify that all statements or stories which we have made or circulated defamatory of the character of Miss Minnie L. Wood were founded, not upon our personal knowledge of their truth, but solely upon hearsay. That we have traced said defamatory statements or stories to their foundation and have ascertained that they are wholly false, malicious and without any foundation in fact. That we know of no fact against the moral and Christian character of said Miss Wood, and believe that no such fact exists and believe that she is a moral, virtuous and Christian young lady. What we have said was said without due regard to our own honor as men. We deeply regret that we gave any credence whatsoever to said stories; we are sorry for our giving the offense of repeating them and pledge ourselves to do all in our power to counteract and crush the evil influence or impressions caused by our words. Furthermore we acknowledge that we circulated said stories to injure the character of Miss Minnie L. Wood and we repeat we are sorry for the same.

Signed,

Reduce the Taxes.

There is a proposition before Congress to strike out all internal taxes except those on distilled spirits. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue reported at the opening of Congress that "the receipts of internal revenue for the fiscal year 1879 were $113,449,621.38; for the fiscal year 1880, $123,981,916.10; for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1881, $135,229,912.30, and the receipts for the first four months of the present fiscal year have been $50,876,970.11, being $7,061,722.85 in excess of the receipts for the corresponding months of the last fiscal year. If this increase should be maintained during the remaining eight months of the fiscal year the receipts for 1882 will be fully $157,000,000."

Finally the President, in his message, called the attention of Congress to the fact that the revenue during the coming year would probably reach $400,000,000, while the estimated expenditures would be only $270,000,000, on which account he very properly advised a considerable reduction of the burdens of taxation. Mechanics and laboring men all over the country are striking for higher wages because they cannot support their families, and employes in many instances are powerless to remedy the defect as clumsily laid taxes rest like a pall upon their business.

By removing the tax from such articles as necessity brings into general use it will still leave a large surplus to the credit of the government and render incalculable ease to laboring men. There is no reason for piling up a surplus of millions in the vaults of the government. Abolish some of the tax. Enough should be collected to pay the current expenses of the government only, and if more should at any time be needed a resort to the present method would be justifiable.

With millions of dollars lying idle it is an incentive to jobs made plausible from the fact that it will furnish work and keep the money in circulation. Remove the surplus and our congressional vultures and jobbers will not make such unwarrantable and unquestionable raids upon the people's money.

The press generally is warning readers against a bare-faced dead beat, whose mode of business is to call at every house and offer a package of tea for thirty cents, promising each purchaser a prize in the list of which are suits of furniture, organs, watches, clocks and other articles. These prizes are to be delivered after he has canvassed the town. The result is, those who purchase pay about two prices for an inferior article of tea, and will never see the swindler again.

Exhibiting the Dead President.

Governor Sherman of Iowa was in Cleveland and was allowed to see the remains of President Garfield. He tells a reporter of the Elmira Commercial Advertiser the following:

"I saw president Garfield a day or two ago in Cleveland. You need not look astonished—I really saw him—not his spirit, but his own form and features. I had visited his tomb to do homage to the spot where the martyr-president was sleeping. The watchman in charge on learning who I was and whence I came, asked me if I would like to see the president. I was as greatly surprised as you can be. He simply showed me he was in earnest, invited me into the tomb, unscrewed and removed the lid from that sacred casket, and there lay General Garfield before me—just as he looked the day of his funeral—as if in a weary unrefreshing sleep. I was surprised; for, despite the emaciation of those noble features, I was at once struck with their likeness to the general, as I had seen him alive. I presume that years will pass ere the preserving traces of the embalmer's work will have removed all that is left on earth of Garfield. He was a great man, and it shows in his calm, though pain shrunken, features still."

Lieut. VanVliet, of the Tenth U. S. Infantry has charge of the soldiers guarding the tomb, and is responsible for gratifying the Governor's ghastly curiosity.

IMPROVE YOUR LOOKS.

Be beautiful! O, be beautiful! for beauty captivates monarchs and conquers kingdoms. Almost every one knows that that celebrated lady and accomplished writer, by title Countess of Blessington, retained her personal charms to an advanced period of her life, and that all the most distinguished statesmen, authors and poets of her time were never tired of eulogizing the peculiar fascination, and the blended pearly purity of her complexion, melted the heart of Lord Byron, captivated Count D'Orsay and brought N. P. Willis to his knees before her. The great secret of all her successful conquests lay in the fact of her ladyship's habitual use of Princess Louise Toilet Cream. This gem is for sale at Mrs. J. E. The Cheese Market.

[From the Utica Herald.]

UTICA, June 26.—It was a dull day on the market the freight handlers' strike in New York had a depressing effect, as shippers were afraid to risk the chance of its reaching New York in good condition. On the whole it was a duller day than last Monday until about 7 p. m., when bidding became quite active, and those who had hung about, waiting for developments, managed to dispose of their offerings. The transactions were as follows: 2 lots, 342 boxes, at 10¼c.; 4 lots 487 boxes, at 10½c; 43 lots, 4,270 boxes, at 10⅝c; 1 lot 100 boxes, 10¾c; 2 lots 309 boxes, at p. t. Sales, 5,508 boxes; commissions. 1,461 boxes; total 6,969 boxes. Ruling price, 10⅝c. A year ago to-day transactions reached 11,103 boxes, the leading price being 9¾c. Two years ago transactions were 11,394 boxes, with a ruling price of of 7c.

LITTLE FALLS, June 26.—The strike was felt here and buyers were notified not to ship to New York as the strike had assumed such proportions that the cheese would spoil before being unloaded. Sales would doubtless have been more than a third larger had it not been for the strike. The freight house will be closed on Tuesday next, being independence day, and shipments of cheese will have to be made on Wednesday.

Following are the transactions:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price

AT FULTON.

There were 21 factories represented with 1,763 boxes of cheese. A few sales were made at 10¼ to S. Osborn and A. Gregg. The bulk of the cheese went forward on commission.

LARGE CAUSES

--AND--

Personal Results!

The trade in Ready-Made Clothing and Woolens has features which all should study. Seasons are anticipated, and goods are ordered from samples long in advance of fixed prices. To break prices in open market makes trouble, as styles are well known, and all buyers must be treated alike. Therefore, a clothing manufacturer has a hard nut to crack when he is compelled to move an unsold balance of stock. This makes the famous opportunity. It's position is unique. Doing only a large retail business it can take large blocks of goods and place them on their retail counters at prices never quoted to retail buyers. Half the reasons--surplus of a large manufacturer may come to us on private terms, while the balance is retained at full prices to the general trade. The only question is how much is the owner willing to gay for the protection we can give him by taking his surplus. These conditions have brought us hundreds of suits within the past few days at from Twenty to Twenty-five Per Cent of Market Prices. You will be amply repaid for your patronage in the Great Saving of Prices. The result of those large purchases at Low Prices appears in our splendid lines of

OFFICIAL PAPER OF FULTON.

P. W. Hyde is in Buffalo for few days.

Mrs. O. L. Danforth has returned to Fulton.

Read the letters upon the first page of to-day's issue.

Depredations by flower thieves are complained of.

George Pratt is home on a vacation from school, also Howard Case.

Clinton Warner lives in Lansing, Mich but his friends here send congratulations. It's a boy.

Mr. Henry Withington, of Lawrence, Mass., will spend the summer with A. W. Stoneberg.

A. L. Warner left yesterday for Lansing, Michigan. He will be absent about three months.

H. G. Little, of New York city once a student in Dr. D. Pardee's office, made The Times a pleasant call Friday.

Simeon Osborn has quite an accumulation of eggs in his vat under Whitaker's market. Monday he had ten thousand dozen.

The Y. M. C. A. of Syracuse have an excursion to Fair Haven to-day. They were joined by a few Fulton people at this point.

Wanted—A competent woman for general housework. No washing. Apply immediately to Mrs. E. W. Ross, 82 First street.

Chas W. Pratt, son of John W. Pratt, has built for himself in Oswego, a beautiful and costly residence on Oak Hill, an eminence that overlooks and commands a fine view of the city.

School closed in No. 1 Friday. In the afternoon the scholars in Miss Easton's room enjoyed themselves at a lawn party on the grounds surrounding the residence of Mr. F. D. VanWagenen, corner Fourth and Division streets.

Commander C. P. Carrollton, Lieut. M. J. Blakeslee and Sergt. Ladiew of the 40th separate company of National Guard, Syracuse, were in town yesterday to make arrangements for an excursion to the Oswego Falls fair ground.

Mr. H. B. Rorke was attacked Sunday with hemorrhage of the lungs and during the day suffered four distinct hemorrages. He is quite feeble from loss of blood but as no returning symptoms have evinced themselves he feels quite confident of speedily convalescing.

Robert Dines places at the disposal of The Times a basket of green peas and a quantity of new potatoes, taken fresh from his garden on Emory road. Mr. Dines is one of the most successful gardners in this section and it is rare when anyone beats him in early vegetables.

The congregation and Sunday school of the Brown Memorial M. E. church of Syracuse will Picnic on the Oswego Falls fair grounds Saturday. A band will accompany the pleasure seekers and the usual picnic sports, including a bicycle race, will be among the attractions.

At Governeur, N. Y., yesterday Miss Marion J. Cowles was united in marriage to Martin R. Sackett. Miss Cowles is a daughter of Rev. A. J. Cowles, formerly of South street M. E. church, Utica. The lady has many friends in this section. Miss Allie Waterman of Fulton was one of the bridesmaids.

The commencement exercises at Falley Seminary Wednesday evening were well attended and were carried out according to program printed in The Times. The exercises were chiefly of a musical character, Miss Gilmour's class being ably assisted by Mrs. E. W. Ross of Fulton and Prof. White, violinist, of Syracuse. Miss Mary Jones of Minetto was the only graduate, Rev E. Moyses of Zion church, presenting the diploma. Miss Gilmour was the recipient from her music class, of an ebony music stand, Rev. J. S. Riggs making the presentation speech. A vacation of two months follows.

"Buy me and I'll do you good" was the invitation printed on some old patent medicine, now forgotten. It could never be more appropriately applied than to Cobb's Little Podophyllin Pills. 40 pills for 25 cents. 1 pill to a dose. For sale by R. E. Phillips.

Real merit and low prices are rapidly bringing into public favor the celebrated Remington Sewing machines. Call and see them before buying.

Sold by Mc Cully & co.

NEW MILLINERY ROOMS.

Mrs A. Clark has opened her millinery and dressmaking parlors in the rooms adjoining Dr. Hall's office, over the Bee Hive, and has engaged Miss Dimond, of Napanee, Ont., who comes highly recommended from a firm she served for several years, giving the best of satisfaction as an expert trimmer and designer. Give her a call and receive the benefit of low prices. 45

☞ A superior stock of open and top carriages. Platform and three spring wagons. May be seen at No 3 First St, Fulton, N. Y. Prices reduced.

1tf A. Bristol.

Independence Day.

The [illegible] anniversary of [illegible] Independence which occurs next Tuesday, July 4th, will not be observed with any unusual demonstration in Fulton. Oswego proposes to celebrate in grand style an extended [illegible] citizens of the surrounding country to be present and join in the festivities. To the end that all may attend the Midland and D. L. & W. railroads will carry passengers to and from all stations at half fare. There will be no special trains run to Oswego, but a special will leave on all roads in the evening at the conclusion of the fire works.

There will be a military and civic procession, field sports, balloon ascension and many minor attractions. Thos. B. White will deliver the oration.

Good Templars' Convention.

The 48th quarterly session of Oswego county Lodge I. O. G. T. was held with Fulton lodge No. 424 June 21st and 22d. Ten lodges in this county were represented and there were delegates from three lodges in Onondaga county and a brass band from Onondaga Reservation lodge, composed of Indians. There is a membership, in the county of 828, a net gain during quarter ending May 1st of 136.

R. B. McCully was chosen delegate to the grand lodge and Mr. Crandall, of Bernhards Bay, P. C. C. T. was chosen alternate. N. R. Cole of Fulton, M. Crandall of Bernhards Bay and Rev. J. A. Grant, of Redfield lodge were elected executive committee. J. H. Landgraff was chosen C. D. The next quarterly session will be held with the East Palermo lodge the 20th and 21st of September, 1882.

The public meeting held on Wednesday evening in the M. E. church was addressed by Rev. E. C. Bruce of Fulton lodge, G. R. Selden of Geddes, Onondaga lodge, C. H. Rube, G. D. D., and W. Martin Jones, G. W. C. T. of Rochester. The meeting was well attended and the remarks of an interesting character. The three largest lodges in the county are Cleveland 120, Bernhards Bay 97 and Fulton 99. The silver pitcher was awarded to the Cleveland Lodge for the largest number of initiations during the last quarter, and the bead regalia was awarded to Oswego city Lodge for largest number of reinstatements.

POUR ON OIL.

L. B. Follett, Marion, O., states that he has used Thomas' Eclectric Oil for burns, and has found nothing equal to it in soothing the pain and giving relief.

The banks of the river is dotted with parties of picnicers these warm days.

Oral examination will commence at Fulton Union School to-morrow at 9 a. m. The public are invited.

The Good Templars have made arrangements to hold their meetings in the session room of the Presbyterian church.

Residents of Oswego Falls seem to be rather dilatory in paying their taxes; the time at one per cent. will soon expire.

Charles Calkins received a pension Monday amounting to $975, with an allowance of $6.00 per month for the rest of his life.

L. C. Adkins, of this city, left yesterday morning for Fulton to take charge of the mason work of the new Presbyterian church to be built there.

[Oswego Express.

Mrs. Dr. Lawrence Johnson and children of New York city are in town. They will spend the summer with Mrs. Johnson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Roe.

A very pleasant surprise party was tendered to Dr. Herbert Lake last Thursday evening, who has recently graduated. There were about fifty friends present, and a very enjoyable time was experienced.

James Dyer, for many years baggageman at Midland depot, has suffered a shock of paralysis rendering his right side useless. He is at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Peter Gorman, in Oswego Falls.

A color seldom used to paint a house with finds a place on the residence of Mr Geo Kellogg, First street. The color we are unable to determine without assistance, but is odd, solumn and beautiful and changes the complexion of the whole neighborhood.

Summons and complaint has been filed at the county clerk's office in an action for divorce on the part of Cassius W Newton, of Volney against Amora Newton his wife for principal cause. Mrs. Newton is supposed to be in Omaha and summons is served by publication.

ALL IS WELL THAT ENDS WELL.

Orin Catlin, 40 Pearl Street, Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I tried various remedies for the piles but found no relief until I used Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which entirely cured me after a few applications."

A Few Maxims.

"Love all, trust a few,
Do wrong to none;
Be checked for silence,
But never taxed for speech."
[All's Well.

Golden maxims! Too often honored in the breach rather than the observance. Strangely enough, too, when it is remembered that love begets love; that over-confidence challenges faithlessness; that wrong-doing invites retaliation; that much speaking has proved many a man's ruin, while silence is golden. Maxims have always been the word's teachers, in one form or another, and athough not always heeded until stern experience has provep and emphasized their truth, they are and always will be golden mentors. Another maxim often tested and always found to be true, is that which has marked the entire business course of Kent & Miller. Large sales of good goods at small profits. A truly friendly interest in the customer that does no one any wrong, and that relies upon the excellence of their clothing to speak their loudest praises. Therefore have they achieved the high measure of success that has attended their business course. Better equipped than ever, with a large stock of thin things for summer wear, and with a purpose to please all with surprisingly low prices, the public is invited to call, investigate, compare and pupchase, at

Kent & Miller's
18 and 20 South Salina Street.

☞ Dress making in the latest styles. Cutting and fitting, satisfaction guaranteed at Mrs. A. Clark's over the Bee Hive Entrance on Cayuga St., opposite the Lewis House. 45

It has been reported about the village that there are fifty Italians to be brought here to labor in the quarry at the west end of the lower bridge. There seems to no foundation for these stories, as J. J. Collins says he has never intimated such a thing, or entertained such thoughts. It is impossible to increase the force now employed there, as the mud will have to be removed. He says that in about two weeks he shall be in need of more help, and that he proposes to obtain the men from this locality. Large orders have been received from New York and the west.

SATISFACTORY.

Mrs. Wallace, Buffalo, N. Y., writes: I have used Burdock Blood Bitters for nervous and billious headaches, and have recommended them to my friends; I believe them superior to any other medicine I have used, and can recommend them to anyone requiring a cure for billiousness." Price $1.00.

June 7th Jay Van Buren attended a party on Sixth street, leaving his horse and carriage hitched in the street near by. At the conclusion of the festivities Mr. Van Buren discovered that his equipage was gone. He found it next morning at his residence about three miles north of the village. William Pruner and Thos. Dobbins were before Justice Crombie Monday to answer in a suit for $45.00 damages brought by Mr. VanBuren, for iujnry done to horse and harness on the night of the drive, it having been discovered that the young men took possession of the rig and rode until satisfied and then sent it home. Mr Van Buren was awarded $7.50 damages.

Morrill Bros. printed and shipped to Buffalo last week eighty thousand post-office slips for the use of the office in that city. They also have a contract for many thousands of pamphlets for Schenck & Sheridan's cider press works, and a mammoth job in pamphlets for E. W. Ross. Their post office slip work has grown to be immense and yields a handsome return. A few months ago they increased their facilities by putting a steam engine in their establishment which they now propose to change for one of greater power. Doing quite a business for "illegitimate printers" and "amateurs" as the Fulton Patriot sneeringly and jealously terms them.

A Generous Act.

Mr. Harley Howard, who resides a short distance north of Fulton, has been afflicted with inflammatory rheumatism since April 1st and consequently his crops have been neglected. He has a piece of land containing about five acres planted to corn and potatoes a short distance from his house that were becoming lost in the weeds. Saturday morning he looked out in the field and saw an army of men industriously working. Six horses, six cultivators and six men did the cultivating, while ten men followed in their wake and hilled the crops. They were neighbors of Mr. Howard's who were giving him a "surprise party." That is a good neighborhood to live in.

Closing Exercises.

The closing exercises of Fulton Union School will be held in the chapel of the school building Friday evening of this week. Doors open at 7 o'clock p. m. exercises to commence at 7:45 p. m. The following pupils of the senior department will participate:

Eliza Hall, Clarence D. Hall, Edward Hill, Chas H. Howe Dana Highriter, Zuilee Hubbard, Alfred LaPorte, Belle Maynard, Ada Thayer, Hattie Whitaker.

Exercises will be interspersed with music. No one will be admitted without a ticket. Tickets may be obtained free of any of the above named pupils. A special feature of the evening will be the awarding of prizes: The Case medal prize, Johnson oratory prize, Curtis chemistry prize and the Emen's botany prize.

Going to Wolcott.

Prof. Robert Simpson, jr., who has just completed his second year as principal of School No. 1, has accepted a position as principal of Wolcott Union School and Leavenworth Institute. Prof. Simpson will need no recommendation as an instructor, for his management of Fulton Union School and School No. 1 is evidence enough of his ability as a tutor. He has also been School Commissioner of the First district of Oswego county for three years, and his varied and successful administration as superintendent of schools and tutor has placed him in the front rank. He has been the recipient of several offers, and the Wolcott people may congratulate themselves upon securing him. Prof. Simpson is a finished scholar and gentleman, and in his new home and school he carries the sincerest good wishes of his Fulton friends.

A decision was rendered by Judge Churchill in circuit court at Pulaski last week regarding the ownership of a portion of Lake Neahtawanta and some seventy-three acres of land adjoining it. D. C. Case brought suit to dispossess Mrs. Wealthy Dexter, who claims to have a title to the property. The Judge instructed the jury to find for defendant, which they did without leaving their seats. Joseph Sheridan, of Fulton, claims to hold title to same property, having purchased it from heirs of the lineal descendants of the original owners. Mr. Sheridan will not surrender his title. Parties who have harvested ice from that portion of the lake in litigation will be asked to pay for it—which they are willing to do when ownership is finally settled.

It was generally supposed that the lake was state property. More litigation will follow.

A SIGNIFICANT FACT.

"Babes in the Woods."

Eugene Patterson and Dick Barry of Fulton, were arrested in Syracuse last Wednesday for intoxication. Justice Mulholland greeted them as follows:

"You fellows from that great metropolitan city, Fulton," said his Honor, "thought you would come down here and show us country boys how to play base ball and drink. What do you think of it now? You know almost as much about base hits and double plays as a mule does about a piano, and as for drinking you are regular babes in the woods alongside of Syracuse bums. We have got local talent here that could swallow you both and two kegs of lager on top of that. You may go now, and the next time you propose to show us how to do it, remember we always do everything to the rate of 26 to nothing."

Fulton, June 27, 1882.

Board met pursuant to adjournment.

Present a full board except Trustee Hart

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

A petition was received asking that the numbers in the several streets where they conflict be changed for the purpose of making a new directory.

Granted, without expense to the village or individuals.

Mr. Sheridan asked that the Presbyterian Church be granted the use of the street for building purposes. Granted under the direction of the street committee and street commissioner.

Mr Stephens asked that the cart stand be temporally removed. On motjon the president appointed Trustees Cavanaugh, Herrick and Johnson a committee with power to make change.

Mr Burden asked that a side walk be constructed on the east side of Wall street to Seneca street. The street committee were instructed to employ a surveyer to determine the line of Wall street.

The following Ordinance passed:

Be it Ordained, That the owners of the following described premises be and they are hereby required to build a new side walk opposite and adjacent the premises hereinafter specifically described and owned or occupied by the following named persons respectively viz:

J. W. Pratt West side First street block 133.

Resolved, That the several sidewalks hereinbefore specified be built and repaired of sound two-inch hemlock plank laid lengthwise on 3 by 4 stringers, well secured with earth to make a firm foundation; that no new walks are built less than five feet in width, that the outer line of those that are re-laid be evenly laid, and in the line of those already built.

On motion the clerk was directed to immediately after the publication of the aforesaid ordinance, serve the several persons affected thereby with printed copies thereof, in the manner required by the charter of the village, and to make and file proof of such service.

The following bills in the hands of the finance committee were reported and orders drawn for the amounts:

STONES IN THE KIDNEYS

AND BLADDER EXPELLED—LONG SUFFERING OF ONE OF TROY'S—BEST PEOPLE —A LUCKY MAN.

It is by no means a strange thing that Dr. Kennedy should have received the following letter. By reading it you will see in one minute why James Andrews was thankful:

TROY, N. Y. April, 8, 1882.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout N. Y.

DEAR SIR:—Until within a recent date I had for several years suffered greatly from gravel, called by the doctors the brick-dust sediment. For about a year past this sediment has not passed off in the usual quantity, but has accumulated, causing me untold pain. Having heard of "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" I tried it in my case, and after using about one and one-half bottles, I voided a stone from the bladder, of an oval shape, 7-16 of an inch long, and rough on its surface. I send you the largest piece that you may see of what it is composed. Since then I have felt no pain. I now consider myself cured, and cannot express my thankfulness and gratitude for so signal a deliverance from a terrible a disease. You have my consent to use this letter, should you wish to do so, for the benefit of other sufferers.

Yours Truly,
JAMES ANDREWS.

No 10 Marshal St, Ida Hill.

When we consider that the medicine which did this service for Mr. Andrews cost only one dollar a bottle, it would seem that persons in like fashion can afford the expense of testing its virtues. Get it of your druggist, or address Dr. David Kennedy Rondout, N. Y. "Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" for sale by all druggists.

VAN VALKENBURG'S

RESTAURANT.

—:o:—

A Model Restaurant and Billiard Room Charley have you been to look at Van's place, on the corner of First and Oneida Streets since he has remodeled and enlarged it? His Restaurant ! Yes, was the reply, and it certainly is one of the best appointed and most attractive places ever opened in our village. Such is the fact. This ever popular place has been thoroughly Repainted and Remodeled so that it is now more pleasant and attractive than ever before. The partitions have been removed, the Rooms made Larger so that any that may wish to go to a First-Class Restaurant can do so now and can go into a private entrance to lunch alone, separate and alone. He has also a Billiard & Pool Room attached, entirely separate from Bar or Lunch Room. The Tables are of Babcock's best make, handsomely gotten up and have the Celebrated Magic Double Action Cushion which are so popular with all lovers of Billiard and Pool. All that money can do to make Van's place more popular than ever has been done. Only the best of everything is kept. Call and look at his bill of fare and know for yourselves the Lunch Van gets up and you will be surprised to learn that he keeps on hand everything in the shape of Lunch that could be got at Delmonicos. He is prepared to get up Lunch for Picnicing and Fishing Parties on the shortest notice in Elegant Style and at very reasonable rates. Now I will give you a small list of his lunches that he gets up: Oysters, in every style; Clam Chowder, Sardines, Lobsters, Crabs, Salmon, Mackerel, Anchovey Chicken, Boiled Ham, Pig Feet Stew, Pork and Beans, Sandwiches of all kinds, Pies and Cheese, Tea and Coffee, and other things and all very cheap. Call and get some of his lunches and you will be more than pleased at the price, so much so that you will say to yourself well I did not know before that people could get such dishes for so small a figure and up here in the country. I have found the place to get my lunch from now out. The prices are what catches me.

Medical Ethics.

Until the present year the "regular" practitioners of this state were forbidden in any circumstance to consult with homeopathic physicians. The folly and wickedness of this restriction became so evident that in February last the New York State Medical Society adopted a provision in the code of ethics of which the American Medical Association complains. That provision asserts that the demands of humanity are something superior to any code of medical ethics and that in circumstances in which humanity requires it regular physicians may consult with homeopathic physicians. For example a young physician of the "regular" school, without much experience and with a modest distrust of his own powers, may have a patient dangerously ill in some small village where there is no other "regular" physician. He wishes to consult a doctor whose experience is wider than his own, and in whose opinion he can place confidence. There is no "regular" whom he can consult, but there is close at hand a homeopathic practitioner, who, in spite of the young doctor's disbelief in homeopathy, he knows to be an able and honorable man of great professional experience and skill. Shall he consult with this man in the interest of his patient, or shall he let his patient run the risk of suffering, and perhaps of dying, simply because certain obstinate and predjudiced "regular" physicians refuse to acknowledge a homeopathic practitioner as a physician? The New York State Medical society says that if, in the judgement of the young doctor, such a consultation is demanded in the interest of humanity, it may rightfully be held. The American Medical Society says that if the patient's life cannot be saved except by such a consultation, then the patient must die, and that no doctor who will allow a homeopathist to help him save a patient's life can be recognized by the association. The public will have their own opinion of the action of the men who have virtually expelled the New York doctors from the American Medical Association.

Manufacture of Dimples.

Some poet it was who said that whenever a man has a dimple on his chin then Venus is his friend, but maybe that rule won't hold good in these days, when dimples are manufactured by art.

For there is a place on O'Farrel street in this city where dimples are made to order. I went there last week out of curiosity. I was shown into a parlor somewhat resembling a dentist's operating room. There was a glass full of bottles, washes and wigs, and a regular dentist's chair that suggested a world of comfort. This sign was displayed over the fire place: "M. Alphonse Pondunk Improver and Beautifier, from Paris."

A dapper little gent in a velvet cutaway coat and deep purple neck cloth, whose face wore a complacent smirk, claimed the name as his. I bashfully suggested the dimple question and asked for some points. I really did want a dimple in my arm, and told him so. But I insinuated my disbelief in his ability to produce the required article.

Whereupon he convinced me by practice. This is how it is done.

My arm being bare and the exact spot indicated, he placed a small glass tube, the orifice of which was extremely small, upon the spot. This tube had working within it a piston, and when the handle was drawn up the air was exhausted from the tube and it adhered to the flesh, raising a slight protuberance. Around the raised portion, M. Alphonse daintily tied a piece of scarlet silk, and then took away his suction machine. The little point of skin that was thus raised he sliced off with a wicked looking knife, bringing the blood.

I tried hard not to scream, but it was so unexpected that I had to.

Then he bound up his arm, placing over the wound a small silver object like an inverted cone, the point of which was rounded and polished. This little point was adjusted so as to depress the exact centre of the cut.

Then he told me to go away and not touch the spot until the next day. When I came at that time he dressed my arm again, and the operation was repeated for five days, when the wound was healed. The silver cone was removed and there, sure enough, beneath it was the prettiest dimple in the world! And all John had to pay for it was ten dollars.

Now, theoretically considered, dimples are most entrancing. Cleopatra had a dimple directly over her heart, and Anthony said that it was the mark made by Eros, who kissed her at her birth. Ninou de Enclos, had dimpled toes which were renowned for their sea shell pinkness and beauty. Helen of Troy had a large dimple on her left shoulder, and Anna Dickininson has one on the end of her nose. A woman without a dimple is never sure of one proposal; with them they come in dozens. [Phla. Item.

"PRO BONO PUBLICO"

It is a remarkable fact that while thousands of people refuse to read paid puffs of worthless nostrums, none skid over Dr. Swayne's little squib about his Ointment for itching piles that itch so much at night. The people well know that it is published for their benefit, in other words it is pro bono publico. May its far reaching effects be perpetuated to the end of time. 3w4

"It has always been my aim in my life to imitate a good example" as the counterfeiter remarked while working on a new set of dies. [Boston Transcript.

It is said that Jumbo has not lain down for five weeks. It is not necessary. The man who writes the posters for advertisements does enough lying for the entire show. [Norristown Herald

GIVEN UP BY DOCTORS.

"Is it possible that Mr. Godfry is up and at work, and cured by so simple a remedy?"

"I assure you it is true that he is entirely cured, and with nothing but Hop Bitters; and only ten days ago his doctors gave him up and said he must die!"

"Well-a-day! That is remarkable! I will go this day and get some for my poor George—I know hops are good."

Disease is an effect, not a cause. Its origin is within; its manifestations without. Hence, to cure the disease the cause must be removed, and in no other way can a cure ever be effected. WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE is established on just this principle. It realizes that of all diseases arise from deranged kidneys and liver, and it strikes at once at the root of the difficulty. The elements of which it is composed act directly upon the great organs, both as a food and restorer, and by placing them in a healthy condition, drive disease and pain from the system.

95 per Cent.

For the innumerable troubles caused by unhealthy Kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs; for the distressing Disorders of Women; for Malaria, and for physical derangements generally, this great remedy has no equal. Beware of impostors, imitations and concoctions said to be just as good.

For Diabetes, ask for WARNER'S SAFE DIABETES CURE.

What Constitutes an Editor.

Some people estimate the ability of a periodical and the talent of its editor by the quantity of its original matter. It is comparatively an easy task for a frothy writer to string out a column of words upon any and all subjects. His ideas may flow in one weak, washy, everlasting flood, and the command of his language may enable him to string them togther like bunches of onions, and yet his paper may be but a meagre and poor concern. Indeed, the mere writing part of editing a paper is but a small portion of the work. The care, the time employed in selecting, is far more important, and the fact of a good editor is better shown by his selections than anything else, and that, we know, is half the battle. But, we have said, an editor ought to be estimated, his labor understood and appreciated, by the general conduct of his paper —its tone, its uniform, consistent course, aims, manliness, it, dignity and its propriety. To preserve these as they should be preserved is enough to occupy fully the time and attention of any man. If to this be added the general supervision of the details of publication which most editors have to encounter the wonder is how they find time to write at all.

[Henry Watterson.

"BECAME SOUND AND WELL."

R. V PIERCE, M. D.: Dear Sir—My wife who had been ill for over two years, and had tried many other medicines, became sound and well by using your "Favorite Prescription." My niece was also cured by its use, after several physicians had failed to do her any good.

Yours truly, THOMAS J. METHVIN

Said his prudent friend: "Why, $2 for a carriage is extravagance. Go in a horse-car or take a Herdic." And the extravagant man replied. "I can't. You see the lady I'm going to take isn't my wife." [Boston Post.

Her Only One.

MARY B. BURNETT.

"Good dame, how many children have you"
Then, with a loving and troubled face,
Sadly she looked at an empty place;
"Friend, I have two."
"Nay, Mother," the farmer gravely said,
"We have only one; and so long ago
He left his home, I am sure we know
He must be dead."

"Yes, I have two; one a little child,
Comes to me often at evening light;
His pure, sweet face and garments white,
All undefiled.
With clear, bright eyes and soft, fair hair,
He climbes up to his mother's knee,
Folds baby hands and whispers to me
His evening prayer.

"The other, he took a wilful way,
Went far out West and they linked his name
With deeds of cruelty and shame.
I can but pray,
And a mother's prayers are never cold;
So, in my heart the innocent child
And the reckless man, by sin defile'd,
The same I hold.

"But yet I keep them ever apart
For I will not stain the memory
Of the boy who once prayed at my knee,
Close by my heart.
The man he grew to will come again;
No matter how far away he roam,
Father and mother will bring him home—
Prayers are not vain."

The stranger stood in the broader light.
"Oh, Mother oh, Father I he weeping said.
"I have come back to your side to tread
The path that's right."
And so the answer to prayer was won;
And the father wept glad tears of joy,
And the mother kissed and blest her boy,
Her only one!

TOM EDISON.

How the Great Electrician Picked Out a Wife for Himself.

I met Tom Edison, the electrician, on Pennsylvania avenue the other day. He had run down from New York to look after his patients. He is looking well, and is just as awkward and ungainly as ever. There has been a great deal of nonsense written about Edison, as there always is about every man who springs into fame with a bound. He is about thirty-five years of age, and was born in the great state of Ohio, which also had the honor of producing Whitelaw Reid and ——Hayes.

"Stock" Griffin, Edison's private secretary once told me a funny characteristic story of the way in which Edison came to get married. The idea was first suggested to him by an intimate friend, who made the point that he needed a mistress to preside over his big house, which was being managed by a housekeeper and several servants. I dare say the idea never occurred to him before, for, be it known, he is the shyest and most bashful of men, but he seemed pleased with the proposition and timidly inquired whom he should marry. The friend somewhat testily replied, "any one;" that a man who had so little sentiment in his soul as to ask such a question ought to be satisfied with anything that wore a petticoat and was decent, and concluded by saying: "There are a number of nice girls employed in your factory over yonder; they arn't especially refined or cultivated, I must confess, but they are respectable, and that is the main consideration, after all."

Edison looked them all over, and, after making his selection, put the question plumply to her. It was Edison's way of doing business, but it embarrassed the young lady all the same. She asked time to consider, and Edison granted her a week. At the end of this time she accepted him, and they were married without delay. They had decided to visit the New England States and Canada and make quite an extended tour. As the bridal party drove to the station they passed his laboratory. Turning to his wife, Edison excused himself for a few minutes, saying there was some matters that needed his attention, and that he would be at the station in time for the train. The train came and went, and so did several others, but no Edison. The bride who knew his peculiarities finally drove back to the house and awaited her liege lord's pleasure. She never saw him again for forty-eight hours. Immersed in some idea that had suddenly occurred to him, he became oblivious to brides, honeymoons, or anything else.

ADVISING CO-OPERATION.

Talmage's Remedy for the Ills of Labor and Capital.

"Suppose the eye should say to the hand, 'If there is anything I am disgusted with, it is your miserable low lived hands;' and suppose the hands should say, 'I despise those eyes seated under the dome of the forehead, doing nothing but look.' That would be the equivalent of a quarrel between labor and capital," said Dr. Talmage in his morning sermon yesterday. "Dives cannot live without Lazarus. There will be peace only when labor and capital find that their interests are identical. Every speech that labor makes against capital postpones the day of reconciliation. Every time that capital maligns labor it is only the eye cursing the hand or the hand cursing the eye.

"The fact is the vast majority of capitalists are successful laborers. Look beneath the glove of the capitalist and you will find the broken finger nail and and the scarred joint. The great publishers have been type setters and book binders. The great carriage makers have sand papered wagon bodies. On the other hand you will find men working for wages who have employed hundreds of men.

"Between capital and labor there is a bridge. It is not a long suspension bridge. It is only a step. The capitalists and laborers are both crossing the bridge. Pray God that they may shake hands by the way. Every laborer has a magnificent capital in his nerves, bones, mechanical skill and physical health. A man who has two eyes, two hands, two feet and ten fingers, has a capital in machinery superior to that of the steam engine. Why should not laboring men co-operate? Why should they not put in their surplus capital and becoming capitalists instead of being at the beck of this or that capitalist? I am not now speaking of trade unions, but of co-operative labor. In England and Ireland there are 813 co-operative associations. They have 40,000 members. They have a capital of $18,000,000. They have a business of $63,000,000 annually.

"But why talk of investing the surplus capital of laborers when they are struggling for the necessaries of life? Suppose you could take that hundred millions spent for tobacco, and the other hundred spent for rum, and put that money in a co-operative association? Then take all the money that has been spent for over dress and overliving, for trying to make poor people look as if they were not poor; gather all these sums and what a grand co-operative association you could make.

"I am not saying anything against trade unions. They are beneficial in some directions. In these days, when there are a thousand monopolies and concentrated wealth in a few hands, the laboring men of this country could not get along very well without trade unions. [Applause.] The lawyers, the newspaper men, the clergymen have their organizations. Trade unions for legitimate purposes are admirable. But when they come with drum and fife and flag and drive people from toil, from the scaffold or the furnace, then trade unions become Nihilistic; then they are barbaric, then they are a curse. If a man wants to stop work let him stop, but don't let him stop me. Suppose that some Sunday, just as I began to preach, some clergyman should come here and order me to stop! I should say:—'This is my work, and I am going to work.' Look at the tyranny of the rule adopted by the Manchester, England, Bricklayers.—'Any man that is working or running beyond the required speed shall be fined two and sixpence for the first offense, and three shillings for the second offense, and ten shillings for the third, and if he persists he shall be dealt with as the committee think proper.' Talk about tyranny, there is no tyranny on earth like that of such a union! Look at the rules of the Bricklayers' Association which forbid a man doing extra work to get the good will of his employer!

"Suppose all this money now wasted on rum and tobacco could be put into co-operative societies—how much better for the laborers. We know that the laborers are better for temperance. They can do more work and keep better health. Men can work better without rum; soldiers can fight better without it. Before a Russian Army goes out to battle, a corporal goes along the line and smells the breath of the men. He knows which to put in the rear. At present there are too many who are uneasy until they have spent their last dollar. I knew a young man who was earning only [illegible] a year, and that by hard work. He nearly ruined his eyes by night work. What for? To buy life insurance? To put by for a rainy day? No: it was to buy his wife a sealskin sacque. Then the woman's sister, not to be outshone, must also work her fingers to the bone until she get a sealskin sacque. There are lots of people who say, practically, 'Though the heavens fall, I must have a sealskin sacque.' A western clergyman told me that members of his congregation had mortgaged their farms to go to the Centennial exhibition at Philadelphia. One family after another went, until it got to be unfashionable not to go. It is not honest for men to live in luxury and have no provision for the future for their families. I am no advocate for skin-flint savings. It is mean or magnificent to save according to your object. Mere hoarding is despicable. But it is pardonable to save for the purpose of educating your children or helping your family to independence. The majority of the homesteads of this country have been the result of savings banks and life insurance companies.

"Great relief is to come to the laboring classes of this country by the appreciation on [illegible] employers of the fact that they had better take the laborers into their confidence. The employer should let the men know just how he is standing. There is an enormous amount of good sense in the world, and when informed of the fact the laborers will not be unreasonable. Another relief to the laboring classes will be through the religious rectification of it. The religion of Jesus Christ is a democratic religion. It tells the employer that he is the brother of the laborer.

"Suppose an employer knocks at the gate of heaven and the gatekeeper asks what his claims for admission are, and he says 'I employ three hundred men.' Then the gatekeeper will ask, 'How much divine grace did you employ?' The employer will say 'None.' Then the gatekeeper will say, 'You can't come in.'

"Another knock at the gate of Heaven. It is the laborer. He has done his duty. Then you hear the rattle of bolts, the gates swing open and the laborer enters. It doesn't matter how much money you have. You can't buy your way in the kingdom of Heaven. It makes no difference how poor you are, If you have the grace of God in your heart you will enter Heaven. It is a democratic religion. Be your own executor of charity. There was a man who died recently in New York and left forty millions of dollars. Did he leave a million for God? No. Did he leave two cents for God? No, not a cent! Here is a letter I received telling of a man who died worth $8,000,000 and died without leaving a cent to God.

"I congratulate the workingmen in this country on their brilliant prospects, on the prospects of their children, upon the cheapness of education. I beg the laborers to turn for help to the carpenter of Nazareth, and I assure them that for Christian working men and women that will be the beginning of an eternal holiday." [N. Y. Sun.

HANGING for murder is not "played out" in this country.

IOWA voted on Tuesday upon the question of temperance prohibition. The majority in the state for temperance will be about 40,000.

THE strike in Cohoes is fast depopulating that place. It is believed if the mills remain closed until September, there will be no operatives left to do the work.

THE apple crop of Connecticut is reported to be ruined by the canker worm. Many trees look as if they had been swept by flames. In other states, however, the apple trees are reported to be in good condition. In this state a large crop of apples is expected.

An impecunious young man in Cleveland, Ohio, lowered his trunk at dead of night from his bedroom window, and then slid down the rope. When he reached the ground, however, he found his landlord and a policeman sitting on the trunk, waiting to receive him. He didn't enjoy the surprise party.

THERE is another Fenian scare in England and the London Times office is guarded night and day to prevent its being blown up. Parnell and a bevy of associates have been suspended from the House of Commons for using obstruction tactics. The Irish question is as far from a satisfactory solution as a year ago. Neither side appears willing to yield.

MRS. GARFIELD is amply provided with this world's goods. The subscription given her amounts to $300,000; life insurance $50,000; Garfield's salary $40,- Garfield's estate $30,000, and a pension of $5,000 per annum. The interest on the amount above mentioned easily brings to her annually $16,000 with pension will foot up $21,000, which ought to support her and family very nicely.

THE Oswego Times is for Cornell first, last and all the time. It says: Gov. Cornell cuts $326,863.84 out of the supply bill, and gives plain and good reason therefor. Such a governor is especially useful when a democratic legislature passes the bills. The tax payers will readily see that they need him some more. Gov. Cornell can make arrangements at once to stay at Albany three years longer.

THE last argument in the Malley trial was concluded at 3 p. m. Friday. The judge charged the jury at 3:05 and occupied twenty-three minutes. It was favorable to the prisoners, saying in substance that the state was bound to prove that the murder was committed by the administration of arsenic and that the poison was given by some or all of the defendants. The vital question is, "Was arsenic administered to her, and did she die of it?" The case was murder in the first degree or was nothing at all. The jury retired at 3:28 and returned at 4:28 with a verdict of "not guilty."

Charles Guiteau

JAMES A. GARFIELD.

HIS MURDER AVENGED.

CHARLES JULES GUITEAU

Executed Friday June 30, 1882.

Charles J. Guiteau was hung by the neck in the jail at Washington, D. C., Friday, June 30th, 1882, for the murder of the President of the United States, James A. Garfield.

The history of the crime, trial and the prisoner are all fresh in the minds of the public and a reproduction would be fatiguing to our readers. We will give a full report of what happened immediately prior to, and at the execution.

PREPARING FOR THE EXECUTION.

At 12 a. m. Warden Crocker entered his cell and commanded him to stand up. He obeyed instantly and the death warrant was read to him. Then a prayer was offered by Dr. Hicks, his spiritual adviser, during which the prisoner's nerves got the better of him and he broke down in a fit of uncontrollable hysteria. He wept copiously. Suddenly he recovered and was informed the time for his execution had come.

MARCHING TO THE GALLOWS.

His arms were pinioned behind him, and he held one hand in the other. He was neatly dressed in a suit of navy blue, wore no collar, but had a white silk handkerchief thrown carelessly around his neck. His hair was closely cropped, face cleanly shaved and his large mustache was carefully and nicely brushed. Warden Crocker headed the solemn procession followed by Dr. Hicks. Then came Guiteau between two attendants walking firm, with modest and thoughtful bearing, his lips quivering and an unusual palor overspreading his face. Arriving at the scaffold he mounted the long flight of steps without assistance.

ON THE VERGE OF DEATH.

The Warden drew aside, Guiteau, with his hands clasped behind him, looked at the noose, eyed the trap, scanned the crowd and braced himself. Dr. Hicks opened his book and cleared his voice, and the sturdy hangman walked behind the prisoner and stoically looked at the ropes. At a signal from General Crocker Dr. Hicks made an invocation in these words:—

Father, out of the depths we cry to Thee! Hear Thou our supplication, for the sake of Jesus Christ our Saviour, who has made full propitiation for us. Behold this Thy servant! We humbly pray that Thou wilt deliver him at this supreme moment of his life. Let Thy light descend upon him. Liberate his soul from prison. May he appear before You absolved by Thy great mercy. From blood guiltiness deliver him and us. God have mercy on us. Christ, have mercy on us. Lamb of God, that taketh away the sins of the world, have mercy on us. Amen and amen.

THE PRISONER READS.

Guiteau's arms being pinioned behind him he read a selection from the Bible which the warden held. Looking at the spectators, he said loud and distinct, without a tremor in his voice: "I will read a selection from the tenth chapter of Matthew, from the twenty-eighth to the forty-first verses inclusive." His emphases were marked. His tone was sing-songy but betrayed no nervousness.

GUITEAU'S DYING PRAYER.

Dr. Hicks, according to previous arrangement, then unrolled and held for Guiteau a manuscript. He said, with a little nervousness: "I will now repeat my last dying prayer." The calm manner in which he threw his crime upon the Deity was rather staggering in view of the fact that in less than ten minutes he might be brought face to face with him. His voice again rang out with power and effect as he said:—

Father now I go to thee, and the Saviour, I have finished the work thou gavest me to do. I am only to happy to go to thee. The world does not yet appreciate my mission, but thou knowest, thou knowest thou knowest it, thou knowest thou didst inspire Garfield's removal, and only good has come from it. This is the best evidence that inspiration came from thee and I have set it forth in my book that all men have read and know that thou Father didst inspire the act for which I am now murdered. [illegible] I tremble for the fate of my murderers. This government [illegible] act, I know, [illegible] my saviour. [illegible] Thy laws are [illegible].

"Oh thou supreme judge woe unto the men that violate thy laws. Only weeping and gnashing of teeth awaits them." The American press has a large bill to settle with thee, righteous Father, for their vindictiveness in this matter. Nothing but blood be on them and this nation and its officials. Arthur, the president, is a coward and an ingrate. His ingratitude to the man that made him and saved his party and land from overthrow, which has no parallel in history; but thou, righteous Father, will judge him. Father, thou knowest; but the world hath not known me, and now I go to thee and the Saviour, without the slightest ill will towards a human being. Farewell, ye of the earth.

[Signed], CHARLES GUITEAU.

"I AM GOING TO THE LORDY."

After finishing his prayer he said: "I am now going to read some verses which are intended to indicate my feelings at the moment of leaving this world. If set to music they may be rendered effective. The idea is that of a child babbling to its mamma and papa. I wrote it this morning at ten o'clock. Then in a baby voice began his poem:

I am going to the Lordy,
I am so glad;
I am going to the Lordy,
I am so glad;
I am going to the Lordy,
Glory, hallelujah! glory, hallelujah!
Going to the Lordy.

I love the Lordy with all my soul,
Glory, hallelujah!
And that is the reason
I am going to the Lordy,
I am going to the Lordy.

I saved my party and my land,
Glory, hallelujah!
But they have murdered me for it;
And that is the reason
I am going to the Lordy.
Glory, hallelujah! glory, hallelujah!
I am going to the Lordy.

I wonder what I will do
When I get to the Lordy;
I guess that I will weep no more
When I get to the Lordy.
Glory, hallelujah!

I wonder what I will see
When I get to the Lordy?
I expect to see most splendid things,
Beyond all earthly conception
When I am with the Lordy.
Glory, hallelujah!

Raising his voice to the highest pitch that he could command:

Glory, hallelujah!
I am with the Lord.

LAUNCHED INTO ETERNITY.

When he had concluded his verses the hangman pinioned his legs, Guiteau standing motionless and firm. Dr. Hicks placed his hand on Guiteau's forehead and pronounced the farewell benediction: "God, the Father, be with thee and give thee peace forever more."

The hangman placed the black cap over his head, and the light of this world was forever shut from his view. The noose was then adjusted, "Don't pull it to tight" said Guiteau, and shouting in a loud, clear voice "Glory! Ready! Go!" the drop fell.

DEATH INSTANTANEOUS.

Guiteau's neck was broken by the fall and death was instantaneous. After the doctors had felt of the pulse, the heart, the legs and the back ad nauseam the body was lowered until the feet nearly touched the ground. It was there kept perhaps half an hour, during which time the sturdy hangman watched it from the platform through the trap hole.

THE AUTOPSY.

Immediately following Guiteau's execution the autopsy was made in the chapel of the jail by several distinguished physicians. The coffin was placed upon a bench, the body removed, and after having been stripped it was laid upon a table. The rope was found to have cut deeply into the flesh of the assassin's neck. The left eye was completely suffused in blood, and both eyes were so indistinct that no opinion could be formed of their condition or expression. The brain was found in a normal condition and weighed 49 ounces. The heart weighed a little over nine ounces, and and was healthy as were all the other internal organs.

FINAL RESTING PLACE.

The body of Charles J. Guiteau was buried Saturday afternoon in the northeast corridor of the jail, and, so far as is now known, it will lie there undisturbed by any future attempt at interment Under the law, the disposition of the bodies of criminals who are hanged rests with the discretion of the warden. In the case of Guiteau, his sister, Mrs. Scoville, was without means, and could not have undertaken his burial expenses even if permitted to do so. The only other relative who has appeared upon the scene, his brother, John W. Guiteau, was unwilling to assume the risk of taking charge of the body, believing that he would be powerless to prevent "body snatchers" from stealing it. The brick flooring was removed Saturday and a grave 7 feet deep was dug. At 4 o'clock Saturday, the [illegible] body of Guiteau was borne from the chapel [illegible] J. W. Guiteau. Arrived at the grave, the little procession halted.

Warden Crocker looked inquiringly first toward Dr. Hicks and then to John W. Guiteau. "All right," said the latter, with the same imperturbable composure that he has exhibited all thro' the past three days; and the coffin was at once lowered to its place. After the earth had been replaced and the top of the grave leveled off, John W. Guiteau placed at its head a crown of white immortelles. Not a word was spoken, not a tear was shed.

MRS. GARFIELD

was in Cleveland, Ohio, on the day of the execution. For several days she had refrained from reading the daily papers to evade the recital of the events leading up to the concluding scenes of the national tragedy. Friday she had every hour crowded full of little duties as remote as possible from even a suggestion of the execution.

STARVED AND FROZEN

While in a Futile Search for a Passage to the North Pole—A Sad Story.

The obituary of many a gallant soldier records that as a final honor the deceased was "buried with the honors of war." Often the solemn ceremony is attended with pomp and display, but it is always solemn. And the heart is cold indeed which is not stirred by the flag-muffled coffin, and the sharp volleys discharged over the comrade's grave. Always impressive under the sunniest sky, it may well be doubted if in all history another so sad, so impressive a martial service is recorded as that attending the interment of the body of Erickson, of DeLong's party. We give the account in Lieutenant DeLong's words, remarking first that the lieutenant makes mention, day by day up to the time of Erickson's death, that the failing man was much of the time "out of his head," and constantly talked in his sleep. We quote from the diary:

THURSDAY, October 6—116th day.—Called all hands at 7:30. Had a cup of third-hand tea, with half an ounce of alcohol in it. Everybody very weak. Gale moderating somewhat. Sent Alexia out to hunt. At 8:45 our messmate, Erickson, departed this life. Addressed a few words of cheer and comfort to the men. Alexia came back empty-handed too much drifting snow. What in God's name is going to become of us? As to burying Erickson, I can not dig a grave, for the ground is frozen and we have nothing to dig with. There is nothing to do but to bury him in the river. Sewed him up in the flaps of the tent and covered him with my flag. Got the men ready, and with half on ounce of alcohol we will try to make out to bury him, but we are all so weak I do not see how we are going to travel. At 12:40 read the burial services and carried our departed shipmate to the river, where a hole having been cut in the ice he was buried, three volleys from our Remingtons being fired over him as a funeral honor. A board was prepared with this cut on it: "In memory of H. H. Erickson, October 5, 1881. U. S. S. Jeannette." And this will be stuck in the river bank almost over his grave. His clothing was divided up among his messmates. Iverson had his Bible and a lock of his hair.

The honor paid to the dead is lasting honor to the dying commander and comrades. Thence forward the entries in the diary grow shorter. Day after day Alexia went forth in search of game and generally came back empty handed. Two or three times during the eleven days which intervened between the burial of Erickson and his own death he brought in a ptarmigan. Then the party had soup. At other times the bill of fare for dinner was "one ounce of alcohol in a pint of tea," Slowly the men starved to death. Under date of October 17 is the entry "About sunset Alexia died. Exhaustion from starvation. Covered him with ensign and laid him in the crib." Thence forward to October 30—the last entry in the diary—the record is of exhaustion and deaths. "Collins dying" were the last words. DeLong died next or became too weak to note when Dr. Ambler and Ah Sam died. Then twenty-four days after the burial of Erickson with the honors of war his faithful friends, the whole heroic party found release from their sufferings. The last days were glorified by their sublime courage, devotion under sufferings. Shall their bodies be left on the banks of the Lena? This is a matter that may well be acted in without looking to Mr. Bennett to lead. The government should see that the remains of those who while they had their strength showed every honor to their dead comrades should have fitting interment, and sepulcher wherever their friends may elect. Let there be Christian conclusion of the Jeannette expedition, and then a long farewell to American participation in Arctic exploration.

Tobacco Condemned.

The two Woman's Christian Temperance Unions of Syracuse, have unitedly passed these preambles and resolutions:

Whereas, The youth of to-day are being rapidly demoralized, physically, intellectually and morally by the use of tobacco, and

—Whereas, We as christian mothers, feel that we may reasonably look to the institution of learning in our midst, for a lofty standard of moral purity.

Resolved, That we behold with regret the public glorification of the tobacco habit, that occurs annually at the commencement exercises of Syracuse University, regarded, as it appears to be, by the faculty, as a harmless piece of burlesque.

Resolved, Also, that we deprecate the countenance given to a filthy and degrading vice, by the presence and active participation of young lady graduates in in this low and coarse performance.

IF YOU

Are master of your own pocketbook and desirous of maintaining friendly relations with it, or if you are dependent on the parental pocketbook and appreciate the importance of cultivating an amicable understanding with it by a system of light levying, call and give us a chance to serve you with a suit or overcoat, or both. We have told you repeatedly how vast is our stock of clothing, how we keep it up by replentishing often, how good we think it, how much more stylish our goods are compared with others, and how cheap we sell them. But truths like these will bear repeating again and again, and hence their repetition to-day.

In the matter of children's and boy's necessities in the way of clothing, parents are reminded that our boys' and children's clothing department is by far the best equipped in the city, if not the best outside of New York, both in point of accommodations and comfort provided for the shopper and buyer alike, and the qualities and make up of garments offered for their choice.

AWARDING OF PRIZES.

Music - - - Chorus.

Miss Zuilee Hubbard's essay on "Flowers in Poetry" was treated in a very capable manner. Her reading and articulation were particularly good.

Freddie LaPorte recited "The Three Bells" with promptness and was heartily commended by the audience. A solo by Miss Bertha Lee, "The Watchman" was effectually sung and elicited hearty applause. Miss Eliza Hall's recitation "Henry of Navarre before Paris" was well treated and delivered in an easy and pleasing manner. Edward Hill's essay on history" was thorough and gave evidence of considerable knowledge of the subject under discussion.

THE PRIZES.

The contestants for the Johnson oratory prize—a cash prize of $15 given by Mr. Willard Johnson to the lady and gentleman excelling in oratory—was awarded to Miss Ada Thayer and Master Dana Highriter. The unsuccessful competitors Misses Hattie Whitaker, Belle C. Maynard and Masters Charles H. Howe and Clarence P. Hall are worthy of special mention. They each evince unusual oratorical powers and will undoubtedly be heard from again.

The Mrs. Dr. Emens zoology prize, a dental toilet set, was awarded to Miss May French. The Dr I. C. Curtis chemistry prize, an encyclopedia of poetry and song, was awarded to Miss Ada Thayer. The Case gold medal prize, valued at $35 to the pupil standing best in English grammar, arithmetic, Latin and phisology was adwarded to Freddie LaPorte, 14 years of age, who excelled Frank Coats in standing only a fraction. Master Coats was made honorable mention of.

The exercises were highly creditable to all and of more than ordinary interest to the large audience present. A vacation occurs now of nine weeks.

Rose Sunday.

The Universalist Sunday School had their annual concert last Sunday evening. The pastor, Rev. A. U. Hutchins gave a Sunday school address in the morning; he spoke earnestly of the importance of Sunday school work, that parents should bring, not send their children to Sunday school. The morning service opened by a solo, sang in a beautiful and artistic manner by Miss Bullis, sister of Mrs. A. U. Hutchins. "Consider the Lilies" etc. The enunciation was clear and distinct and the audience were very much pleased. The house was decorated with flowers, mosses and evergreens. The evening exercises consisted of singing by the choir and school, and recitations. The recitation of baby Blanchard, a little miss less than three years of age, was a marked feature of the evening. The church was filled.

Jasper Whitcomb, a prominent citizen of Granby, died at his home in that town Saturday night, aged 60 years. He lived upon the farm where he died over forty years. He leaves five sons and two daughters. Dr. G. H. Whitcomb, the oldest son, of Greenwich, Washington county, N. Y., was called to attend the funeral. Services will be conducted by Rev. A. U. Hutchins, of the Universalist church, to-day at 1 o'clock, p. m., at his late residence.

The postmasters of all presidential offices have received from the department blank receipts with stubs which they are required to use in the collection of box rents. The regulations provide that no box shall be assigned to any person until the rent is paid one quarter in advance, and a person renting a box can have only the mail for his own family put in it. Each box can be used by only one family, firm or corporation. Box rent has been advanced by the post-office department to fifteen cents per quarter.

We learn by the Skaneateles Free Press of the death of Henry Stark, a former employee of the THE TIMES office. The Free Press says:—In the spring of 1881 he went to work on THE FULTON TIMES, where he remained a few months, after which he returned to his home here, and left it only to work for a few weeks in Canandaigua at his trade. It was at Fulton that consumption began to strongly show itself upon his system, and for the past year he battled manfully with the dread disease, being daily about town during the past week, and taking his regular meals Thursday. Henry was a young man who had many friends, and was of a kindly, patient nature, suffering from childhood of a hip disease, but no complaint was ever heard from his lips. His life was spotless, and he has gone to a better home, to eternal rest.

THE "PRACTICAL" DIFFERENCE BETWEN POETRY AND PHILOSOPHY

It sounds very poetic to say "man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn" but why not apply the principle to the more practical side of the subject, and render the questien thns:—"Swayne's Ointment on account of stopping the itching caused by the Piles has made countless thousands well and happy." There would be sound logic in this poets are never cheerful, are they? 7w4

The many friends of our genial correspondent and fellow townsman Fred K. Jones, will be particularly pleased to learn that, accompanied by his accomplished wife, and little son "Fred Jr.," he intends passing a portion of his summering in Fulton and vicinity. He is very popular among the piano trade, and is said to be without a rival as a piano salesman. Mr. Albert Weber heard of him while he was in Chicago, and as the position of leading salesman in his magnificent Fifth Avenue warerooms was vacant, Mr. Jones was selected from several of the best men of the land by Mr. Weber himself and offered the place at a high salary and an engagement for a term of years. He will arrive here on July 9th.

A Barking Dog.

R. Leonard was driving past the residence of Wm. Dexter a few weeks ago, when Dexter's dog ran out and barked, frightening the team and rendering them unmanageable, throwing the occupants from the carriage and damaging the whole outfit. Mr. Leonard sued Mr. Dexter for damages done to horses and wagon, caused as was alleged, by the barking dog. The case was tried before Justice Crombie and a jury. Leonard was awarded $50 damages.

In the Water.

Madame Adella, who made a balloon ascension in Oswego yesterday, was picked up in the lake last evening, seven miles from Oswego, in an exhausted condition, by the tug Morey and brought to Oswego. She threw out everything to keep up, hoping to strike a current that would carry her back to land. Seeing a tug apparently following her, she opened the valve, came down, and was dragged thro' the water several miles, and was finally picked up by the tug. She was in the water nearly an hour.

Excursion to Sea Breeze.

The Young Men's Literary Society of Fulton and Oswego Falls will give a grand basket picnic and excursion to Sea Breeze Monday, July 17th. This beautiful summer resort is situated upon the the shore of lake Ontario, in Genesee county, and street cars communicate with the city of Rochester every ten minutes. Tickets for sale at Nichols' in Fulton and Howe & Dexter's in Oswego Falls. Fare for round trip $1.25 for adults, and 60 cents for children under 12 years of age. Train will leave lower D., L. & W. depot at 7:30, a. m.; returning, leave Sea Breeze at 7:30 p. m. For further particulars see posters.

An Old Industry.

One of the oldest industries in Fulton is the stoneware pottery of Hart Bros. It was established in 1832, when Fulton was in its infancy, and for these fifty years has been a reliable manufacturing establishment. No great effort has been made to extend the works and "push things." The founder, S. Hart, now 78 years of age is still living, his sons Elwin E., and Charles A., succeeding him in the management of the business. Two potteries are now in operation, one at Fulton and one at Belleville, Ont., the former managed by E. E. Hart and the latter by Chas. A. Hart, under the firm name of Hart Bros.

The Fulton shop enjoys a trade that reaches ffom Niagara Falls to Ogdensburg. The wares manufactured are jars, jugs, flowerpots, churns and an infinite variety of hanging baskets, etc., Hart Bros. are now manufacturing and introducing a stoneware filter that for durability and design is paving its way to popular use very fast.

An Honorable Record.

Will you publish this of an old neighbor and friend, during my residence in Bristol, Pa., strongly in contrast with the record of some officers in other cities. His sweet life I remember well:

In Bristol, Pa., Chas. T. Iredell, cashier of the Farmer's National Bank, died last Friday, after a protracted illness. It has been more than fifty years since he first became connected with the bank, having entered it in 1827, as clerk, and passing through the several positions, until he became the cashier. He was for a portion of the intervening time, out of active service there, owing to ill health, but his career, as a whole, is probably one of the longest on record, as connected with a single institution. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon, and was largely attended. Mr. Iredell belonged to the society of Friends, and leaves an honorable record of an upright life, and conscientious principles.

W.

"How do you manage," said a lady to her friend, "to appear so happy all the time?" "I always have Parker's Ginger Tonic handy," was the reply, "and thus keep myself and family in good health and spirits. See adv.6w4

Rev. A. U. Hutchins last week attended the commencement of the St. Lawrence University located at Canton. This institution embraces two departments: the college of letters and sciences, A. G. Gaines, D. D.; the freshman class numbers thirty-two. The theological department; I. M. Atwood, D. D. president. The graduating exercises of the college of letters commenced on Wednesday and the graduating exercises of the theological department occurred on Thursday. The exercises were largely attended. Ex-Governor Israel Washburne, L. L. D. delivered one of the addresses. The annual senior class concert took place Wednesday evening. The Swedish Ladies Quartette and the Temple Quartette (gentlemen) of Boston participated. The St. Lawrence University is under the auspices of the Universalist denomination.

Good morning, Thomas, glad to see you out. Last I heard, you were laid up with bilious fever. What cured you?,, Thomas grasped his friend's hand and said in a husky voice, "cured by that little, insignificant looking Podophyllin Pill of Cobb's that I laughed at so long, and then had to come to it after all, by thunder!" 25 cts procurees a bottle. The operating rooms of the Western Union telegraph office and the telephone office are to be removed up stairs in the rooms over the present office. Business office will be on first floor. By this arrangement people wishing to use the telephone will not be annoyed with the presence of customers.

Since June 26th there has been shipped from Fulton 639 crates of strawberries to the New York and Philadelphia market, contaning over twenty three thousand quarts. They have brought from ten to twenty-five cents per quart. The shipments this season will be in excess of those of last year.

James James died at the residence of his son, Schuyler James, on the Whitaker road east of the village, Sunday, July 2d, aged 83 years, Mr. James' life was mostly spent in Hannibal and this town. Late years he has been in feeble health, though active for one of his advanced age. Funeral to-day at 10 a. m., from residence, Rev. E. C. Bruce officiating.

THE GENERAL('S) EXPERIENCE.

Persuing a recent copy of the Chicago Times, we observe the following statement from Gen'l Leib of the Chicago Democrat: "St Jacob's Oil is the remedy for rheumatism and neuralgia, without any manner or doubt; and people who suffer from these diseases ought to be made acquainted with that fact. Whenever I had occasion to use the Oil I found it all its proprietors claim for it.

Noble Aims.

"Men's natures wrangle with inferior things,
Though great ones art their object."
[Othello.

This is only another form of saying that men waste their time and talents over mere details, when their chief aim may be lofty and noble. It is the small things of life that command and secure attention, and the greater aims are often lost, or at least are often hindered, for the want of favorite conditions. Experience is the great teacher, and although her methods are somewhat slow, it generally proves true that in the end the petty obstacles are brushed away and the great and noble aims of life are realized. An experience of about a dozen years has taught the people of Central New York that it is useless to go about searching for some new thing or some cheap thing, when every need and every taste and every purse can be satisfied at once by calling on Kent & Miller, the popular clothiers. Their present stock of light summer goods surpasses every thing they have had before. Those who are contemplating a season on the seashore, in the woods or at the mountains [illegible]

Hilliard's circus was in Central Square last week. It was accompanied by a band of sharks and thieves. The News tells the following:

"A sharper put a few writing pens into a couple of small boxes, into one of these boxes he put a one dollar bill and into the other he put a ten dollar bill, and after shuffling them would give any person their choice for seven or eight dollars. Several or our citizens thought themselves just as smart as the operator, but soon found out their mistake. He gave notice that as soon as the small bills were all taken he would put up larger amounts, and but for the timely complaint and intervention of the authorities it is very likely that many more pocket books would have been depleted. There is also a swindling game said to be three-card monte, carried on in one of the tents, and some of our monied men took three hundred dollars worth of stock in the concern, and even borrowed money for the purpose.

The New "Clarendon."

One of the cosiest and most comfortable of the hotels of the city is the Clarendon just opening, and situated on the way out from the D. L. & W. depot on Jefferson street. The building is thoroughly fire proof and neatly finished outside with tasteful cornice projections, etc., giving a very attractive appearance. G. E. Squiers, the lessee, well known in Syracuse as one of the most popular of landlords, has secured the Clarendon for a term of years and will devote himself to building up a hotel business at this point which he is so well able to do. The house will prove a great convenience to the traveling public, as it is easily reached from the Delaware Lackawanna & Western depot, and may be said essentially to be just what is now needed to accommodate the increasing business of that popular thoroughfare.

STONES IN THE KIDNEYS

AND BLADDER. RELEASED—LONG SUFFERING OF ONE OF TROY'S—BEST PEOPLE —A LUCKY MAN.

It is by no means a strange thing that Dr. Kennedy should have received the following letter. By reading it you will see in one minute why James Andrews was thankful :

TROY, N. Y. April, 8, 1882.

Dr. D. Kennedy Rondout N. Y.

DEAR SIR :—Until within a recent date I had for several years suffered greatly from gravel, called by the doctors the brick-dust sediment. For about a year past this sediment has not passed off in the usual quantity, but has accumulated, causing me untold pain. Having heard of "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" I tried it in my case, and after using about one and one-half bottles, I voided a stone from the bladder, of an oval shape, 7-16 of an inch long, and rough on its surface. I send yo the largest piece that you may see of what it is composed. since then I have felt no pain. I now consider myself cured, and cannot express my thankfulness and gratitude for so signal a deliverance from a terrible a disease. You have my consent to use this letter, should you wish to do so, for the benefit of other sufferers.

Yours Truly,

JAMES ANDREWS.

No 10 Marshal St, Ida Hill.

When we consider that the medicine which did this service for Mr. Andrews cost only one dollar a bottle, it would seem that persons in like fashion can afford the expense of testing its virtues. VAN VALKENBURG'S

RESTAURANT.

—:O:—

A Model Restaurant and Billiard Room Charley have you been to look at Van's place, on the corner of First and Oneida Streets since he has remodeled and enlarged it? His Restaurant ! Yes, was the reply, and it certainly is one of the best appointed and most attractive places ever opened in our village. Such is the fact. This ever popular place has been thoroughly Repainted and Remodeled so that it is now more pleasant and attractive than ever before. The partitions have been removed, the Rooms made Larger so that any that may wish to go to a First-Class Restaurant can do so now and can go into a private entrance to lunch alone, separate and alone. He has also a Billiard & Pool Room attached, entirely separate from Bar or Lunch Room. The Tables are of Babcock's best make, handsomely gotten up and have the Celebrated Magic Double Action Cushion which are so popular with all lovers of Billiard and Pool. All that money can do to make Van's place more popular than ever has been done. Only the best of everything is kept. Call and look at his bill of fare and know for yourselves the Lunch Van gets up and you will be surprised to learn that he keeps on hand everything in the shape of Lunch that could be got at Delmonicos. He is prepared to get up Lunch for Picnicing and Fishing Parties on the shortest notice in Elegant Style and at very reasonable rates. Now I will give you a small list of his lunches that he gets up: Oysters, in every style; Clam Chowder, Sardines, Lobsters, Crabs, Salmon, Mackerel, Anchovey Chicken, Boiled Ham, Pig Feet Stew, Pork and Beans, Sandwiches of all kinds, Pies and Cheese, Tea and Coffee, and other things and all very cheap. Call and get some of his lunches and you will be more than pleased at the price, so much so that you will say to yourself, well I did not know before that people could get such dishes for so small a figure and up here in the country. I have found the place to get my lunch from now out. The prices are what catches me.

Stick to Your Own Business.

Farming, manufacturing, banking, and the various mercantile pursuits, are thoroughly mastered only by those who give to them the time which is necessary to conduct each in the best manner ; for they each require for their best prosecution certain natural aptitudes, skill, and experience. Ordinarily, it is not wise for men to leave one line of business and engage in another of an entirely different nature and scope. There may be exceptions to the rule, for occasionally men are found who can turn their hands to almost all sorts of work, and succeed measurably well at different things. Many farmers believe they can run stores, banks, insurance companies and brokers offices successfully. At least they think by combining together and putting in the capital and getting a business man to manage the business, that they shall succeed. But we advise farmers especially to move cautiously in such enterprises. There are many pitfalls ; honest success will come if you stick to your busines, but avoid speculation of this kind. [Lewistown Journal.

A HEAVY SWELL.

Jacob H. Bloomer, Virgille, N. Y., writes : "Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured a badly swollen neck and sore throat in forty-eight hours. My wife was also cured of a lame foot in twenty-four hours."

Why the Term "Commencement" Is Used.

A correspondent writes as follows to the Albany Times :

I have noticed that several of your readers are in perplexity as to the meaning of the word "commencement," as applied to collegiate exercises. I had occasion some years ago to to study out the origin of this and other words of like character. In the sense used, the term is an Americanism, or, more properly, a New Englandism, originating many years ago among the Yankees in Connecticut, whose vocation it was to direct the education of the young. With a shrewd business sense they determined that the the then growing practice of of distributing premiums might with advantage be adopted at the beginning instead of the close of the term. All who expected prizes of distinction were thus tempted to continue at school after the close of the summer vacation, the prizes being awarded and being bestowed at the "commencement" of the term following that in which they had been merited, and only given to those who renewed their scholarship. The scheme became generally adopted, but was in vogue only a few years, when the former custom was renewed but the exercises retained the name, and this piece of Yankee ingenuity is the real reason for the peculiar term in question.

One voice all over the land goes up from mothers, that says. "My daughters are so feeble and sad, with no strength, all out of breath and life at the least exertion. What can we do for them?" The answer is simple and full of hope. One to four weeks' use of Hop Bitters will make them healthy, rosy, sprightly and cheerful. 7w4

Do You Know?

That a little water in butter will prevent it from burning when used for frying.

That a little saltpetre worked into butter that has become sour or rancid will render it sweet and palatable.

That pennyroyal distributed in places frequented by roaches will drive them away.

That wild mint will keep rats and mice out of your house.

That five quarts of boiling water poured on a package of pearline will make an excellent soft soap? Let it remain over night to harden.

That lime sprinkled in fire places during summer months is healthy.

That Spanish brown, mixed with a little water, will make the hearths look pretty? A pound costs 10 cents and will last two months; use a little at a time.

That leaves of parsley, eaten with a little vinegar, will prevent the disagreeable consequences of tainted breath by onions?

That flowers and shrubs should be excluded from a sick chamber?

That oil paintings hung over the mantlepiece are liable to wrinkle with the heat?

Disease is an effect, not a cause. Its origin is within ; its manifestations without. Hence, to cure the disease the cause must be removed, and in no other way can a cure ever be effected. WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE is established on just this principle. It realizes that of all diseases arise from deranged kidneys and liver, and it strikes at once at the root of the difficulty. The elements of which it is composed act directly upon the great organs, both as a food and restorer, and by placing them in a healthy condition, drive disease and pain from the system.

95 per Cent.

For the innumerable troubles caused by unhealthy Kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs ; for the distressing Disorders of Women ; for Malaria, and for physical derangements generally, this great remedy has no equal. Beware of impostors, imitations and concoctions said to be just as good.

An Indian Wedding.

During Secretary Teller's visit to the Indian school at Carlisle, Pa. he attended the wedding of two of the pupils of the Kiowa tribe. A correspondent thus describes the ceremony:—"At the ringing of the chapel bell the school assembled, curious and expectant. Secretary Teller and wife accompanied by Capt. Pratt, then entered; immediately after, the Swedish wedding march signalled the approach of the bridal party. The young couple were attended by twelve attendants selected from the various tribes. The bride, a Kiowa girl, was a fine type of the Indian woman, the groom had a open, manly face and a good presence. The ceremony was most impressive, and peculiarly calculated to teach the Indian the sacredness of the relation of man and wife. There seemed more than the usual solemnity in this service, as it emphasized a custom little understood and much abused by the red man. At the conclusion of the ceremony the bridal party, pupils and guests repaired to the lawn and pagoda, where a bountiful repast was served, the bride cutting the cake according to conventional mode." The groom thus described his falling in love:—"Long time ago in Indian Territory, I hunt and I fight; I not think about girls. Then you take me to St. Augustine, I learn much and I not think about girls. I go to Carlisle, I learn more; I do right; I do not think about girls. I go to my home; I do not think about girls there. But Laura, she thinks. I bring her to Carlisle."

INCREDIBLE.

F. A. Scratch, druggist, Ruthven, Ont writes : "I have the greatest confidence in your Burdock Blood Bitters. In one case with which I am personally acquainted their success was almost incredible. One lady told me that half a bottle did her more good than hundreds of dollars worth of medicine she had previously taken." Price $1.00.

The Beginning of Fortune.

I inquired what Mr. Blaine's errand in Ohio was to-day, where he has gone with Mr. Elkins. The general idea that he is seeking to get railroad connections for his Piedmont and Fairfax Stone railroad.

The small beginnings of fortune are traced in this anecdote. About twelve years ago a young man named Stephen B. Elkins was sent to congress as a delegate from New Mexico. He was blushing and ambitious. Blaine, the speaker, paid so much more courtesy to his wishes that the young man fell in love with him. Soon afterward Elkins, being a young widower, began to court a daughter of Senator Henry Davis, of West Virginia. He heard Davis talking about the coal lands near by. Elkins looked into the matter and began to buy also. He drew Blaine into the purchase. This turned Blaine's attention to Virginia railroads, and he became a purchaser of the James river canal, and organizer of a railroad on its bed. This yielded him a fortune of itself.

Meantime mining in Colorado leaped up and Elkins went in with Mr. Chaffee, his old associate in the sale of the Maxwell Mexican grant, which was the common basis of their wealth. They both liked Blaine—he planked up his money, and came out ahead there too. He was backed up for the presidency by these two men both times. Now Elkins and Blaine are looking for large extensions in the railroads they have developed from Senator Davis' coal fields. Both Blaine and Conkling are, therefore hard in pursuit of fortune—both are well advertised, both glutted with success and starved with disappointment; and of such is not the kingdom of Heaven. But Elkins has several fine children by that girl he went courting among the coal lands. ["Gath" in Cin. Enquirer.

July.

When the scarlet cardinal tells
Her dream to the dragonfly,
And the lazy breeze makes a nest in the trees
And murmurs a lullaby,
It is July.

When the tangled cobweb pulls
The corn-flower's blue cap away,
And the lilies tall lean over the wall
To bow to the butterfly,
It is July.

When the heat like a mist veil floats,
And poppies flame in the rye
And the silver note in the streamlet's throat
Has softened almost to a sigh,
It is July.

When the hours are so full that Time
Forgets them and lets them lie
'Neath petals pink till the night stars wink
At the sunset in the sky,
It is July.

When each finger-post by the way
Says that slumbertown is nigh;
When the grass is tall, and the roses fall,
And nobody wonders why,
It is July.

A MOUSE AND A CLAM.

A Little Story Told by a Regular Attendant at Church.

One night last week, at a late hour, a gentleman of this city, who, as a matter of habit rarely retires before midnight, had occasion at that "watching hour" to attend to the furnace fire before retiring. The wind was blowing almost a gale, and the rain was pouring down in torrents, and the night was one to induce a feeling of "uncertainty" in the heart of the bravest. The gentleman in question never indulges in intoxicating liquors, and there is no reason to suppose that his nerves were unusually disturbed. He is very fond of clams, however, and on the morning of the day when the incident occurred had ordered a peck of clams, which were to be cooked the next day. As he descended the stairs on his midnight errand, with a lamp in his hand, and shading the lamp with his hand to shield it from the draft, he observed that the bucket of clams had been left at the foot of the stairs.

Groping his way slowly down the stairs, and looking cautiously for the cellar door, he suddenly saw what appeared to be a small white clam, move gradually from the bucket, where he had hitherto been reposing peacefully with his mates, and work his way steadily and quickly across the cellar floor and mount the wall at the further side of the cellar, to a distance of three feet from the floor. Never having seen a clam walk before, and being especially interested in the apparent fact of the ability of a clam to climb a cellar wall, the gentleman courageously determined to investigate the matter in the interests of science and curiosity. He placed the lamp at a convenient position, took up a piece of barrel hoop and boldly advanced—resolving to become a martyr to science, if need be. The white object proved to be indeed a clam, but the clam had used other means of locomotion than its own in navigating across the cellar floor. An indiscreet mouse had walked over the bucket of clams, and an ambitious clam had fastened his nippers on the mouse's tail. The mouse becoming frightened at the advent of the gentleman above mentioned, quickly started for his hole in the wall, when he was compelled to stop on account of the shell-fish attachment to his tail.

The gentleman who narrates the incident is very respectable and is a regular attendant at church.

Says the Brooklyn Eagle, Mr. R. O. Moore, of Messrs. Vernam & Co., [illegible] New street, New York, was almost instantly relieved by St. Jacobs Oil of severe pain following an attack of pleurisy. The remedy acted like magic.

A woman of Stockton, Cal., believing that she was about to die confessed to her husband that she had never loved him, but had centered her affections on a neighbor. She declared that she could not die unforgiven, and so the husband freely forgave her. But he granted the favor only in view of her sudden death, and, when she unexpectedly recovered, he began a suit for divorce. Her defense is that he condoned her fault by the forgiveness and a peculiar question of law is raised.

Over sixty corn canneries in the State of Maine annually put up nearly 12,000,000 cans. An exchange makes an estimate of the cost at which corn is so prepared for the market. The farmer is said to [illegible] for [illegible] in the can; the tin and solder cost 3 cents, and the remaining [illegible] goes to the manufacturer for putting up and marketing. The cans contain 26 ounces of corn, so that farmers raise from 1,000 to 3,000 cans per acre, the average being about 1,500 giving it a cash value of $45. There are several factories in Massachusetts, but Maine is said to put up one-third of the corn canned in this country.

A LETTER FROM MARTHA.

Back from England—Ned a Reformed Man—Martha airs Herself on the Subject of Temperance—The Old Click of the Shuttle.

Thou in Argos then
Shalt at another's bidding ply the loom;
* * * * *
Go thou home and tend thy labor there
The web, the distaff—and command thy maids
To speed thy work.
[Hector to Andromache—Bryant's Homer's Iliad.]

Since my last letter Ned and I have been in old England, and have had a pleasant visit to Bradford and vicinity. We can say with the good poet Cowper, speaking of England:

England, with all thy faults I love thee still.

But we are beginning to love our adopted land more, and our home is to be here, and with it greater advantages than there and with possibilities that could never come to us in the "sea girt isle." Crowned heads and the aristocracy of caste and titled names stand as a fixed barrier between us and the path to progress and true liberty. To be the descendants of royal ancestry or have in our veins the blood of a defunct and imbecile king is more than to be possessed with a healthy body and mind, cultivated symmetrically for the work that makes every life noble, be it physical or mental, or both. We are learning that the building of character, that practical knowledge conscientiously directed is of more value than mere pomp and empty glitter. To equalize the burdens to be borne, is the attempt of a republican government, although not by any means perfect in its workings, the principle is recognized that the pathway is open to all to affluence and greatness.

Free schools and American citizenship are boons prized by every immigrant who with a noble purpose desires to make this land his future home, He no longer longs for London fogs, gold lace and "arf-and-arf" of his native land. Not that the vices and evils that mar the fair fame of England are not here also, but that broad acres and generous hands are here to welcome you in the name of a great government to its blessing and all the priveleges that may come from the industry and well doing.

We learn in every department of life that to drop a thread is to have an imperfect web, and that sooner or later we must pay for the neglect or imperfection; so in the moral world, as well the penalty of violated law brings its stripes, be they few or many. Yea, more than this, the innocent suffer for the wrong doing they did not.

Is the social habit of beer and whiskey drinking a small thing—something to be sneered at? When I think of the lower depths from which Ned was restored, when the dark and intruding thought comes to me that he may fall again into the toils of the tempter, Oh, how my heart intuitively beats against my breast and a sense of oppression comes to my throat. I know it is among the possibilities. Hundreds strong as he have fallen after a struggle of years and who had regained their manhood and become noble men. But the demon of rum had fixed its iron grip deep in their very beings and in some moment of grievous temptation they gave way and prayerful endeavor was supplanted by recklessness, and the [illegible] spirit treads upon the very border of despair.

Oh, landlord and saloon keeper did you ever seriously consider the business in which you are engaged? Do you reply that upon your shoulders rest no responsibility, that you have contributed nothing to the downward career of the man or boy to whom you hand out daily intoxicating drink and receive his money? Is society improved or made better in any of its relations or is any man or woman strengthened in their endeavors, mental or moral? Is not your example such that, although by you not quite realized, that danger by association with that class of men you many times meet and serve may demoralize you, who in turn must have more or less influence on your own character and upon your friends and family. Ned says that he learned before he went into the dye house there was such a thing as "chemical affinity"; now he has learned there are several other kinds. A very few persons that engage in selling beer and whiskey may attain to ad[illegible] but [illegible] out the intoxicating [illegible] for it is any true [illegible] question.

A kind of logic is used for defending and apologizing for this whiskey traffic that would not be tolerated on any other subject. The persons that visit, patronize and frequent these places claim that they are not hurt or influenced [illegible] that they [illegible] control or abstain; that their associations and the familiarity [illegible] pertains to hotel and saloon life are innocent and harmless and that children and the young are just as well cared for there as in their own homes. Does an unprejudiced sane man or woman believe that the average son of a seller of alcoholic [illegible] greater danger than if he did not frequent such [illegible] what the pretence or business that finds him there? Does any intelligent and thoughtful mother believe that her child is [illegible] anything that will make him stronger or better now, or in after life by frequenting such places? Are they stronger than those that have gone down to the lower depths before them? [illegible] the great difficulty in finding higher and more ennobling associations, where temptations and bad example is not before them? Is there no [illegible] good taste for those that have homes, or even the park, to sit in, to place his feet on the table and gaze out of doors, especially Sunday at the passers by, less than boorish, if not loaferish and "powerful weak" for a gentleman.

Ned has been looking over my shoulder and says, "What has all this to do with weaving?" I said to him it had as much to do with weaving as anything else and when you ask me to put in a new bobbin I can only reply that this filling is some on hand and must be used, although not by any means perfect it has its uses, and like other cuts must of course go to the burling room, there to pass through the deft and cunning fingers of the keen eyed girls. It is not a difficult task nor does it require a knowledge of the classes to criticise; to find fault, because some other form or method was not used. There is not a hay-scale in town but what has sufficient capacity to take the net weight of the "numerous" critic. My business is to weave the web that is given me, striving in some measure to present to my employer the best results from the material I have on hand, be the warp or woof hard or slack twisted. In this sturdy faith I listen to the sharp click of my shuttle as thread by thread is snugly laid by its fellow:—

"Each morning sees some task begin,
Each evening sees it close;
Something attempted, something done,
Has earned a night's repose."

Why Williams was not Sentenced to be Hanged on a Friday.

When Judge Rumsey sentenced the murderer Williams of Lyons to hang on a Thursday instead of on the day usually set apart for such "demonstrations" it was much commented upon. A reporter of the Rochester Post Express recently interviewed Mr. Rumsey on this matter:

"I cannot find anywhere," said the Judge, "and never was able to find, any particular time when judges commenced to execute sentences on Friday. For many years, instead of having hangings take place on Friday they were fixed upon any day of the week except Sunday. Although the custom evidently arose from tradition, and from the crucifixion of Christ on Friday, I am convinced that it is of comparatively recent origin."

Reporter—"What were your particular reasons for fixing the day of the execution of Williams on a day other than Friday?"

Justice Rumsey—"I think it is all nonsense to adopt any particular day. I do not think it is a good idea to perpetuate any of the ridiculous superstitions of the past in this enlightened age."

A man going round the world from west to east, gains a day, but one who stays at home and keeps himself in order with Cobb's Little Podophylin Pills, gains many of them. Only 25 cts. For sale by R. E. Phillips.

Mrs. Partington attended an enthusiastic meeting for endowing a soldiers' home "Quite a furore" the President of the meeting remarked to the dame, who sat beside him "A few roar" she replied, her spectacles flashing with excitement. "I should call it a good many roar, and everybody seems willing to exhilarate the movement. How much we owe the soldiers who made sacraments of themselves for us, and laid down their arms and legs only when the Union was saved!"

THE "PRACTICAL" DIFFERENCE BETWEN POETRY AND PHILOSOPHY

It sounds very poetic to say "man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn" but why not apply the principle to the more practical side of the subject, and render the questien thus:—"Swayne's Ointment on account of stopping the itching caused by the Piles has made countless thousands well and happy." There would be sound logic in this poets are never cheerful, are they? 7w4

Give the young and struggling encouragement when you can. You would not leave those plants in your window-boxes without water, nor refuse to open the shutters that the sunlight might fall upon them; but you would leave some human flower to suffer from want of appreciation or the sunlight of encouragement. There are a few hardy souls that can struggle along on stony soil—shrubs that can wait for the dews and sunbeams—vines that climb without kindly training; but only a few. Utter the kind word when you can see that it is deserved. The thought that "no one cares and no one knows" blights many a bud of promise. Be it the young artist at his easel, the young preacher in his pulpit, the workman at his bench, the boy at his mathematical problems, or your little girl at the piano, give what praise you can.

Nobody enjoys nicest surroundings if in bad health. There are miserable people about to day to whom a bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic would bring more solid comfort than all the medicine they ever tried—News. 6w4

CONGRESS it is thought will adjourn about August 1st.

A. T. STEWART & Co.'s stores in New and Chicago are still in operation and the closing out establishments is looked upon as a huge advertising scheme.

THE New York Herald claims that Cornell university is declining in popular favor and usefulness. It attributes the fact to the admission of women.

SO MANY Port Jervis school boys carry revolvers and toy pistols that the Board of Education has ordered the immediate expulsion of any of their number found in posession of the deadly weapons.

THE receipts of tolls from the canals from the 1st to the 7th of July were $15,169, against $24,8[illegible] for the same period last year, and the tonnage 143,80[illegible] tons against 181,231 for the same period [illegible].

THE trial of the star routers is proceeding in Washington. The proceedings are so tedious that the average reader is not giving them much attention. The outlook is blue for the defendants.

[illegible] New York [illegible] says Frederick Douglass and Walter Malley were seen together in New York Saturday at an opera. Their coolness during the trial was thought at the time to [illegible] similated.

ANOTHER monument. The committee on public buildings recommend an appropriation of $10,000 to complete a monument at Fredericksburg, [illegible] in honor of the mother of Washington. Who next?

COURTNEY the sculler has been poisoned again. This time it was at a church festival in Union Springs, N. Y., his home, while eating ice cream. There was no bold face in immediate anticipation either.

GOV. CORNELL signed one bill that will please many people who rent houses. It provides that monthly tenants holding over shall have five days instead of two hours before they can be dispossessed.

LET us hope this is the last of Guiteau. His bones have been stripped of flesh and are undergoing the bleaching process preparatory to being placed on exhibition in the medical museum at Washington.

A SHOCKING disaster occurred on the Ohio river near Pittsburg last Wednesday. A pleasure boat crowded with excursionists collided with a tug boat and sunk, drowning about seventy, fifty-one of whom have been recovered.

J. B. GRINNELL, of Iowa, the man who was the recipient of Horace Greeley's celebrated advice to "go west, young man, go west," was the founder of the town of Grinnell, in Iowa, recently devastated by an unmerciful cyclone.

A SCARCITY of corn in this section will be more than counterbalanced by the immense crops reported from the west and south-west, Texas alone being able to furnish 140,000,000 bushels this year against 70,000,000 in 1881 and 23,000,000 in 1880.

THE American Bankers' Association are making preparations to hold their annual meeting at Saratoga August 16 and 17. Special reduced rates have been obtained for this army of coupon cutters and reasonable board is announced at $3.00 and $3.50 per day or $20.00 per week.

THE committee of the New York Bar Association have announced as the subject of the post graduate essay in 1882: "Contributory Negligence and Burden of Proof." The prize for the best essay is $250. The well known negligence of some lawyers should make them familiar with a portion of the subject.

A NOVEL strike was that of the prisoners in the State prison at Concord, Mass. They became dissatisfied because privileges were taken from them allowing recreation in the prison yard July 4th. They refused to work. One meal per day on bread and water and chained to their cells brought them to time.

THE weavers who were employed in the Harmony mills at Cohoes, are leaving in large numbers for Massachusetts milling towns. The mill owners are firm in their decision to rebel against the advance asked by the strikers. This is the longest period these immense mills have been idle since they were built.

ANOTHER crank has turned up in North Norwich, Chenango county, who tried to telegraph the following to Warden Crocker at Washington: "I will give $100, for the rope that hangs Guiteau, $250 for the one that hangs Conkling, and $1,000 for the one that hangs Arthur." He signed himself Major D. D. Bullock. The operator refused to transmit the message.

HENRY TONER was arrested in New York Thursday to answer for alleged slanderous remarks his wife had uttered against a neighbor. Mr. Toner was surprised to learn that the law held him responsible for his wife's offenses, but such is a fact. Woman's ability to free her mind through the medium of her tongue has been admitted ever since Eve blamed the serpent for her own fatal fondness for apples, and since that time woman's husband has had to pay the penalty. The only remedy lies in giving woman something better than her neighbors to talk about.

NOTHING more cruel could be said by Harper's Weekly about the "306" brigade than the following: The medals commemorative of the defeat of the third term plot at Chicago two years ago are now ready, and every man who tried to set aside the will of the great majority of the Republican party will now have an opportunity of displaying the proof that he did not succeed. Nothing [illegible]

CRUDE oil is selling at forty-five cents per barrel, the lowest figure it has reached since its discovery in 1859, when it readily sold for $20.00 per barrel. To-day there is a surplus on hand of 30,[illegible],-000 million barrels.

ENGLAND has commenced war against Egypt. Cannonading commenced Monday. The Egyptian forts are unable to stand the tremendous power of modern guns and fall an easy prey to the English. What the outgrowth of this muddle will be is beyond supposition.

THE internal revenue bill is having a hard time of it in the Senate. They are eager to blot out the tax on bank checks. Surely things have arrived at a serious point when [illegible] the burdens of the rich can be enacted. Isn't it about time others than bankers were sent to [illegible] for the working people?

THE 22d congressional district composing Oswego and Madison counties contains a population of 122,029, Oswego having [illegible] and Madison 44,-115. Madison shows an increase in thirty years, from 1850 to 1880, of 1043, and Oswego for the same period of time an increase of 14,816. The number of voters in Madison county [illegible] the vote for president in 1880 is 11,47[illegible], divided at that time into [illegible] republicans and 4683 democrats, while the number in Oswego county [illegible] 10,236 republicans and 6746 democrats. In the two counties there are 17,0[illegible] republican voters and 11,429 democratic, showing a possible republican majority, when harmonious, of 5600.

GOVERNMENT officials in every part of the United States from a United States senator to a scrubbing woman in a custom-house are educated to the fact that their position is good only so long as they acquiesce in the demands of the congressional committee and "chip in" a certain per cent. of their salary for election purposes. There are necessary expenses incurred during a campaign that must be paid but the legitimate expenses will not foot up into the millions. It is no secret that the managers of the party use the money to purchase votes, especially in close states or closely contested congressional districts. There are many influential men in the party who are anxious to eliminate this disgusting feature from politics, but so long as the executive and many senators and representatives countenance it and Hon. Jay Hubbell, a representative, is chairman of this bulldozing committee, some may ask, What are you going to do about it? The champions of this system of extortion say it is "voluntary contributions." They would have no one is "assessed," and their circulars to office holders merely a warning that means are wanted to print and mail circulars. Where and to whom are these millions of copies sent? An investigation would probably reveal to the inquirer that a $1 greenback is more convincing to the mass of [illegible] who would [illegible]

A Spirit of Fairness.

The local fight of the republicans in this assembly district last fall was disastrous to that party and the effects of [illegible] yet. The Oswego Times, representing that portion of the party labelled as "stalwarts," makes the following proposition in Saturday evening's issue:

"If the leaders in the Benson movement and their committee will meet our men half way, and consent to some fair arrangement whereby only one set of caucuses and conventions shall be called it seems to us as if it (harmony) ought to be effected."

It remains to be seen what overtures are made by the "half-breeds". In view of the willingness of the stalwarts to come half way, a refusal of the half-breeds to meet them would look as though the black flag had been raised and a war no less bitter than that of last fall is desired by them.

The Oswego Express is for harmony. Yesterday morning it said: The Express is for compromise and harmony. To bring about this, it will acknowledge that stalwarts have rights that should be respected. We only ask that it shall also be admitted that the Garfield republicans have the same rights. Let us have peace.

There will be an interesting time now formulating a set of harmonious rules that will be acceptable to the factions.

UPON HIS DYING BED.

Lieut. Hewit's Marriage and Death.

Lieut. Augustine F. Hewit, United States Army, Twenty-Second Infantry, died at [illegible] o'clock last evening at the residence of Col. Blanton Duncan, after an illness of not quite two weeks. The disease was a malignant malarial of the most virulent character, which defied all that medical skill and loving hearts and hands could do. When it became necessary to acquaint him with the fact that his case was hopeless, Col. and Mrs Duncan gave him the painful information, and it was received with the heroism and unflinching manhood which characterized and stamped him as one of the noblest and truest types of our race. The look of inquiry which had first gathered upon his face at this unusual approach of his betrothed's parents to his bedside simply changed into a grand look of resignation. The first inquiry made of him was who should be sent for among the clergymen. "I have been reared in the Catholic faith, but of late I have not attended to my duties as I should have done. I would like to see Father Johnston." Lieut. Hewit was to be married on Tuesday, the 18th of July, to Miss Katherine, eldest daughter of Col. Duncan. [illegible] asked him if it would make him happier to be married then and there, and Hewitt eagerly responded in the affirmative. Miss Duncan had been attacked with the same malarial type of disease on Sunday, May 21, and her life was despaired of for days. She likewise desired the union, heart-broken as she, too, was at the information conveyed for the first time that death was so near to them. Father Johnston married them as they were placed side by side upon the dying soldier's bed. Lieut. Hewit, in the most affecting terms, then bade farewell to his wife until they could be reunited in heaven. Shortly after this, about 12 noon he became unconscious and never was restored to lucidity up to the time of his death, at 5:30 p. m. While Lieut. Hewit was so ill at headquarters, two miles distant the surgeon in charge feared that both of his patients would die if separated, and therefore Lieut. Hewitt was brought to Col. Duncan's residence, to receive the unremitting care and attention which tenderness and devotion for him would bestow. It is questionable whether Mrs. Hewitt can sustain the terrible blow without sinking under it. A relapse will be fatal, and prostrated under the calamity, every nerve has given way and left nothing but grieving and mournful sobs and moans. [San Antonio (Tex.) Express.

EMPLOYMENT FOR LADIES.—The Queen City Suspender Company, of Cincinnati, are now manufacturing and introducing their new Stocking Supporters for Ladies and children, and their unequaled Skirt Suspenders for Ladies. None should be without them; our leading physicians recommend them, and are loud in their praises. These goods are manufactured by ladies who have made the wants of ladies and children a study, and they ask us to refer them to some reliable and energetic lady to introduce them in this county, and we certainly think that an earnest solicitation in every household would meet with a ready response, and that a determined woman could make a handsome salary and have the exclusive agency for this county. We advise some lady who is in need of employment to send to the company her name and address, and mention this paper. Address Queen City Suspender Company, No. 179 Main Street, Cincinnati, Ohio. 718

Powers of Police Justices.

The criminal code as amended gives a police justice jurisdiction in the following cases:

Petit larceny, charged at first offense, selling poisonous substances unlabelled, selling lottery tickets, offenses against the laws relating to excise, and the regulation of taverns, inns or hotels, malicious trespass on lands, unlawfully disclosing finding of an indictment, unlawfully counterfeiting or defacing marks on packages, removing property out of the county with intent to prevent the same being levied upon, unlawfully selling or giving to any Indian spirituous liquors or intoxicating drinks, cruelty to animals contrary to the law, cheating [illegible] and such other jurisdiction as is now provided by special statute, or municipal ordinance authorized by statute. Section fifty-seven provides that upon the filing of a certificate of the county judge or of any judge of the supreme court with the magistrate, that it is reasonable that such charge be prosecuted by indictment, and upon the defendant's giving the prescribed bail, all proceedings before the justice shall be stayed. A person charged with any of the above offences can demand an adjournment for five days.

TRIUMPHANT.

Mrs. Seigfried, Marion, O., says Thomas' Eclectric Oil was triumphant in her case; she used it for a severe cold and pain inside, and was relieved in a few few minutes.

Personal! To Men Only!

"THEIR OCCUPATION GONE."

R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo N. Y.: I was attacked with congestion of the lungs, soreness over the liver, severe pain in the joints, a burning fever, and general giving away of the whole system. Failing to find relief in remedies prescribed, I tried your "Golden Medical Discovery." It effected my entire cure. Your medicines have only to be used to be appreciated. If every family would give them a trial, nine-tenths of the doctors would, like Othello, find their occupation gone. Yours truly,

A SORT OF BREVET DEVIL.

Strange Power to Resist Fire Possessed by a Maryland Negro.

Nathan Coker is of pure African lineage, black as ebony and of stalwart frame. He is now somewhere between sixty and seventy years of age, and has resided all his life in the lower part of Tuckahoe Neck, Maryland. He has no knowledge of books—cannot even repeat the alphabet—but is much above mediocrity in point of general intelligence and good, hard, cornfield common sense as compared with his race. When quite young he conceived the idea of becoming fire-proof, and before he was twenty-five he was a veritable fire-king. How he acquired the power to perform the feats of placing his hands and arms in a vessel of boiling water and keeping them there for ten minutes, licking a red hot shovel, holding in his mouth molten lead, and even swallowing it, as well as many others more daring, without apparent injury, no one knows, nor has he ever revealed the secret. In fact, it is doubtful if he can himself explain the mystery; but he can and does handle bars of iron glowing with white heat, eat glowing charcoal made from hickory or oak wood, walk barefooted on a red-hot bar of iron sixteen feet long, with perfect coolness and deliberation. These facts are attested by many respectable witnesses. He used to delight in frightening the ignorant and superstitious country people, to whom he was unknown, whenever he could find a crowd gathered around the stove in a village or country store, by stalking in, opening the stove door and running his hand down in the fire and deliberately taking a live coal in his fingers, which he would coolly place in his pipe and walk off.

He was at one time on exhibition, and his strange feats created considerable excitement, but owing to his dislike of notoriety and lack of education he retired ed from the stage. His power of resisting the effect of fire is singular, and has never, so far as I know, been explained, though he has been examined by a number of scientific men. Many of the colored people, and in fact not a few of the whites, who had been taught by the crude-theologians of fifty years ago to believe in a personal devil with horns, tail and cloven foot, whose kingdom was the bottomless pit, and who occasionally treated his refractory subjects to doses of molten lead, firmly believed, and perhaps some of them still believe, that Nathan was a sort of brevet devil himself. IMPROVE YOUR LOOKS.

Be beautiful! O, be beautiful! for beauty captivates monarchs and conquers kingdoms. Almost every one knows that that celebrated lady and accomplished writer, by title Countess of Blessington, retained her personal charms to an advanced period of her life, and that all the most distinguished statesmen, authors and poets of her time were never tired of eulogizing the peculiar fascination, and the blended pearly purity of her complexion, melted the heart of Lord Byron, captivated Count D'Orsay and brougt N. P. Willis to his knees before her. The great secret of all her successful conquests lay in the fact of her ladyships's habitual use of Princess Louise Toilet Cream. This beautiful gem is for sale at Mrs. J. E. Miller's [illegible] Cayuga st. 45

OFFICIAL PAPER OF FULTON.

A decidedly warm wave has reached us.

"Martha" has returned from England. See first page.

A little daughter has arrived at the home of Patrick Cullen.

Rev. J. P. Simmons officiated in the Baptist church at Phoenix Sunday.

Mrs. Anna Blanchard left yesterday for a visit with friends in New York.

There is a rumor of a pleasing event to occur to-morrow evening on Fourth street.

Mr. R. B. McCully is spending a few days with friends at Sand Bank, Oswego county.

We are requested by the Rector of Zion church to say that there will be no service in said church Sunday next.

Mr. C. H. Howland, of Howland & Young, druggists, Syracuse called on Fulton friends yesterday.

Rev. Jay N. Taft of the Furman street M. E. church Syracuse, made a short call upon Fulton friends last week.

Mrs. Gagie and children of St Louis, Mo., are in town to spend the warm weather with the lady's father Rev. O. C. Cole.

A festival will be held in the church at West Granby Tuesday evening, July 18th. A general invitation is extended to any who may desire to attend.

Joseph Appelt, of Rosenbloom's, took passage on the Midland excursion yesterday for New York, where he will remain a few days with his parents.

Six well filled coaches of excursionists picnicked on the Oswego Falls fair grounds yesterday. They were from the Centenary M. E. church, Syracuse.

Groceryman A. W. Stoneburg exhibited to THE TIMES one dozen hen's eggs that weighed but one ounce and a half. This is eggs-traordinary light weight.

John Swan, for some time in the employ of Sheridan & Baker, has accepted a position as assistant book keeper in Kennedy, Spaulding & Co's wholesale hardware store in Syracuse.

The Patriot endeavored to get into a discussion with the Oswego Times last week. The Times people know them and in Monday evening's issue cut them off short by saying: "We have no space to waste on the Fulton Patriot."

Mr. M. H. Brando left Fulton Monday for New York to enter upon his new duties. He will be employed in the tea importing house of Roswell, Skeel & Co. 97 Front street. Mr. Brando will have supervision of the New England trade.

Reform Methodists will hold a Quarterly Meeting on the Rev. M. L. Ormsby charge one mile south of Dexterville, on Saturday evening and Sunday morning, July 22d and 23d. Meeting will be addressed by Rev. W. W. Davenport, of Broome county, N. Y., Presiding Elder. A general invitation is extended to all.

The will of the late E. R. Huggins, Esq., of this village, has been proved and recorded. It bequeaths his property to his daughter, Mrs. John Harvie, subject to a life charge of $200 a year in favor of the wife of the deceased, which annuity is to cease if the widow marries again and her husband is able and willing to support her.

The Fire Association of Philadelphia, Imperial and Northern of London and Star of New York, insurance companies formerly represented in Fulton by Ed. F. DeGraw have been transferred to Mr. C. W. Streeter. People holding policies in either of the above companies can obtain information regarding them by applying to Mr. Streeter. Read advertisement.

F. Kenyon Jones chief salesman in Weber's piano warerooms in New York accompanied by his wife and son, arrived here July 9th the guests of the D. L. & W. Railroad company. The musical circles of Fulton are always enthusiastic over Fred Jones, and will enjoy his short visit highly.

One of the prominent theatrical managers of New York has given Mr. Jones a commission to write a comic opera to be brought out the coming season in the metropolis. While here, he intends to finish the first act. 'Tis on an original subject and very funny.

Dr. Pierce's "Pellets" or sugar-coated granules—the original "little liver pills" (beware of imitations)—cure sick-ache, billious headache, cleanse the stomach and bowels, and purify the blood. Successful Pupils.

The [illegible] school [illegible] ion contest in Cooperstown last week made excellent records.

The [illegible] in physics was was a[illegible] Waterman, and [illegible] made of Carrie E. Salmon, of Syracuse, daughter of K. F. Salmon. In physiology the first prize was awarded to [illegible] Howe, daughter of B. R. Howe, Miss May French, daughter of F. H. French received second prize, honorable mention being made of Clarence D. Hall, son of R. B. Hall. Carson J. Rappole passed a creditable examination, and no school present returned with as many prizes and honorable mentions as Fulton [illegible] according to the number of [illegible] Prof. Boothby accompanied the pupils from Fulton and was chosen a member of the executive committee. The contests next year will be held in Binghamton.

The record made by the pupils from Fulton Union schools is indeed a flattering one and must be gratifying to patrons. Prof. [illegible] and his assistants are untiring in their endeavors to promote the welfare of pupils and the showing at Cooperstown is a natural sequel. At the request of Professor [illegible] chemistry was added to the list of contested studies next year.

Hard Working Pastor.

For several years past there has been a small debt hanging over the Furman street church says the Syracuse Standard which has been the cause of no little anxiety to the friends and supporters of the society. Anxiety not because there was any danger to result from the non-payment at present of the obligation but for the reason that the church has suffered many inconveniences in pushing its labors from the fact that such a debt existed. During the pastorate of the Rev. J. N. [illegible] a determined effort has been made by both pastor and congregation to raise funds to cancel the original debt of $1,000 and to pay a few outstanding obligations which have accumulated during the early years of the existence of the society. This labor has been rewarded and a short time since the good news was announced that every obligation had been met. Sunday was set for a day of jubilation over the new era of prosperity which has dawned upon the church.

Drowned While Bathing.

Willie Hall, fourteen years of age step-son of Thomas Leslie was drowned while bathing in the river opposite the residence of Mr. D. Ramsden. He was employed in the factory and at the conclusion of work Thursday went with two companions to have a bathe. He was standing upon a projection of the waste weir, that conveys the surplus water from the canal to the river, when a sudden swell threw him off his feet and carried him beyond his depth. Several unsuccessful attempts were made to recover the body, but not until Sunday was it found. Robert Stowe dove and brought it to the surface a few minutes before 11 a. m. It was removed to Hendrick & Hubbards undertaking rooms and Coroner Hall held an inquest Monday evening. A verdict was rendered of accidental drowning. G. W. Merton was foreman of the jury the other members being Oliver P. Conger, Ed. LaPorte, A. W. Stoneburgh, Paul Roderick, C. C. Fuller, Jefferson Bailey and James A. Pratt.

Funeral services were held yesterday at 4 p. m., from his late home on Cayuga street.

Mr. Schenck has received many flattering offers from large manufactories in the East to make his truck and introduce it and it is generally looked upon by manufacturers as a valuable acquisition to the mechanical world.

Dr. Finley P. Sinclair of Oswego Falls was married at 10 a. m. yesterday to Miss Laura Hawks at the residence of the bride's parents at North Volney, Rev. L. Brown of Mt. Pleasant performing the ceremony. They were the recipients of several elegant and substantial wedding gifts from friends. Mrs. Sinclair was for many years a teacher in the public school at Liverpool, N. Y., and is an educated and accomplished lady. The doctor and his bride took the mid-day train on the D. L. & W. road for Jordan, N. Y., where he will establish himself for the practice of his profession. A long and pleasant existence is the wish of THE TIMES.

"DRAGGING PAINS."

Dr R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—My wife had suffered from female weaknesses for nearly three years. At times she could hardly move. [illegible] advertised, but supposed like most of patent medicines, it didn't amount to anything, but at last concluded to try a bottle, which she did. It made her sick at first, but it began to show its effect in a marked improvement, and two bottles cured her. Yours etc.,

Ebenezer Ball died at the residence of his son, Gordon D., Monday morning aged 90 years. He was born in Windsor, Mass., in 1792 and remained there until 1823 when he journeyed on foot through the forests to this town and purchased a farm of Roger S. Nelson, father of W. S. Nelson, occupying it for 43 years. It is the farm now owned by J. F. Simons, near Volney Center. After completing his arrangements he returned to Massachusetts and with his family and possessions on a rude wagon drawn by oxen, worked his way to his adopted home. Mr. Ball was a tireless worker and a successful farmer. By his diligence he amassed a competence which he lived to enjoy in his declining days. He was also one of the founders of the Congregational church at Bristol Hill and always a liberal donor and promoter of what pertained to the best interests of the society.

A widow and three sons survive him. He was married three times but had children only by his first wife, of whom Gordon D a resident of Fulton, Marshall, of Palermo and Seymour of this town are living.

Funeral services will be held from the residence of his son at No. 55 Oneida street to-day at 2:30 o'clock, p. m. Rev. Stone of Bristol Hill officiating.

Stephen Harris, who suffered a shock of paralysis July 1st died July 8th. Funeral was held Monday at 11 a. m., at Mt. Pleasant church, Rev. George Foster officiating. The remains were interred at Mt. Pleasant. Mr. Harris was aged 72 years, and was brother of the late Samuel Harris and father of Rev. C. H. Harris.

It will surprise the many friends of Miss Mary J. Pratt to learn of her death which ocurred at the residence of her aunt Mrs. Hitchcock in Alphena, Mich, June 30, 1882, of heart disease. Miss Pratt left Fulton about eight years ago and at the time of her death was fifty years of age.

A Society Formed.

The Congregationalists of Oswego Falls convened in Howe's hall last evening and laid the foundation for a new society. There was a large number present and considerable enthusiasm was manifested. Five thousand dollars was reported towards building a new church.

The following officers were elected:

TRUSTEES

B R Howe, Dr W W Wells, Lewis Johnson, George Emeny, E M Baker, and J C Harrington. B R Howe was elected treasurer and Dr Wells secretary.

MODERATORS

Rev E A Kinmouth, E. M. Baker.

BUILDING COMMITTEE

Geo M Case, Slater Laycock, John Summerville, John Vinton and Thomas R Wright. Another meeting will be held in a few days and definite steps will be taken as to the future of the society.

Falley Seminary.

The faculty and trustees held their annual meeting at Fulton Savings bank Monday at 10 a. m. The condition of the school was accepted as satisfactory and Miss Anna Gilmour was added to the corps of teachers. Giles S. Piper was elected trustee in place of R. H. Tyler, deceased, and William C. Crombie in place of W. J. Townsend, removed to New York. The following are at present members of

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES:

J. G. Benedict, president,
H. N. Gilbert,
James Gilmour,

To the many complications surrounding George Ney may be added neuralgia.

Miss Ida Keller of Syracuse, is a guest of her grandfather Mr. Robert Hawthorne.

Mrs. Dr. Budd of Chatham, N. J., is spending a few days with Mrs. Dr. C. M. Lee.

FOUND—A pair of ear pendants, on Broadway, Oswego Falls. Call at this office.

Miss Grace Smith of Phoenix, is with her grandmother Mrs. Thos. Keeler for a few days.

Fuller & Montague caught two hundred pounds of eels Sunday night. The largest catch this season.

Potato bugs and taxes are bothering the residents of Fulton and Oswego Falls just at present.

E. W. Flexington and family have removed from Philadelphia to Rockwell Mills, Chenango Co. N. Y.

FOUND—A fan and ring. Owner can have them by calling at this office and proving property. July 12, 1882.

Mrs. Judson Stevenson nee Cora Hinman of Hannibal, was reported as lying at the point of death this morning.

Miss Mabel Smith of Brooklyn, N. Y., is expected in town to-day. She will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver P. Conger.

Dr. George Tilden of Omaha, Neb., cousin of Samuel J. Tilden, spent the Sabbath with his brother A. G. Tilden, in this town.

Mr. Alfred Roe, principal of the high school at Worcester, Mass., is enjoying the heated term in Fulton a guest of his father Rev. A. M. Roe.

The musicale of the Zion Church Organ Guild held at the residence of Mr. W. S. Nelson was largely attended and proved to be a very enjoyable affair.

Thos. R. Wright of Granby empowers THE TIMES to say that ex-supervisor Vedder is not in debt to the town, rumors to the contrary notwithstanding.

Mr. Bradt of Hannibal brought to Fulton yesterday a quantity of cabbage he had raised this year, some of them weighing three pounds. They are on exhibition at Langdon & Robinson's.

There will be a foot race of 100 yards on the Oswego Falls fair ground track Saturday, July 29th, for a purse of $50.00 and the championship of Oswego Falls. Arthur Greenwood and some unknown will be the principal contestants.

Rev. A. U. Hutchins has tendered his resignation as pastor of the Universalist society. A large portion of the society are almost unanimous in requesting the trustees not to accept it. A meeting will shortly be held to consider it.

John Lewis, who has represented the Metropolitan Industrial life insurance in Fulton and Syracuse, has entered the company's employ in Syracuse. Mr. Lewis has been active in the company's employ and has established for himself a good record in this vicinity.

Miss Augusta Easton has accepted a position as teacher in the public schools at Keokuk, Iowa, and will leave for that city in a few weeks. Miss Easton has taught for several terms in school No. 1 and has an excellent record as an instructor.

Monday afternoon friends of Mrs. Lorraine Fuller met at her residence on Utica street to inform her of the 56th annual recurrence of her birthday. It was a surprise, but none the less enjoyable for that. Several beautiful birthday souvenirs remained in Mrs Fuller's possession.

Wallace Coe, a boat man, returned to his home a few days ago to find that it had been entered in his absence, and furs, wearing apparel, bed clothing, etc. had been stolen. A window had been forced open. Mr. Coe resides on the Deacon Seymour farm north of Fulton.

James McCausey went into Haynes & Switzer's grocery in Oswego Falls a few days ago and left a satchel. A party called for it and it was given them. It turned out to be the wrong man. McCausey sues the firm to recover the value of satchel and contents. A fine point for some one to decide.

The Lowville Journal pays Rev. Dr. Bruce the following compliment:

Rev. E. C. Bruce, of the Northern New York conference, now preaching at Fulton, was made a doctor of divinity at the recent commencement at Syracuse university. Mr. Bruce is well deserving the honor. He preached two years in Lowville some fifteen years ago or more with great acceptance.

The Greenback electors of Volney met at Whitaker's hall last Saturday evening and appointed the following delegates to the district convention: E. Blakeman, Chas. Johnson, Edward Foster, Charles Whitaker, J. R. Pollock, O. W. Taft, J. C. Lang, E. B. Abbey F. D. VanWagenen.

C. S. HAMMOND, Secretary.

Oswego Falls Fair.

The directors or the Oswego Falls agricultural society met in Howe & Rice's office Monday and revised the premium list, the awards in many departments being increased. The premium list and pamphlet for 1882 was awarded to the Oswego Times.

The society will engage some prominent man to deliver the annual address and the secretary will at once open correspondence with Robert G. Ingersoll, James G. Blaine and Benjamin F. Butler.

The exhibition for 1882 bids fair to eclipse any of its predecessors in number of exhibits and general attractions.

County Greenback Convention.

The Oswego county Greenback convention assembled in Parish yesterday.

The following were elected delegates to the state convention: W F Ingalls, Dr J B Todd, J E Sperry, Capt E S Cook, John Ratigan, William Foster, Phineas Davis and J O'Brien.

The following nominations were made:

County Clerk—J D Foster,
Justice of Sessions—W G Baxter,
Congressional delegates—H R Hendrick, J E Sperry J B Todd, H Travis, W G Baxter, C S Rust, J Green, E Abbey, Thos Phillips, Samuel Ellsworth.

Every town in the county was reported but Granby and Hannibal.

Mechanical Manifestations.

While "Dr." Slade was in Bellville, Ont., Friday he was fully exposed as to his methods of slate writing etc. One of the party to whose ear the slate was held, snatched it away as soon as the pencil began scratching and the under side was found to be completely covered with writing. Chief McKinnon was present and upon this he accused Slade of being a fraud and a cheat. Slade weakened and confessed, but besought the chief not to expose him as it would ruin his business. He offered to and did show the manner in which he operated. The chief started for a warrant but was prevailed upon to let Slade go and he was given three minutes to pack up and get out. He left. It is said that the only kind of spirits Slade dealt with was whisky, of which he consumed enough to keep three ordinary men as drunk as lords all the time.

A Query.

Editor FULTON TIMES:

Will you please inform me by what authority the Board of Trustes of this village, granted Mr. Stephens the right to project the foundation for his opera house three feet into the street? Have not I the same right to apply and receive permision to remove my store a few feet in advance of that of my neighbors?

M.

There has been much comment upon the street regarding the right of the Board of Trustees to grant Mr. Stephens privelege to extend the show windows of stores in his new opera house a couple of feet beyond what is called the "building line." As long as property holders in the immediate vicinity do not demur the Board thought it just and politic that Mr Stephens should be encouraged. He is one of the largest real estate owners in Fulton and is improving and adding to the wealth of the village yearly.

The Board of Trustees are willing to confer and advise with citizens in any of their deliberations that effect the public, and in granting Mr. Stephens this permission have been actuated only by the best of motives.

James Smyth, of South Onondaga, formerly a resident of Little Utica and father of Mr. Thos. Smyth, recently in Richardson's grocery, met with a sev ere accident Monday. A swarm of bees settled on a limb of a tree and he sent a man up to saw the limb while he stood under the tree. The dismembered limb fell, striking a neighboring limb and bounding off striking Mr. Smyth on the head and shoulders knocking him down. When picked up he was insensible. There was a large cut on the left side of the head near the top; his left shoulder was severely bruised and the left leg broken in two places below the knee.

The managers of the driving park in Oswego, are endeavoring to have some very interesting races there July 20. There will be a stallion race, in which King Almont, owned by Joseph Feek, of Syracuse; Stephanus, owned by O. J. Jennings, of Fulton, and Fred Fuller of Watertown are entered. It is also thought that Jack Feek will bring other horses, and Horace Mann, of Adams, will bring two or three. E. W. Ross' Simbad will be there and one or two more Fulton steppers.

Oswego people are expecting a grand treat to-morrow evening at the Academy of music in that city. Miss Alice Barry, daughter of John Barry editor of the Palladium, will make her debut as an illustrator of the Delsartian school of expression. She is to be assisten by the eminent Hungarian, violinist Remenyi, and other imported talent. Several Fulton people will attend.

VILLAGE OF FULTON.

Trustees Proceedings.

FULTON, July 11, 1882.

Board met pursuant to adjournment.

Present, the president, Trustee Hart, Patterson, LaLonde, and Herrick.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

The finance committee reported the following bills and orders were drawn for the amounts.

J. J. Stephens, rent of court room	$12 00
Hugh McKiernan, assessor	14 00
T. A. Paddock, for paving	100 00
F. H. Carver, board of health	1 50
A. Howe, assessor	26 00
W. C. Wheeler, printing	43 00

The street commissioner reported that the village had five or six feet between the towpath and the line of lots on Wall street and that a sidewalk would have to be upon private property.

Mr. Kernan asked that a side walk be built on the north side of Rochester street across block.

Referred to committee to report at next meeting.

Adjourned to meet July 18th, 1882, at 7½ p. m.

C. E. PATTERSON, clerk.

RESCUED FROM DEATH.

William J. Coughlin of Somerville, Mass., says: In the fall of 1876 I was taken with bleeding of the lungs followed by a severe cough. I lost my appetite and flesh and was confined to my bed. In 1877 I was admitted to the hospital. The doctors said I had a hole in my lung as big as a half dollar. [illegible]

NEIGHBORING NEWS.

Syracuse has formed a stock company with $25,000 to introduce the famous Herdic coaches.

There was recently born in Cleveland, a baby, fully developed and weighing only 24 ounces, says the Utica Herald.

The presentation nuns from Presentation convent, New York, have arrived at Cleveland to occupy their new home.

The fire laddies of Mexico became dissatisfied because the village voted against purchasing a steamer and have disbanded.

Louis Thoma, the trapeze performer, injured by a fall during an exhibition at Cazenovia, has gone to his home in Canton, Ohio, to die.

Is this eggsagerated? A. Coan sold $8.20 worth of eggs, set two hens on 15 eggs each, besides what were used in the family, from 22 hens in five weeks.

[Parish Sun.

The Parish Sun says some miscreant entered the village cemetery and broke, chipped and defaced Chas. Martin's family monument to such an extent that it will have to be dressed over.

Sunday afternoon in Syracuse James Hawks murdered his mistress Amelia Hull by stabbing her in the breast with a jack knife. She died in five minutes from the time the blow was inflicted. They were both drunk at the time the crime was committed. Hawks was arrested and held to await the action of the grand jury.

We learn from the Oswego Falls Observer that James Mizen, of Hannibal is undergoing marital disturbance. He recently married a woman named Raymond, from Ogdensburg, whom he supposed to be a Christian lady, but she proved otherwise and packed her effects and left. This she repeated until Mr. Mizen divided with her and she has left him for good. Mr. Mizen was for several years a resident of Fulton.

The Gilberts Mills twins Garfield and Arthur Chapin, were in Fulton Thursday, being photographed. To distinguish "which from t'other" is a poser. Their facial expressions are identical, also teeth, dimples, color of hair and eyes. They are the most remarkable specimens of similarity extant, and people are daily attracted to their pleasant country home to see them.

[Syracuse Herald.

A correspondent writes from Volney to the Oswego Times: Mr. John Kendall was one of the first four men who located at Volney Center in 1806. Losing his first wife he returned to Oneida county where he remained till March, 1812, when he returned to Volney and resided there till his death in 1853 in the eighty-first year of his age. There were 12 children. Six are living and their average was then 42 years. Otis and Jacob Kendall are the two oldest residents in this part of the town.

The Phoenix Register has the following: The venerable Mr. Alanson Town[illegible] residing in the eastern part of this town, is now in his 89th year. He is one of the few remaining soldiers of the war of 1812; and while time has had its effect upon his physical system, his in[illegible] and his patriotism is not less than when he marched [illegible] his country's battle. The Cheese Market.

[From the Utica Herald.]

UTICA, July 10.—It seemed like a dull market to-day, but when the transactions came to be footed up they showed a larger aggregate than was expected. Salesmen were well satisfied with the result of the day's bargaining, but it is doubtful if buyers got out of the scrape with a whole skin. They claim, with apparent reasons, that cheese ought not to have sold above 10c to-day. It was rumored that several lots sold at 10⅜c., but no quotations were given in at that figure. The single lot at 10½c. was taken for home trade. The marketings of the day were as follows: 5 lots, 587 boxes, at 10c.; 8 lots, 902 boxes, at 10⅛c.; 60 lots, 6,221 boxes, at 10¼c.; 90 at 10⅛c.; and 511 at private terms. Sales, 8,116 boxes; total, 9,476 boxes; commissions, 1,360 boxes; total, 9,476 boxes. Ruling price, 10¼c. Transactions a year ago amounted to 13,485 boxes, at 10¼c. to 11c., the leading price being 10¾c. At the same time the New York quotation was the same as it was to-day; but the market was a rising instead of a falling one. Two years ago prices were 8c. to 8⅝c., and three years ago they were 5c. to 6¼c.

LITTLE FALLS, July 10.—There was a sharp competition for the cheese, and it was a question frequently asked what the ruling prices were to be. Conflicting reports were current as to what rates had been paid for the so-called "fancy" lots, and it was stated that fully a half dozen lots had sold at some figure above 10¼c.—either 10⅜c. or 10½c. But as this was contradicted, we report such deals under the head of "private transactions," in the lack of authentic information. Following is our usual list:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price
86	5,318	10 cents
40	2,080	10¼ "
2	145	10⅜ "
9	610	p. t.
7	575	commis.
144	9,658
Farm dairies	738
Total	10,396

FULTON, July 10.—There were 1,708 boxes of cheese from 21 factories, which sold at 10c. The price one year ago was 10½c. with 2,980 boxes offered; two years ago 9c.; three years ago 6c.; four years ago 7¾c.

STONED IN THE KIDNEYS

AND BLADDER EXPELLED—LONG SUFFERING OF ONE OF TROY'S—BEST PEOPLE —A LUCKY MAN.

It is by no means a strange thing that Dr. Kennedy should have received the following letter. By reading it you will see, in one minute why James Andrews was thankful;

TROY, N. Y. April, 8, 1882.

Dr D. Kennedy Rondout N. Y.

DEAR SIR :—Until within a recent date I had for several years suffered greatly from gravel, called by the doctors the brick-dust sediment. For about a year past this sediment has not passed off in the usual quantity, but has accumulated, causing me untold pain. Having heard of "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" I tried it in my case, and after using about one and one-half bottles, I voided a stone from the bladder, of an oval shape, 7-16 of an inch long, and rough on its surface. I send yo the largest piece that you may see of what it is composed. since then I have felt no pain. I now consider myself cured, and cannot express my thankfullness and gratitude for so signal a deliverance from a terrible a disease. You have my consent to use this letter, should you wish to do so, for the benefit of other sufferers.

Yours Truly,

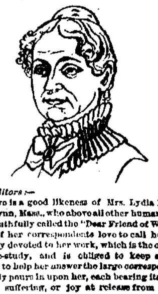
JAMES ANDREWS.

No 10 Marshal St, Ida Hill.

When we consider that the medicine which did this service for Mr. Andrews cost only one dollar a bottle, it would seem that persons in like fashion can afford the expense of testing its virtues. Get it of your druggist, or address Dr. David Kennedy Rondout, N. Y. "Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" for sale by all druggists.

A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN.

[From the Boston Globe.]



Messrs. Editors :—

The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," as some of her correspondents love to call her. She is zealously devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass.

For Kidney Complaint of either sex this compound is unsurpassed as abundant testimonials show.

"Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills," says one writer, "are the best in the world for the cure of Constipation, Biliousness and Torpidity of the liver. Her Blood Purifier works wonders in its special line and bids fair to equal the Compound in its popularity.

All must respect her as an Angel of Mercy whose sole ambition is to do good to others.

KIDNEY-WORT

HAS BEEN PROVED

The SUREST CURE for

KIDNEY DISEASES.

Does a lame back or disordered urine indicate that you are a victim? THEN DO NOT HESITATE; use Kidney-Wort at once, (druggists recommend it) and it will speedily overcome the disease and restore healthy action.
